*In this Christmas season we offer excerpts from
The Story of Christmas*

By Thornwell Jacobs
M (Presbyterian)

◆ Christmas Eve has come again! The President of the United States has just touched the switch and illuminated the community tree in the national capital. From Virginia, north, our country is covered with a soft, white blanket of new-fallen snow. The heavens declare the glory of the hour. Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn hang like brilliant lanterns along the zodiac, in almost the same position as at the birth of Jesus Christ, eclipsing even the jeweled splendor of Orion and adding their charms to the sweet influences of the Pleiades. The full moon is rising in the east, giving a "lustre of mid-day to objects below." Swift-sandaled Mercury has just disappeared below the western horizon on an urgent message for his Lord, the Sun. Joyously anticipating the coming of Santa Claus, an expectant world rolls its yule-logs, mixes its egg-nogs, lights its Christmas trees and meditates upon the Nativity, for the great day-star has turned upon his heel in the south and is about to return for another spring. The whole world rejoices. The yule log crackles. Candles glow in windows everywhere. The carollers sing in Louisberg Square. Christmas music vibrates millions of radios. "Jingle Bells," "Santa Is Coming," "Silent Night, Holy Night," mistletoe, syllabub, holly boughs, plum puddings. Christmas Eve has come again! . . .

There is the sound of sleighbells on the lawn and the faint tapping of little hooves on the roof. There is the patter of tiny feet on the floor above, where expectant eyes peep eagerly toward the stockings on the mantel. The Yule log crackles merrily. Come memories of shepherds feeding their flocks by night and the sound of angel choirs and of camels with muffled feet and tinkling bells hurrying Magi, star-led, toward Bethlehem. With a soft, muted crash a snow-laden limb falls on the porch. In a distant tower, bells are chiming. Joyous carollers are singing, without. Welcoming candles glow, within. Christmas has come, bringing its blessed benisons, always, everywhere, to all.

Iowa Governor Hoegh Receives Achievement Award

◆ Honorable Leo Hoegh, Governor of the State of Iowa, received the 1954 Distinguished Achievement Award of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Presentation of the award was made by National President John F. E. Hippel of Philadelphia and Arthur S. Bowes, BΦ (Purdue), Chairman of the Awards Committee, Chicago. Alumni from the entire state of Iowa honored Governor Hoegh at a presentation dinner, Hotel Fort Des Moines, September 18.

In accepting the award the Governor expressed his appreciation for the training he received as a member of the fraternity. He emphasized that "proper fraternity life can be a wholesome means of developing college men into responsible citizens and civic leaders. Group fellowship and group living is a training school for democracy where one must learn to share with the group, to be willing to perform a task, to assume responsibility, to persevere until an objective is obtained, to submerge self interest for group interest, to demonstrate the courage of his convictions and to establish moral, social, and religious standards of conduct and life."

The award is given annually by the Chicago Alumni Association to the member of the fraternity who has earned an outstanding place of national leadership and recognition in his business or profession. An attorney, Governor Hoegh began his legislative career as Representative of Lucas County in 1935. After a distinguished military career in World War II, he returned to the practice of law in Chariton, Iowa. While serving as Attorney General for Iowa, he earned the respect of the people throughout the State for the fair, firm, and effective manner in which he administered the laws of the State. A member of the Republican Party, he was elected Governor of Iowa in 1954, assuming office January 3, 1955.

Governor Hoegh was a charter member of Gamma-Nu Chapter at the University of Iowa in 1929. He served as its first president. After receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree and his Doctor of Jurisprudence, he continued active in the affairs of the fraternity. He was District President for the States of Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin for six years and served as a member of the Supreme Council in the office of National Secretary from 1940 until 1942 at which time he resigned to enter the military service. He served with distinction during World War II and retired with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Dr. Henry G. Harmon, K (Transylvania), President of Drake University, presided over the presentation dinner. Brother Bowes gave the history of the Distinguished Achievement award, and commented on the outstanding accomplishments of its winners since 1936. He announced that at the request of the Chicago Alumni Association, the Supreme Council had accepted responsibility for handling the selection of the winner in order to insure permanence, continuity, and a truly national screening for the selection. It will continue to be known as the Chicago Distinguished Achievement Award and the Chicago Alumni Association will be represented on the selection committee.

Albert E. Paxton, BH (Illinois), a member of the awards committee, read some of the telegrams and letters of congratulations to Brother Hoegh. Alfred Kahl of Des Moines, also a charter member and former SMC of Gamma-Nu Chapter, was Chairman of Arrangements. Gamma-Nu alumni Patrick Kilpatrick, vice president, and Vern Weber, secretary of the Chicago Alumni Association, were present. Members from all three Iowa chapters attended, led by their SMCs—Boyd Burnison, AΦ (Iowa State); Ronald K. Buntin, ΓN (Iowa); and Bernard Einhaus, ΔO (Drake). Committee.*

House Commission of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and former District President, participated. Other District Presidents present included Governor Hoegh, H. J. Roe, and Dean Gunderson.

Awards Committee Chairman Bowes pointed out that the distinguished list of recipients included four state governors, two outstanding football coaches, two university presidents, one cabinet member, two soldiers, three senators (two governors who subsequently became U. S. Senators), two business leaders, one clergyman, one jurist, one physician, one political leader, and a National Commander of the American Legion.

FOR THE 1956

Pi Kappa Alpha National Convention

Yes, it's true! Special arrangements have been made for our national convention to be held at the Hotel Del Prado, Mexico City's finest—

September 2-6, 1956

Here is the opportunity for our members to combine business and pleasure — the thrill of a lifetime with a visit to our Good Neighbor. Mexico is a Land of Endless Discovery — matchless mountain scenery, mother of several civilizations covering a span of thousands of years, site of the 2,000 year old pyramids to the Sun and Moon, possessor of the famous twin volcanoes, Ixtaccihuatl (Sleeping Lady) and Popocatepetl (Warrior) which are the highest peaks in the western hemisphere, and home of a people who are among the friendliest, best-humored, and most courteous of any nation.

Mexico City combines the historic and the modern. Founded in 1325, it has a population of 3,500,000. It is located in a high valley (7,349 feet) with a marvelous year-round climate. The new $50,000,000 campus of the National University of Mexico has an enrollment of 30,000 students and is one of the most architecturally beautiful physical plants in the world. The city is a modern business and financial center with a glorious history.

Excellent, economical transportation is available — by air, rail, or automobile. Hotel accommodations are fine and very reasonable. Plan now to bring your entire family for an

Arbuckle Named Alumni President

◆ Howard B. Arbuckle, Jr., B (Davidson), was installed as president of the Davidson College Alumni Association October 15, 1955.

Brother Arbuckle is the son of one of our four Junior Founders. He served as National Secretary of the Fraternity from 1940-1942 when he resigned to enter active military service. He is currently serving as a member of the Membership Standards Committee which will report to the next national convention.

Arbuckle was elected by almost 2,000 alumni in a mail ballot ended this month. He won over Raymond Oeland, Houston, Texas manufacturing executive.

He succeeds George King of Bristol, Tenn. as president of the association, which lists almost 9,000 members in 48 states and numerous foreign countries.

During World War II he served with the Army, and was released from active duty as colonel in 1946. During that year he was commanding officer of the ROTC detachment at Davidson.

He is a member of the Charlotte Country Club, the Blowing Rock Country Club and the Goodfellows Club of Charlotte. He is a deacon in the Myers Park Presbyterian Church and past president of the Men of Mecklenburg Presbytery.

He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholastic fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary leadership fraternity, at Davidson.

Scholarship Memorial To Rahall

◆ Last year for the first time, the Deem Rahall Memorial Scholarship for Alpha-Theta Chapter was offered by the most generous family of Deem Rahall. The purpose of the scholarship is to honor Deem Rahall who was a leader of the chapter from 1935 to 1939, and who later was an outstanding alumnus.

To be eligible for the scholarship, the man must be in his first semester at the university and be a native of the Kanawha-Raleigh county area. He must have an outstanding scholastic record, ability to work with others, a strong high school activities record, and a reasonable need for financial aid. The man must be recommended by his high school principal. The scholarship will amount to $200.

If any alumnus knows of a young man who would qualify for the award, he should inform the chapter of the man's name and address.

Fraternity Museum

Exhibits

Founder's Desk

By DR. FREEMAN H. HART
National Historian

National Historian Freeman H. Hart seated at the mahogany desk of Founder William Alexander in the Memorial Headquarters museum.

♦ Soon after your National Historian was appointed around 1930, The Shield and Diamond set him the important task of looking into the early days of the Fraternity. At that time there were several men still living who had been closely tied in with the Founding period. Among these was William Alexander who was usually listed as the first initiate of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Not long after the above task was set, the National Historian made a trip to New York and as part of that trip took it on himself to find this first initiate. He was hard to find since he was an executive of one of the largest insurance companies in the United States. In addition, at that time he was not in much of a mood to be found! When he was found he was in one of his clubs, the very exclusive Century Club of New York City and it was not easy to get into it.

When the first contact was made he was rather definitely indifferent and seemed to hint very politely that the interview was not particularly welcomed. However, while he was talking somewhat indifferently he was subconsciously "doodling." A glance at the "doodling" seemed to indicate that it was the badge of Pi Kappa Alpha and it proved to be just that. On request he turned it over to his interviewer and your National Historian still has it as a prized possession.

Instead of being discouraged too much by this first interview your National Historian went back for another one at Alexander's office and was received somewhat more warmly. This was followed by a long succession of visits over a ten year period in which a very close friendship developed and Alexander's renewed interest in the Fraternity which grew to the extent of the William Alexander Moving Picture which many Pi Kappa Alphas have seen; furthermore to the extent that Alexander took four small boys with their father, the National Historian, to Madison Square Garden for a circus; and again to the extent that the National Historian was a guest of the Equitable Life Assurance Society on the funeral train that carried the body of its Secretary for sixty-seven years, William Alexander, from New York to Princeton, New Jersey, his last resting place.

One very important disclosure came out of these contacts, and that was William Alexander's vehement insistence that he had never been initiated in the Fraternity and that he was a Founder. The old Alpha Minute Book, discovered some years later, definitely corroborated William Alexander's claims. The old Minute Book also positively confirmed the fact that he was the designer of the badge of Pi Kappa Alpha.

This experience, along with others of the National Historian, emphasized the fact that Pi Kappa Alpha needed to preserve its records and its mementoes. Corroboration of this idea was made positive when the National Historian took over the National Office for a time as Executive Secretary. On moving from one office building to another in Atlanta he found one room in the National Office filled almost to the ceiling with Pi Kappa Alpha records and data. Therefore, it was necessary for him to spend night after night, as well as spare time during the day, going through these old records of the Fraternity. About ninety per cent of them had no historical value, or permanent record value. However, among the ten per cent that did have value was the first Minute Book of Alpha Chapter, which as a Pi Kappa Alpha record is more than worth its weight in gold. It was nearly lost in the mass of other records.

At the New Orleans Convention in 1936 the National Historian in his report to the Convention recommended the setting up of a Memorial and Archives Fund. This recommendation was unanimously approved by the 1936 Convention. Your Historian made the first contribution to the Fund, ten dollars, out of his meager salary as a small college professor; but it set the wheels in motion for a Memorial Building that was realized nearly twenty years later at the Memphis Convention in 1954 in the dedication of the beautiful building of which all Pi Kappa Alphas are duly proud.

The National Historian sees a fitting climax of his hopes, and those of hundreds of other Pi Kappa Alphas in this realization. Notably among these is the name of General Leroy Hodges, II, who became a great champion for the Memorial as one of his last services to the Fraternity as National Alumni Secretary.

A further realization of this hope is included in the present article in a material way through the accompanying picture of the beautiful mahogany office furniture which was used by William Alexander for a number of years while he was Secretary for two-thirds of a century of one of America's largest insurance companies, the Equitable Life Assurance Society. This company not only furnished an excellent example for Pi Kappa Alphas all over the world but added a real touch to its kindness by paying the transportation on these beautiful and expensive pieces of office fur-

David Collins (l.) and R. D. Lynn examine the one, the only, the original coonskin cap worn by Davy Crockett (Fess Parker) in his movie and TV portrayal. Brother Parker has presented it to the fraternity museum.

Edgar Wyatt, Arizona Author

◆ Geronimo, The Last Apache War Chief, really comes to life for children who read this book by Edgar Wyatt, ΓΔ (Arizona). Indian stories have always been favorites with Wyatt, and in the past he has written several of them for children's magazines. The story of Geronimo so fascinated him that he plunged into intensive research and came up with a completely authenticated biography. In words and style that children can understand, but without talking down to them, he tells the story of the Indian who stood against the United States for forty years and then rode down Pennsylvania Avenue in Theodore Roosevelt's inauguration parade. Woven into the tale are fascinating details of Indian life—their customs, their tribal dances, their feasts, and celebrations.

Brother Wyatt has published still another Indian offering for juvenile libraries, Cochise, Apache Warrior and Statesman. It, too, is a powerful biography of a famous Indian and his struggle for peace, and tells the story of the Southwestern Indian, both good and bad, and of the white man, both honest and scheming.

The author has contributed autographed copies of these books to the Memorial Library in Memphis. The books are published by Whittlesey House, a division of McGraw-Hill Book Company.

niture to the National Office and Museum in Memphis.

As this article is brought to a close the National Historian has a further thrill in receiving for the Museum the coonskin cap used by Fess Parker, BM, as he portrayed Davy Crockett in the Walt Disney movie for millions of small boys and girls throughout the world. A visit to the National Office by Brother Parker planted the seed for this splendid gesture toward his fraternity brothers and for posterity.

Dr. Nedrow — IKA Leader

◆ To the members and pledges of Delta-Theta Chapter, no man expresses better the noble ideals of Pi Kappa Alpha than does its alumnus counselor, Dr. Warren Wesley Nedrow.

Eight years of faithful service to the national fraternity and to its chapter at Arkansas State have endeared this man to members of Pi Kappa Alpha everywhere.

Not only on the campus has Dr. Nedrow been outstanding in fraternity work. He has held positions on the national level and for the past several conventions he and Mrs. Nedrow have served on the national staff.

Dr. Nedrow was the advisor of Kappa Sigma Nu, the predecessor of Pi Kappa Alpha here, and it was largely through his efforts that the local affiliated with PiKA. Hence, his services to the present chapter date back many more years than the life of Pi Kappa Alpha on this campus.

He has been active in fraternity work since coming to the College in 1935. He is now head of the school's rapidly-growing Science Department, but still finds time from his busy school work to help guide the chapter's destinies.

Marvin King Seriously Injured

◆ Marvin King, former SMC and currently Pledgemaster of Beta-Mu Chapter at the University of Texas, was seriously injured and his date, Miss Mary Dannenbaum, was killed when they were run over by a reckless driver while crossing the street adjacent to the fraternity house October 16.

Brother King suffered fractures of both legs and a concussion. He will be hospitalized for several weeks. Miss Dannenbaum suffered a brain contusion and multiple injuries. She remained unconscious from the time of the accident until her death one week later. The impact of the blow carried her body sixty-five feet and that of Mr. King's fifty-five feet.

Miss Dannenbaum was one of the most popular students at the University of Texas and a candidate for president of the Student Body. Funeral services were held at the University Presbyterian Church after her body lay in state. The Reverend Jack Lewis read a letter he received from Miss Dannenbaum a few hours before the accident and quoted her as saying, "It's an exciting thing to be alive. There's so much to be done." He then said, "Too often we take life for granted. Students seem to think that when they are through college, married and have children of their own, then they can give attention to the things that are most important in life. We see this is not so. If life is given us for a purpose, then we must find that purpose here and now."

Records show the driver of the car had a record of repeated traffic violations. How tragic it is to see the life of a beautiful youth snuffed out by the callous irresponsibility and selfishness of a reckless driver.

Pittsburgh Pledge Most Decorated Soldier In Korean War

◆ Anthony Herbert, pledge of Gamma-Sigma Chapter, University of Pittsburgh, and formerly a master sergeant with the Second Infantry Division in Korea, is author of the recently published book, Conquest of Nowhere, written with S/Sgt. Robert L. Niemann.

Who could be better qualified to write such a book than the most decorated soldier in the Korean War? (Note the article on the June meeting of the Gamma-Eta Alumni Association on page 32.) Holder of the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, recommended for the Congressional Medal of Honor, and entitled to wear the highest awards from most of the United Nations countries, he has been awarded twenty-nine medals. Let's let Pat Flaherty of the Santa Monica, California Evening Outlook tell the story:

During 13 months in Korea, and before he was 21 years old, Herbert was awarded 29 combat decorations. In October 1951, Gen. Matthew Ridgeway, then commander of United Nations Forces in the Far East, selected Herbert as America's Most Outstanding Soldier. Modest to a fault, Herbert nevertheless, upon his return to the States, brought about a record turnout for blood donations after his nationwide pleas for blood for the men in Korea.

Courts Combat

And, from the manner in which Herbert courted combat, there is some doubt if his departure from the war zone as a hero was "only a mistake," as he phrased it.

He arrived in Korea in October 1950. Originally assigned to a Signal Corps unit in Pusan—far from the front lines—Herbert went AWOL to rejoin the division he served with in a previous enlistment, the Second Infantry Division. Confused by the lay of the land, he found himself with the Second ROK (Korean) Division, fought with them for a day, and returned to his signal unit to once again request a transfer to the Second Infantry Division. Before the transfer papers had been processed, Herbert again went AWOL to the front lines where he somehow avoided the snares of Army red tape and was attached to the 38th Regiment, 2nd Battalion, "E" Company, of the Second Division.

It was with the Second Division that Herbert, a graduate of the Army's

Ranger and Paratrooper Schools, fought for 13 months in the trenches along Heartbreak Ridge and Pork Chop Hill. What happened during those months has been crowded into his 246-page book.

Best Trained

"I don't want to sound like a recruiting sergeant," smiled Herbert, "but if any of the younger men interested—men who are expecting Army service in the near future—I can tell them the best trained soldiers in the world are those in the U. S. Army. I like to believe that because of the training I received, I was able to return from Korea alive."

Herbert, it might be added, came out alive only after the rest of his company was lost.

A serious, handsome youth, Herbert resembles the college student that he now is more than the hardened, combat-wise soldier that he was. In fact, after returning home, he was arrested in Denver, Colo., and confined to the city jail because police thought it incomprehensible that a man of his youth could possess, legitimately, so many decorations.

"I was finally able to establish that I was entitled to wear them," said Herbert, "but to avoid such occurrences in the future the Army gave me special papers bearing the names of the ribbons I was entitled to wear."

No Decoration

Herbert received no decoration for what he has described in the first chapter of his book—the day he and some Turkish troops came across the bodies of 21 American soldiers who had fallen prisoner to the Chinese. They had been crucified. Six of the men were still alive when Herbert came upon them, and when he started to cut them down, one of them cried out:

"Don't move me! Don't! Shoot me, for God's sake, shoot me!"

Herbert cut down the six disemboweled Americans but they died almost as soon as they were cut free.

If you had any illusions about the Korean War being a "police action," Herbert's first chapter will be tragically illuminating.

Published in America April 29, Herbert's book already has been published in a Far East edition.

U. S. Rep. Augustine B. Kelley of Pennsylvania addressed the House on Feb. 2 regarding the book. Said Kelley:

"I can recommend this book; however, it has word pictures that remind one of Dante's Inferno. There is no doubt in my mind that this is the actual experience as described by the author. I can, therefore, recommend Conquest to Nowhere to every member of Congress."

Rings True

Herbert's book will ring true to men who served in Korea—those of them who did the fighting. To others it will present a shocking account of the blunders, mistakes, brutality and horror which they will find hard to believe but with which the Korean War has become synonymous.

"The men who were there will not want to read it," said Herbert, "because they have lived it. I just hope it will be read by every man, woman and boy who hates war—its futility and needless slaughter."

Interfraternity greetings and congratulations were sent to Sigma Chi Fraternity on the occasion of its National Convention and Centennial Celebration held in Cincinnati, Ohio. The Fraternity was founded in 1855 at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. National Pledge Training Director Ralph Yeager represented Pi Kappa Alpha at the interfraternity dinner.

Supreme Council Holds Annual Meeting

◆ Appointment of the new Educational Advisor, selection of Mexico City as the site of the 1956 National Convention, appointment of a committee to develop a program of progress for the fraternity, report of the National Rush Chairman, and announcement of chapter awards were among the highlights of the 1955 Supreme Council meeting September 3-6 at Colorado Springs, Colo. National President Hippel of Philadelphia presided over the Council sessions which were attended by all five of the regional council representatives and the National Counsel.

Gene Weinberger, BP (Colorado College), and M. D. Wilcox, AΦ (Iowa State), welcomed the Supreme Council at its first session at the Garden of the Gods Club. Francis S. VanDerbur of Denver, Colorado, past president of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity and currently secretary of the National Interfraternity Conference, gave a stimulating address on fraternity affairs.

The first order of business was a report of the Membership Standards Committee which was holding its first meeting after months of correspondence. The committee is composed of one alumnus representative from each of the five regions and has the following personnel: Region II, K. D. Pulcifer, Philadelphia, Pa.;

Region II, Howard B. Arbuckle, Jr., Charlotte, N. C.; Region III, Howard Hartman, Milwaukee, Wis.; Region IV, Roy D. Hickman, Birmingham, Ala.; Region V, Wendell Gray, Portland, Ore. (See the directory pages for their addresses). This committee is studying requirements for membership and will submit its findings to the next National Convention.

Dr. Theodore Biddle, Dean of Men at the University of Pittsburgh, was elected National Educational Advisor to succeed Dr. John Fincher. The Council adopted a resolution of appreciation to Dr. Fincher for his outstanding services in this capacity for eight years.

The selection of Mexico City as the site of the 1956 National Convention came after several hours of careful consideration of all factors involved including the views of undergraduate members in attendance at the council meeting. The selection of the site was referred to student chapters and was overwhelmingly endorsed by them. The Supreme Council sincerely hopes that it will be one of the outstanding conventions in the history of the fraternity and that alumni and students will bring their families to participate.

After examining "the state of the fraternity" and considering the development of a program for its continued advancement, the National President appointed a special committee for a Program of Progress. It is composed of National Treasurer Brown, Chairman; National Rush Director Scott; and Chapter House Commissioner Christian with the staff as ex-officio members.

A special report was made by National Rush Director Scott. The records and statistics emphasized the nationwide response and activities resulting from the highly effective program which he has developed. The council and the entire fraternity appreciate his fine leadership in this capacity.

Congratulations from the entire fraternity go to the following chapters which earned distinction in various areas of chapter operations and activities for the 1954-55 school year:

A resolution of condolence was sent to the family of John R. Perez, former National President, now deceased.

This meeting of the Supreme Council required several days of intensive work by everyone in attendance with serious concentration on every phase of the fraternity's operations. It was an excellent meeting due to the 100 per cent attendance, the unselfish devotion, and hard work of these leaders: President Hippel, Philadelphia, Pa.; Vice President Johnson, Atlanta, Ga.; Secretary LeLaurin, Meridian, Miss.; Treasurer Brown, St. Louis, Mo.; Alumni Secretary Macfarlane, Salt Lake City, Utah; Counsel Yerkovich, Portland, Ore. Others in attendance included: National Rush Director Scott, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Executive Secretary Lynn, Field Secretaries Byrd and Love, District Presidents Grubbs and Underwood, and representatives of Colorado alumni and the three Colorado student chapters at the University of Colorado, University of Denver, and Colorado School of Mines.

◆ The Aluminum Company of America and Ecko Products Company recently organized Ecko-Alcoa Containers, Inc. to manufacture and sell aluminum foil containers, according to an announcement in the New York Times, September 30. John M. Mitchell, AH (Florida), has been elected president and general manager of the new company which will have headquarters in Cook County near Wheeling, Ill. A new $5,000,000 plant is under construction.

Biddle Named Educational Advisor

◆ The Supreme Council announces the appointment of Dr. Theodore W. Biddle, Dean of Men at the University of Pittsburgh, as National Educational Advisor. Dean Biddle is a charter member of Gamma-Sigma Chapter having served as president of the local fraternity for two years. Dean Biddle has earned a Master's degree in education and a Doctorate of Education. He has served as Dean of Men at the University of Pittsburgh since 1942.

While at the University of Pittsburgh, Brother Biddle was active in both campus and fraternity affairs. He served as treasurer of the Interfraternity Council and business manager of the Interfraternity Ball. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Eta Sigma, Scabbard and Blade, and Druids.

Dr. Biddle has been a regular attendant at the National Interfraternity Conference for many years and will now attend that conference as a representative of Pi Kappa Alpha in the capacity of National Educational Advisor. He brings to this position an excellent academic background plus experience in fraternity and interfraternity affairs gained in his position as Dean of Men.

Ted is married to the former Ruby Anne Meyer, and they reside at 4100 Allequippa Street, Pittsburgh with their two children, Susanna and Theodore.

Brother Biddle succeeds Dr. John Fincher, AI (Millsaps), who resigned because of increased duties as Assistant President of Howard College, Birmingham, Alabama. Dr. Fincher has rendered an outstanding service to the Fraternity as National Educational Advisor. The appreciation of the entire fraternity for eight years of leadership in the field of scholarship was expressed by the Supreme Council in a resolution to him.

Serpico Appointed Field Secretary

◆ Frank Serpico, Jr., student leader of Delta-Eta Chapter at the University of Delaware, was appointed to the Field Secretary staff this fall. Brother Serpico served his chapter as Th.C., Housemanager, Rush Chairman, and SMC plus a few additional duties! He was a leader on campus at the University of Delaware and one of its outstanding football players. He worked closely with house corporation President Clarke in purchasing the newly acquired chapter house for occupancy this fall.

Offices and honors include president of I.F.C., Co-Captain of the baseball team, All Conference and All IKA in football.

Frank Serpico, Jr.

After a period of training, Brother Serpico began chapter visitation in the northeastern section of the country. Frank's home town is in Blairstown, New Jersey. He is a member of the Catholic Church.

as important as logical evaluation, or deduction, should have been almost entirely slighted in intelligence tests, for example."

The factors of intellect seem to fall into six categories, Dr. Guilford said. One group involves memory for words, numbers, designs, music, etc. A second group has to do with symbols involved in reading comprehension and arithmetic.

One class of thinking abilities was called discovery factors by Dr. Guilford because they are concerned with a person's becoming aware of various kinds of things and his sensitivity to problems. Another group, called production factors, deals with conclusions, solutions, or other outcomes of thinking.

Then there are divergent-thinking factors, concerned with a person's flexibility and originality, and evaluation factors which involve logical evaluation and speed of judgment.

IKA Addresses Paris Conference

Editor's Note: This article appeared in the Summer News, University of Southern California.

◆ Paris, July 11. — Psychologists have sold human intellect short. There is much more to be learned about it than is disclosed by the average intelligence test. Some day it may be possible to predict man's creative thinking ability accurately.

Dr. J. P. Guilford, Southern California professor of psychology and a former president of the American Psychological Association, made these statements today in Paris, France. He was the only American psychologist invited to present a research paper at the International Conference on Factor Analysis. Brother Guilford was a member of Gamma-Beta Chapter (Nebraska).

Speaking in the city where Alfred Binet originated the first successful intelligence test 50 years ago, Dr. Guilford said the single-score IQ test can no longer be considered adequate, particularly for adults.

Many Factors

Intelligence is a many-sided thing, he said. There are at least 40, perhaps 60, and maybe even more factors concerned with intellect. The standard IQ test does not even begin to disclose them, he said.

At SC, Dr. Guilford and his associates have invented nearly 200 new tests in the past six years in a research project on the aptitudes of high-level personnel for the Office of Naval Research. These tests were given to 3,000 young men officer candidates in the armed forces.

The tests were designed to disclose the part that reasoning, creative thinking, planning, evaluation, and judgment play in the performance of men who do intellectual types of work—scientists, technical personnel, and administrative or supervisory personnel.

Important Question

An important question yet to be solved is whether persons are born with the ability to do creative thinking, or whether this trait can be learned or improved in individuals through training.

Although the intelligence test is one of psychology's greatest and most socially important achievements, the profession has been too content with it, the Southern California professor said.

The original Binet test scale was developed for children and was aimed to predict academic achievement at the elementary school level.

IQ Tests Limited

"From the time that I started administering intelligence tests," Dr. Guilford said, "I have wondered why their content seems to be limited to the more routine types of mental functioning with almost no demand for productive thinking."

"Creativity seems to have been overlooked, except for a very few tests in the Binet scale. It is amazing that an ability

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Exec. Secretary Dies

◆ The Fraternity world lost an outstanding leader when John O. Moseley, Eminent Supreme Archon (Executive Secretary) of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity, succumbed to a heart attack October 10, 1955 in Chicago.

Dr. Moseley was Executive Secretary of Sigma Alpha Epsilon for the past five years coming to that post from the presidency of the University of Nevada. He served as Dean of Men at the University of Tennessee and as president of Oklahoma State Teachers College also.

After graduating from Austin College in Texas in 1912 he received degrees from Southeastern State Teachers College in Oklahoma and from the University of Oklahoma. In 1916 he was named a Rhodes scholar.

Dr. Moseley was the originator of the fraternity's annual leadership school. The Fraternity Month magazine has carried a regular column edited by Dr. Moseley for many years.

Fraternities May Be Liable For Injury

♦ The unloaded gun is still killing people! The pranks "just for fun" which some college students are still foolish enough to indulge in, such as road trips near initiation time, are still injuring people. "I didn't mean to" or "I did not know the gun was loaded" are words of cold consolation to someone injured or to the loved one of an injured person. Obviously, no one would intend to injure a fraternity brother, but injuries occur, and will continue to occur as long as these practices persist. For decades, Pi Kappa Alpha has officially declared such conduct not only unbecoming but illegal. Any member who engages in such practices not only violates the spirit but the actual letter of the law and is betraying the principles and ideals of the fraternity.

The interfraternity research and advisory council in a recent bulletin called attention to a decision of the Supreme Court of Colorado which held a fraternal association responsible for injuries sustained during an initiation. The court allowed recovery against the fraternity and also against the individual members present and taking part. The case is reported in Volume 279 Pacific Reports, Second Series, at pages 427 (279 P. 2d. 427) and is styled Thomas v. Duanne. Briefly summarized by one of the national officers, is the following:

"An unincorporated fraternal association has been held liable to one of its members for injuries sustained during an initiation ceremony.

"Plaintiff, as a newly admitted member, was directed to sit on a particular bench and watch the proceedings of the meeting. He no more than got seated when a heavy electric current passed through the bench severely shocking him. The shock caused him to fall over backwards upon the floor. The fall resulted in a herniated cervical disc for which plaintiff recovered $33,918.

"Among other grounds urged on appeal was the contention that since the plaintiff was a member of the association at the time of injury, recovery was precluded. The Colorado Supreme Court said that such fact did not relieve the association from responsibility for the negligence of its agents in carrying on the program which resulted in injury.

"The court also allowed recovery against the members who were present and taking part in the initiation."

Hiram Jordan, Jr.

Jordan Named Bank Vice President

♦ Hiram Jordan, Jr., EF (Texas Tech), has been named vice president of the Lubbock National Bank, Lubbock, Texas.

Brother Jordan graduated from Texas Tech in 1950 with a bachelor of business administration degree. While in college, he served as president of the Los Camaradas Club and vice president of the senior class.

When Texas Tech set up its program for nationalization of local fraternities there, Brother Jordan was president of the Los Camaradas alumni association, and handled negotiations with the Pi Kappa Alpha National Office. He is a charter member of Epsilon-Gamma Chapter, has served as its Alumnus Counselor for the past three years, and has been president of the Pi Kappa Alpha alumni association of Lubbock.

Currently Alumnus Counselor Jordan is representing both Epsilon-Gamma Chapter and the national fraternity in working with the college administration on a fraternity housing program.

Mortgage banking is his specialty. He is vice president of the Lubbock Mortgage Bankers Association and a member of the educational committee of the Texas Mortgage Bankers Association. He has also been elected president of the Lubbock Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He and his wife are members of the Sunset Church of Christ. They reside at 3301 Fortieth St., Lubbock.

Gifford Receives Degree

♦ Professor Gilbert L. Gifford was recently awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. Doctor Gifford, EF (Wash. State), is a graduate of the University of Washington with BBA and MBA degrees. From 1942 to 1946 he was Acting Assistant Professor of Transportation at the University of Washington, leaving to become General Traffic Manager of West Coast Airlines. In 1947 Brother Gifford went east to do graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, going from there to the University of Tennessee where, for four years he was Associate Professor of Transportation. In 1952 he became Chairman of the Division of Transportation and Public Utilities at the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia. Doctor Gifford is now making his home in Seattle, Washington and expects to remain on the West Coast.

Robert M. Riculfi, AH (Florida), is president of the Florida Hotel Association. He is the donor of the Riculfi Award.

Harold E. Wagoner — Architect Supreme

Shrine of the Ages interior shows audience's sweeping view of the canyon.

◆ "Great masterpieces . . . for the Lord's worship!" The Shrine of the Ages board of directors used these words to describe the work of Harold E. Wagoner, BΣ (Carnegie Tech), whom they commissioned as architect for the national religious shrine being erected on the south rim of the Grand Canyon. The Shrine of the Ages Chapel Corporation was organized in 1952 for the exclusive purpose of constructing and operating a chapel building for all faiths. The organizers included lay persons representing Protestant, Catholic, and Hebrew faiths. It has been said, "If God is nearer where there is beauty, this is the place for this project."

This million dollar project adds yet another laurel to the many already earned by Brother Wagoner in the field of ecclesiastical architecture. Many of his honors are listed after his name in Who's Who in America.

A native of Pittsburgh, Brother Wagoner became No. 44 on the Beta-Sigma Chapter Roll while attending Carnegie Tech from which he graduated in 1926. This was followed by graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, and Philadelphia has been his permanent residence since that time. In addition to graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, he also studied at Fontainebleau, France. He has been in private architectural practice since 1933, and his firm has engaged in nationwide ecclesiastical practice since 1944. During World War II he was in charge of camouflage for the Philadelphia District of Army Engineers. During these years Wagoner has formed a close friendship with National President Hippel and one of his law partners, Brother David Maxwell.

Currently, his firm is engaged in work in twenty-eight states and all "styles" of architecture. In 1953 he received the first award for large churches for his First Presbyterian Church of South Bend, Indiana, which cost approximately $1,200,000. He concurrently received the second award in 1953 for the Second Presbyterian Church of Memphis, Tennessee. Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Reformed, Baptist, Congregational—Indiana, Georgia, Delaware, South Carolina, Florida, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Michigan, California—colonial, gothic, modified Georgian, contemporary, romanesque, and non-traditional—these emphasize the scope, the ability, and the reputation of Brother Wagoner.

The article by Maurice R. Salo in the summer 1955 issue of Your Church magazine entitled "The Future in Church Architecture" features Brother Wagoner's Shrine of the Ages Chapel at Grand Canyon. The article emphasizes the rapid change in church architecture during the last decade with the present day acceptance of the distinctly contemporary design. Mass production has forced architects to employ and incorporate the textures and rhythm of standard units. The materials have emancipated proportion from the severe limitations of classical styles. Elaborate mechanical work and equipment are a part of today's structure. They must be coordinated at the very inception of a plan. The program of a church today is no longer limited to a Sunday morning service plus a Sunday School session housed in an unfinished basement. It encompasses a full week of activities including worship, administration, education, social service, recreation, group activities, and athletics. Therefore, worship facilities represent only a portion of the total required structure.

Mr. Salo states: "The planned Shrine of the Ages Chapel, Grand Canyon, Arizona, is another clear adaption of the new approach. It is a structure which expresses powerfully the suitability to its climate and to its surroundings. The architect, Harold E. Wagoner, skillfully has made the mass a harmonic element of that magnificent masterpiece of geological upheavals, the Grand Canyon. As such, the Chapel blends into the Canyon's striking beauty. The structural system is impressive and the contrast of its elements to the interior stone wall is extremely effective. It forcefully illustrates that an architectural solution must be indigenous to the site and not a bodily importation of alien forms to a location which is innately hostile."

The Methodist Church, Bridgeport, West Virginia, is representative of the finished craftsmanship of Brother Wagoner. The care, detail and interpretative accuracy of the church and its furnishings emphasize the scholarly and artistic treatment of the architect. The structure is of stone with a rich roof, stained glass windows, and stained interior woodwork. The nave, which is the portion where the congregation sits, has specially designed open back "benches" which impart a friendly warmth. The comb-grain oak has a gray neutral tone which serves as a foil for the subtly colored windows. The chancel is of the open choir type with the pulpit on the right and the lectern on the left. Behind the choir there are six carved panels which are part of the organ screen. These represent the "Six Days of Creation" as described in the first chapter of Genesis. On the opposite side there are six parables depicting: The Lost Lamb, The House Built on a Rock, The Lost Coin, The Man Working in the Vineyard, The Sower, and The Pearl of Great Price. The Communion Table is made from Botticino marble imported from Italy and is adorned by the Cross and candlesticks designed by the architect. The clergy seat, the pulpit and tester, and every item of interior woodwork are historically accurate and interpretatively significant.

In 1951 the Second Presbyterian Church in Memphis erected a $400,000 educational building. In 1953 they added a $900,000 sanctuary. Bids are currently being received for a gymnasium and chapel which will bring the total expenditure for buildings to two million dollars.

Let's return for a moment to the Shrine of the Ages Chapel. Architecturally horizontal in "movement" to blend with the canyon, the Chapel will conform with national park regulations which forbid individual religious groups from constructing places of worship on national park property. This inter-faith chapel will have hydraulic lifts in the basement which will within minutes raise the required altar—Roman Catholic, Protestant, or Jewish—to the auditorium level. The chapel is being financed by private contributions. Howard Pyle, former Governor of Arizona, is chairman and states: "We are not attempting to promote in any way an inter-faith movement—our only purpose is to provide a place of worship for the hundreds of thousands of visitors to the south rim of the Grand Canyon annually."

First Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., Harold Wagoner, Associate Architect.

Another IKA, Charles K. Dunn, Ω (Kentucky), was a member of the building committee.

The architect has created a harmonious integration of design with the vastness of God's handiwork. Only a master craftsman could adequately provide a man made structure which would stimulate religious thinking in its broadest sense. The church interior provides the worshipers with a sweeping view of the canyon. The Minister, Priest, or Rabbi while standing at his altar will have as his mantlepiece God's wondrous firmament.

Every man has an inner yearning to create something permanent and in the nature of a monument for posterity. Certainly, Brother Wagoner has created sermons in stones which will sing out their messages to coming generations.

And what does he consider his masterpiece? Unhesitatingly, he says, "The lovely baby daughter born to my wife, Ruth, and me in the spring of 1955!"

Letter From A Housemother

◆ The Supreme Council at its recent meeting adopted a resolution expressing appreciation to Pi Kappa Alpha housemothers for their fine contribution to the welfare of their chapters and members. We are printing a reply which is typical of the sentiments of our fine housemothers.

Dear Mr. Lynn:

I am at quite a loss for words to express my sincere appreciation to you, to the Supreme Council for the very gracious recognition you gave to me. I must confess it has rather embarrassed me, for my labors, thoughts, and efforts in furthering Pi Kappa Alpha have been one of love and interest in the lives of as many fine boys whom I have come in contact with not only in Gamma-Theta but many other chapters.

There is no satisfaction in life to me comparable to the development you see in the lives of the boys in our chapter. We have many who come quite mature and with their characters established—others quite adolescent and not quite stable in their ideals. We have many fine boys, and our pledges are a group which will add strength to our chapter.

Our days are full to overflowing as we still have a number of boys to be pledged.

Please express to the Supreme Council my sincere appreciation to them for their kind consideration.

Most sincerely,

Kathleen Craig Claiborne,
Mississippi State College.

Outstanding Athletes At Northwestern

By John Christman

◆ Once again Gamma-Rho got off to a fine start in the 1955-56 school year. Our seven varsity football players are busy with practice, and a successful rush week netted us twenty pledges.

Gamma-Rho is proud to have three of the starting members of Northwestern's backfield. They are: Dale Pienta, a junior, at quarterback with Jim "Trigger" Troglio and Frank Jeske at the two half-back slots. Four other PiKA's find their name on the Wildcat roster. Fred Nosal, all PiKA for two straight years, is at end although on the injured list while Bucky Evashavik, Carl Bittner, and Frank Lentvorsky add a great deal of strength to the Northwestern squad.

Our three brothers in the backfield have been real threats this year. Pienta has pitched for two touchdown passes and has shown a capable hand at quarterback; Troglio, who led the Big Ten in punting last year and has led Wildcat rushers for two years, once more is leading the 'Cat ground attack, while Jeske, star of last year's win over Illinois, has shown his ability every time he's carried the ball.

In other sports, junior Kent Krumm will captain the varsity fencing team this fall, Joe Hajost will be playing basketball, and Pienta is looking forward to another season as Northwestern's No. 1 pitcher. Last spring, Dale won 5 and lost only once in Big Ten competition.

All these boys have helped the house a great deal, with Nosal serving two quarters as Th.C and Krumm acting as one of our three rush chairmen this fall.

In rushing, Gamma-Rho had its most successful rush week in several years. We are proud of a pledge class of twenty fine men, including two on academic scholarships, a number of men in the University band, a strong candidate for the varsity debating team, and two good prospects for Northwestern's baseball team.

Gamma-Rho was also proud of the fact that we were not among the fourteen fraternities at Northwestern who were fined for infractions of the university's rushing rules.

Our first party this fall, the Purple Passion Party, was a tremendous success. Brother Ken Wiesner and his pinmate Lucy Wood, a former Gamma-Rho Dream Girl, won the bottle of champagne in the annual Purple Passion Contest after a close fight with Bucky Evashavik and his date.

Gamma-Rho's next party is the annual Pledge Dream Girl Party where our pledges pick their own Dream Girl. It will be held at the Tower Club in Chicago's Civic Opera Building, one of the city's most fashionable places.

This fall, Gamma-Rho is being guided by the capable hands of Tom Hartney, who has been elected SMC. Tom, a Liberal Arts senior from Chicago, has helped the house immensely in the three previous years he has been here, and everyone is confident that his term of office will help Gamma-Rho even more. Other elected officers to serve the house are Roger Nosal, IMC, Jerry Petersen, Th.C, and Dick Waldorf, steward.

Right now, Gamma-Rho is busy preparing for our homecoming decoration. The homecoming program is being headed by Jack Kirkby and Roger Nosal. For the past five years, Gamma-Rho has been high on the voting list for the best decorations, winning the prized homecoming trophy three years ago.

In the activities field, Gamma-Rho has practically cornered the Dolphin Show, Northwestern's fall water spectacle. Jerry Petersen and Roger Rydin are co-production managers and Jack Kirkby is chief set designer. Five other brothers are also working on the show. Brother Dick Cowen is an influential member of Northwestern's interfraternity council, and Jon Dressel is editor of the Daily Northwestern, the university's fine newspaper.

Gamma-Rho was also very happy to know that we ranked third in scholarship last quarter of all Northwestern's fraternities.

Once again this year, Gamma-Rho ranks as an intramural athletic power. Last year, "the Big Red Machine" placed fourth out of some forty organizations in the intramural program. The football team this year has won its first two games, scoring 58 points. Last year, Gamma-Rho went through six successive football games before being scored on. We are hoping to at least equal last year's record. A recent article on the Daily Northwestern's sport pages places Gamma-Rho as one of the three leading contenders for the intramural football crown. Pacing our fine club this year are Bill Camstra, all-school end for three years, Mick Kowalski, a fine passer, and Bill Breyer, probably the best blocking back in school.

The house was redecorated for this fall.

New trophy cases were installed in the lounge, the kitchen was remodeled, rooms were painted, and all the couches were reupholstered. All this was made possible through the cooperation of Ray Matson, our fine business manager, and the Parents' Club.

Southern California Pledges Twenty-Three

◆ Gamma-Eta Chapter at the University of Southern California formally pledged twenty-three men into the finest Pledge Class at the University. Already they have demonstrated their ability to work as a team by defeating other fraternities in football games, partaking in house and pledge functions, and distinguishing themselves on campus.

Alphabetically Dick Blankenburg leads the list. He is an Alpha Phi Omega, and holds a University Scholarship. Charley Burtell is a first year Pharmacy student. Frosh football and an NROTC scholarship distinguish Don Caporal. Bob Coffin is a psychology major, while Gene Derieux holds a brown belt in judo.

Larry Felando is a transfer from Harbor Junior College where he played football. Jim Guyle is a junior and commander of the NROTC drill team. A transfer from Pepperdine College, Dick Hart lettered two years in basketball and also has won many singing honors. Don Holmes was a Bank of America winner, and Bruce Kitchen holds the world's interscholastic record in the 440 yard dash, and as a sophomore will be able to perform on the SC varsity this year. Jim Kline is a commerce major, while Art Korn was a baseball manager last year. Mark Kusonovich leads his own band, playing professionally; Jack Misitich is a commerce major.

Bob Nootbaar is another NROTC midshipman as is Chris Pinson, who is also a brown belt holder in judo. Al Quist was a guard in high school football, while Bart Sewell, anthropology major, distinguished himself by single-handedly stealing the UCLA Bruin. Clark Smith is an engineering major. Freshman Mike Spydell was fifth in Southern California tennis singles last year. Jerry Thomas, transfer from Harbor Junior College, is a commerce major. Rich Thompson holds a service scholarship, while Sam Uskovich has won many art awards for his talent, and is a virtual Liberace at the piano.

These twenty-three men represent almost every field of interest from athletics to music and art.

"Helping hands" is the cutline used by the Austin, Texas newspaper for the picture showing Beta-Mu (Texas) men setting up a Girl Scout camp as a help week project.

Richmond Breaks Ground For Lodge

By Gene B. Hansley

◆ Omicron Chapter at the University of Richmond has realized the beginning of its most cherished dream. Ground has been broken on Fraternity Row for its new home.

This was the fulfillment of much hard work and sacrifice on the part of the alumni in the Richmond area. Since the end of World War II, there have been efforts to raise the needed money. On May 19, 1955, a kick-off dinner for the final drive was held at the Hotel Jefferson. It was an occasion for the renewing of old friendships, and the making of new ones, but more than this, it was the beginning of a strong and active campaign on the part of every Pi Kappa Alpha in this area to restore Omicron to its rightful place on the campus. The alumni came away with a new enthusiasm to work for Omicron, and in a short time the needed money was available. The plans were submitted to a contractor, the bid was accepted, and in a blaze of glory, Omicron started down the road to a still more prominent position on campus.

The lodge system is required by the University of Richmond. There will be a large living-recreation-meeting room with a fireplace, oak beams, and a large opening onto a flagstone terrace that will be grand for outdoor parties. Plans include a fully equipped kitchen, and a bedroom for two men. There will also be a combination den-office, and a powder room. The lodge will be beautifully and tastefully furnished. Built of red brick, the lodge will be situated on a choice location on Fraternity Row. Omicron Chapter cordially invites brothers who are in this area to visit us.

The active members of Omicron are eternally grateful to our alumni. Without their help and generosity, this dream could have never been realized. Especial thanks go to Carter Coates, Guy Borkey, Clint Sheppard, Mo Nunnley, Pat Patterson, Russell T. Mann, Wilfred Gregory, Wm. H. Bagby, Bruce Rennie, Arthur W. Harrison, Temple Broaddus, Mike West, and Harold Farley. Of course, these are only a few of the many who have given untiringly of their time and resources. The student members hope that they can live up to the faith and trust that has been placed in them.

Miami University Initiates Eighteen

By James Peters

◆ Reigning as Queen over the homecoming festivities at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio is Miss Donna Dealing, pin-plant of Brother Skip Manuel. Miss Dealing is the first independent ever to win that honor.

The actives of Delta-Gamma placed second out of eighteen fraternities in scholarship last semester at Miami. The pledges finished fourth, giving the fraternity as a whole the fourth position in scholarship. Three men in the chapter earned four point averages last semester. They are: Cy Dostal, Thomas Carmichael, and George Whitesel.

The active chapter has been increased to fifty-three members with the recent activation of eighteen pledges.

On the sports side of the picture Delta-Gamma placed first out of eighteen fraternities and won the trophy in bowling last season. So far this year in football we have lost one game and won one, and the actives beat the pledges 6-2.

Socially the fraternity has been very active. Our Dad's Day celebration went over big with a supper at the house and a get-together in the evening. Also homecoming was a tremendous success. The big event on the fall calendar is the "Shield and Diamond Dance" on December 3rd.

Pi Kaps returning to Miami University this year from the armed forces include: Paul Manuel, Eugene Watson, Dale Lofgren, and William Vernich. Also returning to Miami after recovering from an accident two years ago is Richard Bortorf.

Kentucky Chapter Increases Activities

By James T. Sandidge

◆ Omega, with a never-say-die spirit, is again becoming a power on the University of Kentucky campus. In competition with over 16 fraternities, the Pi Kappa Alpha's are more than leaving their mark.

The chapter began its 1955-56 year and rush season under the able guidance of rush chairman Don Weller. After rush was over, the Pikes had pledged 16 outstanding boys.

A number of parties and dances have been planned. Already this year the Mothers' Club have had their monthly dinner meeting. There were about 125 guests from many surrounding areas. The Mothers' Club is playing a very important role in the life of the chapter.

Under the guidance of alumnus counselor John U. Field, and the one hundred per cent support of the alumni, we can't help but be an outstanding fraternal organization.

High Point Chapter Has Medal of Honor Winner

By Cecil Thomas

◆ Delta-Omega is proud to have as their pledge brother, Jacklyn (Jack) Lucas, the youngest Congressional Medal of Honor winner in the United States. Jack hails from Winston-Salem, North Carolina and is currently a senior at High Point College. His glittering military career started back in 1942. It all happened like this:

At the age of 14 Jack went to the Marine Corps recruiting station at Norfolk, Va. and enlisted by falsifying his age. Immediately he was shipped off to Paris was at the front lines slowly moving forward with the rest of his company. During the afternoon a severe barrage of mortar fire forced him to seek safety in a narrow trench along with three other Marines.

In another trench one yard away and parallel to the Marines, 11 Jap soldiers appeared from cover. In the next few seconds things happened fast. In the heavy, point-blank firing that followed, Lucas had a rifle jam. As he ducked to fix it, an oblong, black object rolled Island, S. C. for "boot training" which lasted for three months. He then remained in the U. S. for 19 months before being shipped to a small Hawaiian island for Quartermaster duty.

After 15 months of unexciting service Jack decided to take matters in his own hands. When the Fifth Amphibian Corps transports headed west, Lucas decided to go—orders or no orders! Jack boarded a ship and stowed away. After 30 days at sea he "reported aboard." The officers on board thought that this was a very unusual way of getting into combat but excused his unorthodox procedure. A few weeks later, Jack got into real battle.

On February 19, 1945 Jack landed as a rifleman with the assault force opening the Iwo Jima campaign. The going was rough on the beach as enemy guns from Mt. Suribachi sprayed death and destruction on the American forces. Shortly afterwards, as replacements moved in, the Allies forced their way up to a better position on the island.

On the second day of the seige, Lucas down beside him. It was a grenade! Without regard to his own safety he grabbed and pushed it under his body. Then another came in, he dived and pulled himself on it.

A split second later, the double blast went off and Lucas plunged into a world of darkness. He was left for dead by his comrades, but an hour later, a corpsman found him and took him back to an aid station. Upon seeing his wounds doctors doubted if he would live. His injuries included lacerations of the right hip and arm, pleura ruptured, shrapnel fragments around the heart and a heavy loss of blood.

For the next two months Jack hovered between life and death. After many intravenous injections and transfusions Jack slowly regained strength. After five months in U. S. base hospitals he was awarded the Purple Heart, but later his greatest honor was to come.

On October 5, 1945 Private First Class Jack Lucas received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President Truman at the White House. A few days later on Navy Day, Lucas shared honors with some of the nation's top military brass in a parade through the streets of New York City.

In September of '49 Jack entered Duke University, after completing high school in one year and a half. During his Junior year, Jack married Helen Solley of Birmingham, Alabama. Financial conditions later brought a temporary interruption of his education.

In January, 1955, Jack resumed his education at High Point College and it is here that he pledged IKA. He is soon to become a brother in the Delta-Omega Chapter. Lucas is the star right tackle of the Garnet and Gold's intramural football team. He is also a leader of campus activities and is maintaining a high scholastic standing. Delta-Omega points with pride to its new "brother-to-be" . . . Jack Lucas.

Georgia Pledges Thirty-Five

By Rudy Atkinson

◆ By pledging thirty-five men during the fall quarter rush week, Alpha-Mu continued its outstanding reputation on the University of Georgia campus. Only one fraternity had a larger pledge class. We believe that we have the finest boys that came through rush week this year. This is a "repeat" performance of the 1953 and 1954 rush successes.

This quarter nine boys were initiated into the fraternity. This is unusual on the Georgia campus for the fall quarter.

We expect another fine year. Our intramural football squad is the strongest squad that has been on campus in years. With three high school All-Americans and an ex-freshman player, we expect to sweep the league and win the championship.

In other sports, we again have strong teams. The volleyball championship is within our reach, and in all of the other minor sports we are powerfully represented.

"The Pikes are having a party" is a very popular phrase on the Georgia campus. After every home football game, we have entertained for the brothers and visiting alumni.

This is one architect's proposal for the National Cowboy Hall of Fame to be erected in Oklahoma City. Interested ΠΚΑ architects should write 200 Skirvin Tower, Oklahoma City for data.

Have you a candidate for

The Cowboy Hall of Fame?

By Roy P. Stewart, BO

◆ Somewhere on the honored rolls of Pi Kappa Alpha is a man—or men—who will fit qualifications for the National Cowboy Hall of Fame, to be constructed at Oklahoma City, where trustees from the seventeen western states voted to locate the shrine after nearly 100 nominations of sites were reduced to ten, then to three, then to one.

Oklahomans are raising a $1 million fund this winter for the first building in what is contemplated as an eventual $5 million Hall of Fame and Museum.

Its purpose is to give perpetual honor to men who had a hand in developing the West, whose work and whose lives stand for the best spirit and idealism of that brief, but epic historical period, in the development of land across the big river.

Although that is the area primarily concerned in the shrine, no state in the Union can be left out in interest, for it was from older states, from New England to the troubled, war torn South, that men came who aided western migration; who furnished leadership for a civilization that followed hard on wagon tracks and the winding marks of trail herds.

The idea of a tribute to the cowboy, used in its fullest sense, is similar to that of the Baseball Hall of Fame: to call attention to men as exponents of tradition. In the case of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame, that also embraced a way of life—or living—in addition to a man's personal record of achievement at his profession. Many a cowboy went on to prominence as a ranch owner, breeder of outstanding quality stock, high public official or even to prominence in a business allied to the cattle industry.

When C. A. Reynolds, chairman of the board of the H. D. Lee Co., Kansas City, Mo., a garment manufacturing firm and Colorado homesteader, got the idea of the Cowboy Hall of Fame, it started with one of the most famous cowboys of them all, the late Will Rogers. He never forgot—nor did he let his listeners forget—that he was basically a cowboy.

Reynolds, who in the past eight years has developed his idea for such a shrine into a permanent organization, whose trustees include governors and two men from each of the seventeen western states, is now devoting most of his time to the cowboy memorial.

No one has yet been voted into the Cowboy Hall of Fame. Trustees are furrowing their brows and studying criteria used in similar shrines, adding something of their own, based on individual and specific facets of the cattle industry, to make up a qualification sheet. Although perhaps more attention, initially, will be placed on persons not living, or not actively engaged in business, there will be consideration also for younger, living persons, Reynolds said, when they conform to the exacting mold to be designed.

Somewhere on the rolls of Pi Kappa Alpha there are men who will fit whatever categories the trustees come up with in the next few months. Qualifications, basically, will be publicized and also will be available from the National Cowboy Hall of Fame office at Oklahoma City. Nominations of persons can be sent there too.

It will not be an easy list to crack either, but since Pikes are on every other sort of honors list, there should be some for this one too. Charter memberships from $10 to as high as your bank account will stand—$100, $200 or $500 and above—also are available. That doesn't mean such a contributor gets into the Hall of Fame. That is available only at a purchase price with deeds, action and accomplishment as the currency.

But you can get into the building with a charter membership. Donors to the building fund will have a card, laminated, carrying a small photograph and brief biography, in a special "Donor's Room," so they and others expected as visitors, can see who helped build the memorial. Since the 37 acre site selected is on a hill, overlooking a four lane, urban bypass, over which flows 10,976 vehicles any average day from U. S. highways 66 and 77 and the Turner turnpike, it is expected to be a popular attraction.

On the same transcontinental highway as the Will Rogers memorial at Claremore, which contains some of the Lynn Riggs memorial collection now also, the cowboy shrine is expected to follow or equal the Rogers memorial in popularity. Last year that shrine was second in visitor attendance to Mount Vernon, which led the nation. The Riggs collection there honors the late playwright, an alumnus of Beta-Omicron at the University of Oklahoma, whose play "Green Grow the Lilacs" was made into the musical and the movie, "Oklahoma!"

In addition to thinking about—and nominating some of the brothers living or dead for the Cowboy Hall of Fame—some Pikes in architectural schools also will be interested in entering a national design contest for the cowboy shrine building. A prospectus with engineering and typographical information now is being prepared. It too can be secured from the Oklahoma City office of the shrine. Either amateurs or professionals may compete for cash awards and a contract for design and plans.

A "Member of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity" line on the cornerstone, underneath the name of the winning architect, would look very good, as well as inside the Hall of Fame, under the photograph or painting of someone voted there.

National Cotton Council Occupies New Headquarters

◆ Welcome, neighbor! The Good Book says, "Better is a neighbor that is near than a brother far off." Pi Kappa Alpha is doubly fortunate in having a "good neighbor" that is near who is also a good "brother in Pi Kappa Alpha" in the person of William Rhea Blake, Executive Vice President of the National Cotton Council of America.

On October 19th the new council headquarters at 1918 North Parkway, Memphis, Tennessee was dedicated. The three story brick and stone building containing 36,000 feet of floor space houses the Oscar Johnston Cotton Foundation and the Memphis offices of the National Cotton Council under the direction of Brother Blake. The property is adjacent to the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Headquarters and adds greatly to the cultural atmosphere and surroundings.

In a time of need, leaders arise. In 1938 the cotton market was rapidly disappearing, and the price had declined to nine cents a pound. Oscar Johnston, farmer, statesman, and lawyer of Greenville, Mississippi, gathered about him a small group of industry leaders and pushed his idea for an aggressive, united industry welded into a formal organization to "increase consumption of American cotton, cottonseed, and the products thereof" with a program of research and promotion, seeking to improve quality, lower costs, and increase sales. The man selected to direct the destinies of this industry-wide organization was William Rhea Blake who joined Pi Kappa Alpha while a student at Hampden-Sydney College and continued his affiliation while at the University of Virginia. After graduation from the University of Virginia, Brother Blake served in the sales promotion division of the Appalachian Power Company in Bluefield, West Virginia. In 1936 he became Executive Secretary of the Delta Council, Stoneville, Miss. In 1939 he was made the Executive Vice President of the National Cotton Council of America with headquarters in Memphis. Since that time he has developed the organization into a world-renowned and respected representative of the cotton production, research, and promotion industry. A graduate of Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration, he is in frequent demand for technical consultation by Congress and various governmental agencies.

There are four major program divisions in the Cotton Council. Together they cover the production and processing of cotton from the breeding of new varieties to the purchase of cotton products by the ultimate consumer.

The production and marketing division leads in research to obtain better types of cotton, to improve fiber quality, and to increase production efficiency and techniques from seed breeding until the ginned bale is delivered to the mill. The utilization research division pushes research to get a better product from the mill to the consumer—through improved methods and through constant checking on consumer preferences in order to give the customer what he wants.

The sales promotion division uses every tool of modern advertising and promotion to carry the story of cotton's advantages to the consumer and to those who choose which fiber they will make into consumer products. The foreign trade division is constantly working to increase consumption in overseas markets which carry a tremendous potential for American cotton.

Supporting these program divisions are four major service units which operate in special fields, such as public relations, to assist the program divisions.

The work of the Council is directed and financed by the entire raw cotton industry. A body of delegates representing and elected by all six basic interests of the industry, elects a board of directors. The directors, in turn, elect officers. Industry unity is preserved by a basic rule that requires a two-thirds majority of each of the six interests, voting separately, before any policy action affecting the industry can be taken. The program is financed by payments from individual producers and ginner, merchants, crushers, warehousemen, and spinners. Payment is based on the amount of cotton produced or the amount of cottonseed, or cotton products, processed.

"Research, education, and promotion are the backbone of any farm program," stated Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson in a telegram of congratulations at the time of dedication.

Garner M. Lester, AI (Millsaps), of Jackson, Miss. is a trustee of the National Cotton Council. Talmadge St. John, FΘ (Miss. State) & A (Virginia), is manager of Industrial and Cottonseed Products Sales Promotion.

Lehigh Has Large Homecoming

By Leigh M. Holt

◆ Due to the advance planning and work done by the members of Gamma-Lambda Chapter, a record crowd of alumni returned to Bethlehem for the week-end's festivities, November 19th. Friday night the men spent their evening meeting old friends and acquaintances at the annual stag party.

With the dawning of Saturday, men and families attended a luncheon at the chapter house and then proceeded to the football stadium for the Lehigh-Lafayette football game. Being the longest continued rivalry in the U. S., the game is usually a good one packed with many thrills and memories for all. This gave the alumni a chance to break out their old coonskin coats and brought back many happy thoughts of good times past.

This year we were honored to have President John Hippel as our week-end guest and main speaker at the alumni banquet.

Harold A. Young (l.), past president of the National Cotton Council and Rhea Blake, I (Hampden-Sydney), Executive Vice President, unveiled memorial plaque at dedication of the Oscar Johnston Foundation Building adjacent to HKA headquarters in Memphis.

Executive Secretary Lynn Completes A Decade of Service

By Roy D. Hickman, BA

Note: By request of the Supreme Council and with the collaboration of our printer and engraver, this page was inserted in the magazine without the knowledge of the editor.

♦ Visit our National Headquarters, 577 University Boulevard, Memphis, Tennessee, and you immediately feel the force of a quiet, dignified, effective individual. That person is Robert D. Lynn. A good look at the grounds, the magnificent building (a quarter of a million dollars) and the inside appointments, and you are convinced that this man has done a remarkable job. During his tenure of office, Pi Kappa Alpha has had a sound growth. The 1954 Convention found 30 per cent more chapters answering the roll call than at the 1946 Convention, the year Robert Lynn became Executive Secretary.

Along with this growth, there has been a sound financial and administrative organization, completing in this period the erection of the memorial building.

In a surprise presentation at a recent meeting of the Supreme Council of Pi Kappa Alpha in Colorado Springs, Colorado, Executive Secretary Lynn was honored by his many friends in the Fraternity with a gift of a gold Rolex automatic watch upon completion of a decade of service to the Fraternity in an official capacity. The National President, John F. E. Hippel, in making the presentation, remarked: "Nothing I have done during my term of office has given me greater personal satisfaction than having the privilege of presenting this small token of gratitude."

Since 1949, Executive Secretary Lynn has served in a dual capacity, that of Executive Secretary and Editor of the Fraternity's official publication, The Shield and Diamond.

What is the background of this remarkable person? To know something about him helps you to more fully appreciate the man and the work that he is doing. By birth, he is a Tennessean, born in the town of Brighton on October 20, 1913. He has lived in both North and South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Tennessee. His record at Presbyterian College, Clinton, South Carolina and as a member of Mu Chapter is how we first knew of his interest in Pi Kappa Alpha, although he comes from a family of Pi Kappa Alphas. His father, Dr. L. Ross Lynn, is a member of Theta Chapter, Southwestern at Memphis, and for twenty-five years Dr. Lynn was President of Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton, South Carolina. Brother Lynn's two brothers are both members of Mu Chapter—Ross

Executive Secretary Robert D. Lynn

M. Lynn, Headmaster of Memphis University School and Dr. Matthew Lynn, Pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Midland, Texas.

Brother Lynn, while at Presbyterian College, served as President of his Chapter, President of the YMCA, of Blue Key and a Cadet Major in the ROTC. He participated in football, basketball and track. In his senior year, he was captain of the college basketball team. On good authority, Bob was considered a very excellent athlete.

He received his bachelor's degree summa cum laude in 1934 from Presbyterian College, and his master's degree in Sociology from the College of William and Mary. In 1934 he received Pi Kappa Alpha's award for the most outstanding undergraduate.

After leaving college, he taught and coached, and later became a member of the faculty of Presbyterian College. It was from here that he was persuaded to become Assistant Executive Secretary of the Fraternity, and in 1946 succeeded Brother Freeman Hart as Executive Secretary. He has served in his work on various committees in the National Inter-Fraternity Conference and College Fraternity Secretaries Association. During 1953-54 he served as President of the College Fraternity Editors Association.

In Memphis, he is an Elder in the Evergreen Presbyterian Church and resides at 1971 Mignon Street, with his very fine wife, Evelyn McDowell Lynn and three children, Sarah Frances, Sandy and Betty Jane.

Visit our National Headquarters and it will help you appreciate Robert D. Lynn, our Executive Secretary.

Why Go To College?

By Louis C. LaMotte, M
President, Presbyterian Junior College

◆ Why go to college? For thousands of you young people today, this is a very timely question and a most important one. For you it is a personal question: "Shall I go to college?" If you are ever to attend college, you must decide quickly, for generally it is not possible for a person to attend college late in life. When a boy has begun a business career, he cannot often drop it and go off to college. A girl who has married cannot pack her husband off back home to his people and start out to college. Unless young people attend college shortly after high school, most of them never will.

I am not one who thinks a college education is the only thing in the world. There are some things it will not do for you. To keep a balance, I'll mention three things a college education will not do, and three things it will do.

First, a college education will not take the place of work. The idea that one goes to college to get a degree, and then rides that degree to a plushy job where hard work can be avoided, is wrong. You don't go to college to get out of work, but to be able to accomplish bigger things by your expenditure of time and effort during your life. A college education is just a tool which you can use to do more and better work.

Suppose one of you boys had to go down to the woodpile and cut some kindling. You can do it with a dull ax, but you'll have to hit more licks and harder licks and it will take a longer time. Now it is wise to take a few minutes before you start and go by the old grindstone and get a keen edge on the ax. Then in the same time you can cut more wood with fewer strokes and less effort. That is what a college education will do for you. It will enable you to do more and better work throughout the years of your life; but it will not take the place of honest work in the life of anyone.

A college education won't take the place of work, and it won't take the place of natural ability. We all have different capacities and varying talents. A college education will not change that. Isn't it a blessing we aren't all alike? If everybody liked the same things, then every girl would pick your boy friend and every boy would want your best girl. We don't all like to do the same things, and that's good; for if everyone wanted to become a doctor, there would be no one to tend except his own children. If everyone wanted to be a preacher, there wouldn't be any congregations. So we choose different occupations in life. And I believe we may have abundantly happy and useful lives in many callings. It is not necessarily true that a boy who goes to college and becomes a doctor will be happier than the boy who does not go to college and becomes a farmer. A college professor is not necessarily happier than a carpenter. All of us may live good lives if we have the right inner ideas and attitudes.

A college education will not change your natural aptitudes. There are about two out of a hundred men who really cannot learn to sing. Likewise there are some of you who have no aptitude for college. You should take some other form of training. Maybe you would rather learn a trade or to operate some machine. According to the figures published by the President's Commission on Higher Education, based on tests given ten million men in the armed services, there are 51 of you young people in every hundred who should not attempt a regular college course. There are 49 of each hundred who should complete two years in junior college; and 32 of these should take two years more, or four years of college training.

College will not change your natural ability, but it will develop your talents to the fullest extent possible. I imagine I can hear some of you saying, "I know a person whom I admire very much, and he didn't go to college. I think his life is a good life; I'd like to be like him. And I know a person who did go to college, and I'd rather be like the person who didn't go than like the person who did go." That doesn't alter the force of what I am saying. Perhaps the person whom you do not admire had very much less natural talent with which to start. By going to college he greatly increased the effectiveness and worthwhileness of his life. If your friend who did not go to college had done so, perhaps his life would have been even more worthwhile. College doesn't change natural ability, but it does utilize it to the fullest extent.

I imagine I hear someone say: "Look at Abraham Lincoln. He didn't have any education, and he was a great man." Yes, that is true. Lincoln taught himself; after splitting rails all day, he would take a charred coal from the hearth, and by the firelight would write on a smooth board he had made. Yet, who can say? Maybe Lincoln would have been an even greater man if he had received a college education. Maybe he could have prevented the Civil War and solved the slavery problem as Wilberforce did in England without resort to arms.

College education does not take the place of ability. It will train and develop that ability to the fullest extent.

College education will not take the place of character. Character is what you are when you are by yourself. Your character is what you know yourself to be when you are alone beneath a clear blue sky and feel deep down within you that you do want to be real and honest and kind and do what good you can in this world for your fellow man. You must be a real person—or, with God's help, become one—or a college education will but paint a veneer upon you. A college education can make a crook a sharper crook. Where maybe before he would have robbed piggy banks, afterward he might become a stock swindler.

If you have character, a college education will help you live the good life. You can more clearly judge ethical and moral values. You should be able to guide your life with greater wisdom and know how to apply principles to situations. You should have greater understanding of others and know how to get along with them and work with them; but nothing will take the place of character.

Now, three things a college education will do for you:

A college education is an economic resource. By that I mean a college education will help you get more jobs and better jobs, and will help you make good on the jobs you take. I saw some statistics recently about officers during the war. Out of one hundred men who became officers, about eighty had a college education. Only three men among each hundred officers had only a grammar school education. I admire those men who worked up the hard way. They must have had superior ability, faithfulness to duty, and courage. Yet the fact remains that when our nation had a big job to do, and the best men had to be chosen in a hurry for big and responsible tasks, the nation picked eighty men out of a hundred with collegiate education. They gave these men a chance to make good because they were well prepared. Their education must have helped them make good, because many of them advanced in rank. So it is also in civilian life. Your college education will give you chances at better jobs and help you make good at the jobs you get.

It costs money to go to college. All of you young people have to eat, and that costs money. Books and tuition cost. I believe the best investment any of you can make of the time and money required is to invest in yourself. Money may be lost. Inflation may destroy its value. What you put into an education cannot be taken from you as long as you live. It is always a reserve factor. It gives added security in life. Your job may fail. Your property may return no rent. A college education will always help you find more and better positions.

Your earning power will be greater, so that you can provide a better living for your family. Although a college graduate spends four years and much money getting his education, still by the time he has been working five years he will probably have earned enough money to pay all his college expenses and have more to spend than the man who went to work without going to college.

I have mentioned the added economic advantage first because I think it not so important as two other things a college training will do for you.

A college education will give you greater satisfaction throughout life. Your life will mean more to you. First, you will have an added confidence and a quiet poise as you meet life's problems. There will be a sense of achievement and personal fitness. The only way one may get a college education is to earn it, and there is a proper pride in accomplishment.

Then also you will get more out of life. It is a fact that you will see more and hear more. You see not only with your eyes but with your mind also. You hear not only with your ears but with your mind also. Let me explain. Suppose I took a doctor in my car, drove around four miles, stopped, and asked, "What did you see?" He would begin telling me things he had noticed. Maybe he saw a group of fine, healthy young people. At one house perhaps he had noticed some anemic children who looked as if they were not getting enough milk. Another place he would notice tin cans ready to breed mosquitoes. Because he knows matters concerning health, the doctor would see these things. Suppose I took a farmer. He would see the crops, the soil, the methods of agriculture. Suppose I took a real estate man. He would see lots, possible subdivisions, building sites. Each man would see what he knows about. We see with our minds as well as our eyes. The more you know and understand, the more you will see and hear through life. A college education will give you a fuller, more satisfying life.

Last, and most important, a college education will enable you to be of more use in the world, to render a greater service to your fellow men. That is the true measure of life.

We don't honor a man as truly great unless he does something to benefit others. Maybe once men honored a man because he could "beat up" everybody else. More than three thousand years ago Sargon I was powerful enough to boss everyone in his country. He made them fight for him. He marched from country to country, plundering as he went, until he came to the cliffs of the Dog River in Syria and cut his name there where you can still see it. Men may have honored him then; but when Hitler tried to act like that, we held him in contempt. The world has a little bit learned the truth in these words of Jesus, when He said, "If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all." Only men who serve their fellow men are truly great.

Those men are truly great who do something to benefit others. They may defend their country, discover some new means of healing disease, invent a useful mechanism, develop an industry, organize distribution, teach, preach, or in some other way serve—these are the great men. A college education will help you serve your fellow men. Not only in the big things and in the spectacular places, but in your everyday lives. You should be a better father or mother because of a college education. You should be a wiser farmer or run your store better. A college education will make you a more self-reliant and capable citizen who can be of more use in your community, in your business, in your church.

I urge each of you earnestly to consider going to college. You must first want to go. It is your life. A responsibility of your adulthood is the necessity to decide for yourself. Sometimes fathers and mothers talk to me about a son's or daughter's coming to college. "Unless he wants to come," I say, "there is no use sending him." Then I quote that old saying, "You can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make him drink."

If you want a college education, you should have it. The President's Commission said that educating young people, who want a college education and are prepared for it, adds to our national resources. Did you ever stop to consider the most valuable thing our country produces? What is it? Steel? Cotton? Automobiles? No! you are, you young people. The greatest wealth of America is its people. If you secure a college education, you add to the common well-being. That is why by taxes and by gifts the colleges are built up. It is to help young people prepare to serve others. In the catalog of the college I serve there is a statement: "Any young person with a good mind, a healthy body, a sincere desire for an education, and a willingness to work and economize, should be able to secure an education."

You must want a college education first. It is your life. What will you do with it?

Director; George W. Loomis, President of District 9; and William K. Mathews, President of the Kansas City Alumni Association. A very inspiring message on Pi Kappa Alpha was given by Brother Scott, whose ability to invoke the interest of his listeners on the important and interesting phases of the fraternity is always remarkable.

The Train Date has long been a popular and widespread rushing function with Beta-Gamma Chapter as well as other fraternities on the University of Kansas campus. An invitation to the Train Date, which is not recognized by the IFC as a part of official rush week, indicates the rushee as preferential rushing material and the serious interest of a fraternity in him as a potential pledge.

The Train Date, which originated when fraternities met their favorite rushees at the local railroad station and escorted them to the campus for the start of rush week, now takes the form of a banquet, usually held in neighboring Kansas City. The purpose of the Train Date is twofold: one, it is the gathering of favorite rushees for last minute rushing on a high plane; and, two, it is to acquaint the actives, pledges, and rushees with the alumni of PiKA. It is a "jolly fine" evening of fellowship that creates a renewed feeling of interest for the alumni and a good introduction to the fraternity for the rushees.

The Train Date is a very effective instrument of rushing. Its simplicity of operation indicates that it could be adapted to any type of local IFC rushing program with equal success. The alumni enjoy it; it gives them a chance to be a college man for an evening at least once a year. There is no finer way to combine the richness of alumni spirit with the vigor of rushing than through a meeting of this type. Continued gatherings of this type, year after year, have paid large dividends in these two fields of fraternity endeavor in the Kansas City area.

Georgetown Plans For Golden Anniversary

By James Dickinson

◆ Alpha-Lambda Chapter has begun the long range planning which will result in the high point of the year, our 50th anniversary. Celebration will begin with a stag banquet on February 17, 1956. All alumni of Alpha-Lambda are urged to attend. We are looking forward to hearing as our principal speaker Joe C. Scott, National Rush Chairman. We want to accommodate as many as possible in the chapter house so we can all be together during the festivities.

We are glad to welcome back to Georgetown College two brothers of Alpha-Lambda who have accepted positions on the college staff. They are Ronald Pinchback, assistant coach, and Ken Findley, public relations.

Wesley Stigall was elected president for the second time of Phi Alpha Theta, history fraternity.

Richard Deen was elected president of Gamma Sigma Epsilon, chemical fraternity. Dick is also a member of Beta Beta Beta, biological fraternity and was recently accepted by the University of Louisville School of Medicine.

Kansas City Alumni Hold Rush Dinner

By Richard N. Bills
Kansas Rush Chairman

◆ Over 100 people attended the 1955 Train Date Dinner of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity sponsored by the Kansas City Alumni Association, September 3rd. This important and final rushing activity of the summer for the Kansas City area was held at the Town House, location of the yearly Founders' Day banquets. Counted among the guests were actives and rushees from Beta-Gamma and Alpha-Nu chapters as well as alumni from approximately 25 chapters throughout the country.

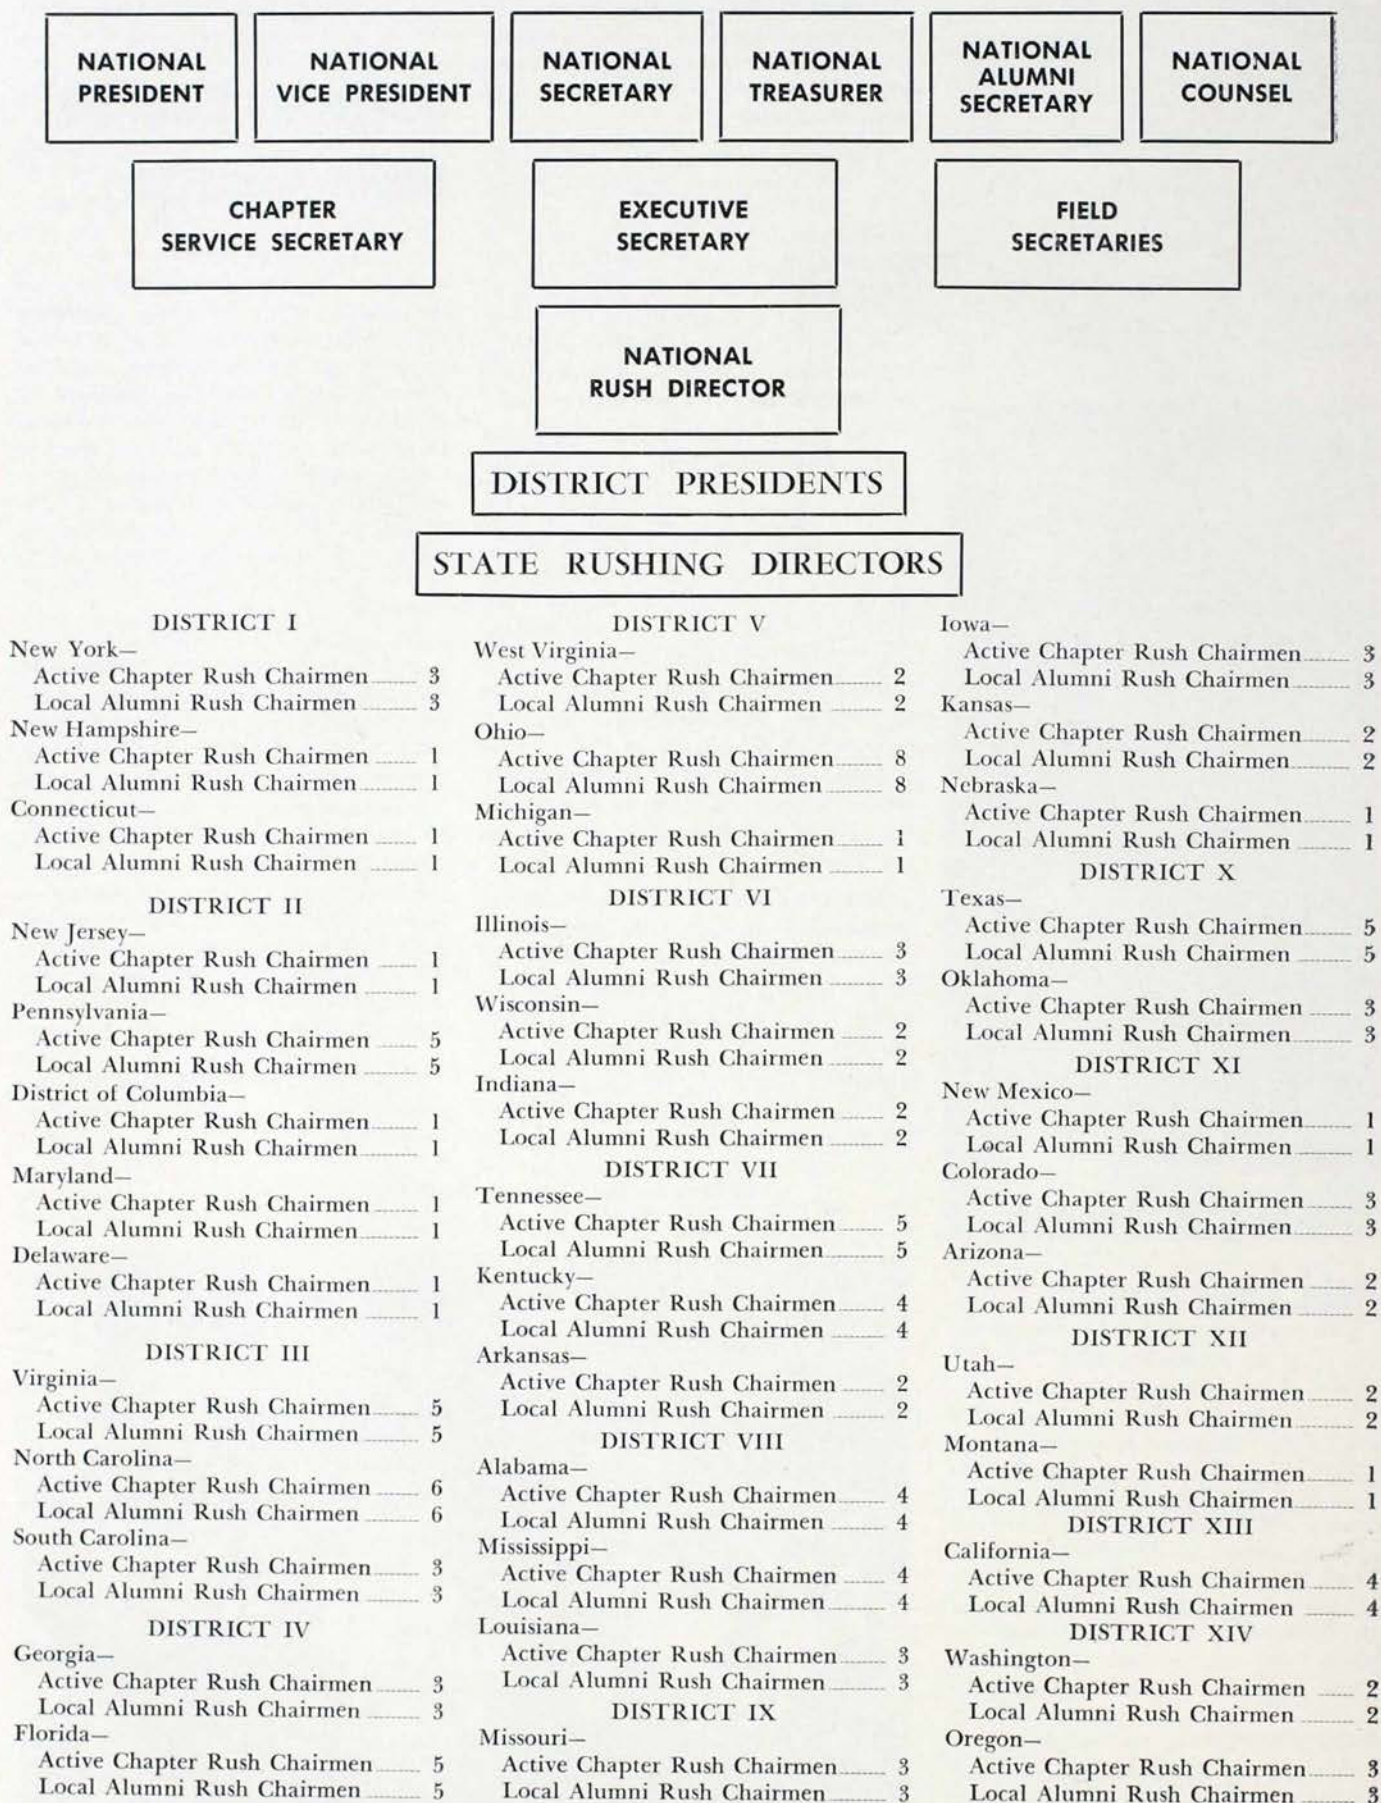

Heading the list of distinguished visitors were Joe C. Scott, National Rushing

1955 Train Date Summer Rush Party of Beta-Gamma Chapter in Kansas City.

National Rushing Table of Organization

SUPREME COUNCIL

The National Rush Director

♦ The results of our National Rushing Program, as they have come to us so far, are most encouraging. I want to express my sincere gratitude to the alumni, the men of the active chapters and the National Office Staff for their dedicated efforts which have resulted in improved numbers and quality of rushees and pledges.

Joe C. Scott

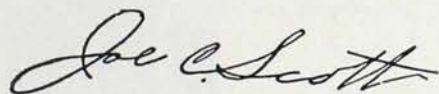

It is wonderful to see closer unity developing between the alumni and active chapters. This unity has, and will always be, the major factor in the success of our program. The alumni, realizing how much their active chapter means to them in fellowship and memories, are also becoming aware that they need to help the chapters in the selection of rushees because these rushees may eventually become their brothers and associates.

This continued revival of the IKA spirit of friendship and cooperation is evident in every section of the country. The plans and programs which we have set forth are being used or tailored to fit individual situations.

Increased attention is being focused on building new chapter houses and repairing and remodeling existing houses. Improved housing in itself will be a major asset in attracting qualified rushees.

Although we do not yet have an exact count of pledges this year, we can project the reports already received and estimate that the number will be about 3,000.

I thank every one of you for your assistance. It is such a joy to work with you in our program to advance the principles of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Rushing Results Reported To National Rush Director As of Oct. 19, 1955

ZETA (Tenn. U., Knoxville) — David McSweeney, SMC and Frank Marsh, Jr., Local Alumni Rush Chm., reporting: We welcome 25 young pledges to our chapter this year.

ETA (Tulane U., New Orleans, La.) — Norman McNeil, SMC and William H. Davis, Alumnus Counselor, reporting: Thirty-three men pledged during one of Eta's most successful rush weeks. Expect more when "Silent" period is over. Rush Pamphlet great.

SIGMA (Vanderbilt U., Nashville, Tenn.) — Franklin Ferguson, SMC, reporting: Thirty-three committed, expect more. Things look great. Thanks for your help. Formal pledging, second semester.

UPSILON (Ala. Tech, Auburn) — Robert W. O'Neill reporting: Pledged 38, expect more in a week. Everyone is very much impressed with Rush Pamphlet.

OMEGA (Kentucky U., Lexington) — Alexander Innes, SMC and John Field, State Rush Chairman, reporting: Have 15 new pledges and expect another 12 or 15 during informal rush.

ALPHA-THETA (West Va. U., Morgantown) — H. T. Burfield, Rush Chairman, reporting: Twenty-eight fine men were pledged. One of the finest rush weeks in years. Thanks for your fine cooperation.

ALPHA-IOTA (Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.) — Read Jones, SMC and G. M. Lester, Local Alumni Rush Chairman, reporting: We pledged 33 freshmen — higher than any other fraternity on campus.

ALPHA-KAPPA (Mo. Sch. of Mines, Rolla) — C. Alvin Wentz, Jr., Rush Chairman, reporting: We have 23 pledges at the present time.

ALPHA-MU (Ga. U., Athens) — Rudy Atkerson, Jr., reporting: Pledged 34 exceptionally fine boys. Out of 19 fraternities on campus, we stood second in number of men pledged and first in quality.

ALPHA-NU (Mo. U., Columbia) — Tom Willis, Rush Chairman, reporting: We have a pledge class of 26 fine men.

ALPHA-OMICRON (Southwestern U., Georgetown, Texas) — Victor Platt, IMC, reporting: We have a pledge class of 13 outstanding young men.

ALPHA-RHO (Ohio State U., Columbus) — Murray Leeper, Rush Chairman, reporting: Most successful rush week in three years — have added 24 good men to our pledge class and hope to get 10 more. (Ed. Note: Alpha-Rho Chapter had a good idea: They presented an inexpensive Date Book to all rushees in which he could list all of his dates, and the book gave the rushee suggestions on how to handle himself during house visits. This book kept the name of Pi Kappa Alpha before the rushees all during rush.)

ALPHA-PHI (Iowa State College, Ames) — David Dietz, Rush Chairman, reporting: We had the most successful rush in years, pledging 21 men.

ALPHA-OMEGA (Kansas State College, Manhattan) — Al Kaine, Rush Chairman, reporting: Thanks to the wonderful cooperation of everyone concerned, we pledged 26 men during rush week.

BETA-ALPHA (Pa. State College, State College, Pa.) — John W. Kraft reporting: Seventeen men wearing pledge pins. We believe they are one of the finest groups ever.

BETA-GAMMA (Kansas U., Lawrence) — Gordon Ewy, Rush Chairman and Richard Bills, State Rush Chairman, reporting: We had to close our doors at the end of preliminary rush — we were full. We had to turn away five men we could not accommodate. Housemother Helen M. "Monty" Failing reported it this way: "Dear Mr. Scott: Thanks to the efforts of you, Dick Bills, Gordon Ewy and others who rushed for Beta-Gamma Chapter, we have pledged 21 outstanding boys. Our rush week was very short, as we had our pledge class filled by Monday night, September 5, our house being one of the two which closed the rushing in that length of time. So much good material went through rush this year. I know the boys would want to join me in thanking you for the inspiring message you left with our rushees at the Train Date in Kansas City — you will never know just what it meant to our chapter for you to be present at that dinner."

BETA-EPSILON (Western Reserve U., Cleveland, Ohio) — Gerald Fuerst, SMC, reporting: We have pledged six men up to date.

BETA-ETA (Illinois U., Champaign)

—Harold Fox, IMC, reporting: We have a total of 21 men in our pledge class—the finest we have had to date.

BETA-KAPPA (Emory U., Emory University, Ga.)—Charles J. Simon, IMC, reporting: Have a pledge class of 22 outstanding men.

BETA-MU (Texas U., Austin)—Edgar Watkins, Rush Chairman, reporting: We are happy to announce a pledge class of 29 outstanding men.

BETA-OMICRON (Oklahoma U., Norman)—Gerry East, Rush Chairman, reporting: In spite of many obstacles, we have already pledged 23 fine young men. The rate of occupancy of our house is greater now than it has ever been this early in the semester. We are continuing with our rushing program on a year-round basis.

BETA-SIGMA (Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Pa.)—Alton Woody, Rush Chairman, reporting: Twelve men pledged the first evening, others have taken pins since that time swelling the ranks to 19.

BETA-PHI (Purdue U., West Lafayette, Ind.)—Roy Hofer reporting: Pledged eight good men. Looks like best year we have ever had.

GAMMA-ETA (Southern Cal. U., Los Angeles)—Joel Compton, SMC, reporting: We are proud to announce a pledge class of 23 men, one of the largest in eight years.

GAMMA-XI (Wash. State College, Pullman)—Richard Collins, Rush Chairman, reporting: We needed 16 new pledges to fill the house and we have 18 fine new men. Congratulations on the new rush pamphlet—it's great!

GAMMA-RHO (Northwestern U., Evanston, Ill.)—Kenneth B. Wiesner, Rush Chairman, reporting: We have pledged 17 fine men and expect to add to the class during open rush.

GAMMA-PSI (La. Tech, Ruston)—Charles Connaughtas reporting: Pledged 48 last night, Oct. 11, expect more tonight. This is the second largest pledge class in our history.

DELTA-ALPHA (George Wash. U., Washington, D. C.)—Joseph F. Hince, SMC and Fred Stevenson, State Rush Chairman, reporting: We pledged 21 fine men—the largest number pledged on the campus.

DELTA-OMICRON (Drake U., Des Moines, Iowa)—Bernard Einhaus reporting: We pledged 23 men and expect five more next week. We expect to have 60 men within next month.

DELTA-PI (San Jose State College, San Jose, Calif.)—Mark Niemela, Rush Chairman, reporting: Pledged 21 outstanding men. Found rushing pamphlets great aid to effective rushing.

DELTA-PHI (Colorado Sch. of Mines, Golden)—Paul W. Bonhann, Jr., Rush Chairman, reporting: So far we have 11 pledges.

DELTA-CHI (Omaha U., Omaha, Neb.)—Chuck French, SMC, reporting: We pledged 26 men and are proud to report that all but two were on our first preference list.

Memphis Alumni Entertain

By Dr. John Beard

◆ On August 27, 1955 the Memphis Alumni of Pi Kappa Alpha entertained the members and pledges of our chapters in the future with a Rush Party. One hundred sixty-two members, pledges, and guests gathered at the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Building. Of this number there were 81 rushees who were to attend sixteen colleges and universities over this country. While at the national office, slices of iced watermelon were served under the shade of the trees on the spacious lawn. The watermelons came from the farm of Dr. Bunyan Webb, an alumnus of Theta Chapter.

The remainder of the afternoon and evening was spent at Fairfield, the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Michael in Germantown, Tennessee. The Michael's have a son, J. B., Jr., who is a member of Alpha-Delta Chapter at Georgia Tech, and they with their two lovely daughters were most generous hosts and hostesses.

Brothers and rushees alike participated in tennis and swimming, and when it came time for the chicken barbecue supper there was not only participation but competition in some instances. A greater portion of the supper was prepared by the members of the Theta (Southwestern at Memphis) Auxiliary, an indispensable group of ladies who have a real interest in Pi Kappa Alpha.

Entertainment by members of Delta-Zeta Chapter (Memphis State) together with the impromptu singing of a few fraternity songs added zest to the fleeting minutes of the night.

High Point Names Dream Girl

By Cecil Thomas, Jr.

◆ The Delta Omega Chapter held its annual Dream Girl Ball April 12 on the Roof Garden of the Robert E. Lee Hotel in Winston-Salem, N. C. Pikas and their dates dined and danced to the fine music of Max Westerband and his orchestra. Highlighting the evening's events was the crowning of the Dream Girl, Miss Faye Kendall of High Point, N. C.

The Pikes' flashy softball team finished in the runner-up position in the High Point College intramural league. We rallied after a slow start to nail down a berth in the playoffs for the gold cup. The team's main asset was a combination of fancy base running and that "never say die" PKA spirit.

Miss Norma Jaynes, Epsilon-Zeta Chapter Dream Girl.

East Tennessee Elects Dream Girl

By David Blankenbeckler

◆ Norma Jaynes, one of the most beautiful girls on the East Tennessee State College campus, was elected Dream Girl of Epsilon-Zeta Chapter. She was presented at the Dream Girl Dinner-Dance held this past May 20th. Norma is a junior from Oak Ridge, Tennessee. She is a member of the Kappa Delta Sorority and is secretary of the East Tennessee Student Body. Norma was chosen from four candidates. As the baby chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha, we are proud that Norma Jaynes is our first Dream Girl.

Honoring Epsilon-Zeta Chapter with their presence were some of the alumni of Johnson City including Dan Wexler, Nelson Burris, Hal Littleford, K. D. Hurley, and Perry Hunter.

The Alpha Delta Pi Sorority presented the chapter with a gold tray as a token of welcoming Pi Kappa Alpha to the campus. An award was given John Hyder for being the best pledge of the former local Sigma Phi Alpha Fraternity. Another honoree of the local was Charles Sams, who was presented with the outstanding member award.

Delta-Chi's rush program paid off with these fine pledges.

This is one of the rush parties that proved to be lots of fun and effective.

Planned Rush Pays Off At Omaha

By Joe Byrne

◆ During summer and fall at Delta-Chi Chapter, University of Omaha, the Pi Kaps emphasized rush. A classic rush program was planned and organized by Lew Radcliffe, rush chairman. Pi Kappa Alpha rush parties highlighted the rushee's summer social life. Planned and spontaneous swims, picnics, dances, fishing trips and water skiing excursions were part of the summer rush program. The summer was climaxed with an all day party at a lakeside lodge.

With the start of school and the formal rush parties, the party programs of the Pikes were impressive. Inspirational speeches were given by sponsors and important alumni, and a large portion of each party was set aside for personal rushing. The two most entertaining phases of the party were provided by a song and dance act performed by Brothers Jim Plaster and Max Harrington, and Doug Postlewait's movies of a few of the Pike activities last year. A film of the chapter trip last December to see Omaha University win in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Florida was also shown.

The result of this rush program was the largest pledge class on campus—twenty-eight. Delta-Chi members and pledges won seven out of the eight class offices of president and vice president in recent class elections.

Rensselaer Reconditions Chapter House

By Dick Kaeyer

◆ The friendly white house on the hill took on a new appearance this fall as the brothers joined together in a record-breaking work party to paint the house. Our house manager, Jim Nerrie, organized the brothers into efficient groups of painters, scrapers, and repair men. Within ten days, the house had received not only a new coat of paint, but had undergone all necessary exterior repair. The painting spark touched off such a blaze of enthusiasm among the work group that the house decorating didn't cease until the fraternity house had a repaired porch and a new shingled roof.

The project didn't always have easy going. We had no sooner removed a large section of the old roof when Mother Nature decided to play tricks and sent us a drenching rain which not only soaked our beds on the third floor but leaked into our second floor rooms. The main damage done was to our craftsmen's prides, but this was more than offset by the touch of humor and the increased effort exerted to finish the project.

The interior of our house also took on the "new look." Last year's senior class gave us a going away present of new rugs for our halls and living room. Many brothers also elaborately decorated their rooms.

Our efforts received their well deserved reward, for Pi Kappa Alpha was a near record breaking favorite on the freshman class preference cards. All hats are off to Jim Nerrie who did a wonderful job of promoting the grand slam work party which is responsible for a fraternity spirit which is unrivaled on the R.P.I. campus.

Los Angeles Alumni Hold Outstanding Meet

By Herbert Brown, Vice-Pres.
Los Angeles Alumnus Chapter

◆ The June meeting of the Gamma-Eta Alumni Association was a standout for two reasons. First, the unusual locale and program drew the chapter's biggest turnout since World War II, and second, the honored guest was Anthony Herbert, PiKap pledge at the University of Pittsburgh, and the most decorated soldier of the Korean War.

Over 80 enthusiastic PiKA alumni attended the event, which was held at the world-famous Helms Hall. This is an athletic shrine in Los Angeles which contains pictures, trophies, and mementoes of famous athletes the world over. Paul Helms, who sponsors Helms Hall, is an internationally recognized figure in the Olympic Games and other athletic activities.

All parts of Helms Hall were made available for the inspection of sports-minded PiKaps. Highlight of the program was a 45 minute film in full color showing the thrilling moments of the last Olympic Games at Helsinki.

The outstanding program was capably arranged by Dwight Tudor, past president of the Alumnus Chapter; Paul Benner, current president, and Bob Armstrong, Gamma-Eta alumnus who is Director of Personnel for Helms Bakeries, Inc.

Tony Herbert, the guest of honor, told the PiKaps about his new book, Conquest to Nowhere, a front-lines documentary of the Korean War that is gaining favorable attention from critics everywhere. Bob Niemann, Herbert's associate, gave the amazing summary of Herbert's exploits in the war. During 13 months in the Army, from October 1950 to November 1951, Tony was awarded 29 medals, including the Combat Infantry Badge, three presidential unit citations, three silver stars, four purple hearts, one Korean Campaign Medal with six Battle Stars, the U. N. Medal, the Syngman Rhee Citation, the Turkish Ozanu, the Bronze Star with V for Valor, the Distinguished Unit Citation, the Ville de Paris Medal, and the Medal from The Netherlands.

Dream Girl Wins Honors

By Claude Doig

◆ Barbara Farr, Dream Girl of 1954, was chosen Homecoming Queen, October 15, 1955 at Montana State College. This also gives her the title of Miss Montana State. Barb is a member of the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, and is a senior majoring in Home Economics. Also included in the seven Homecoming candidates was Jean Welch, IIBΦ, our 1953 Dream Girl.

This summer the house got an interior face lifting job. The complete interior was painted and papered. The main attraction is the new white drapes.

In campus elections Gary Cotton was elected Commissioner of Athletics and SMC Jack Meyer was unanimously chosen Commissioner of Music. The IKA pledge class was the high pointer on the Interfraternity grade roster.

To start the ball rolling this year we're getting a Montana Alumni Association under way. Gene Haugle, IX, an Oklahoma A. & M. graduate, is organizing a state alumni association. Brother Haugle is employed in Billings, Montana, with the Gulf Oil Corporation. We are trying to get an up-to-date mailing list, so if there is a change in your address drop a line to either Gene Haugle, Box 1815, Billings, Montana or Pi Kappa Alpha, 502 South Grand, Bozeman, Montana.

Miss Barbara Farr is Dream Girl of Gamma-Kappa Chapter, Montana State College.

Clarence E. Adams, AΔ (Georgia Tech), is now manager of the Compensation and Liability Division, Underwriting Department, Manufacturers and Merchants Indemnity Company.

The outstanding Pi Kap Award at Beta-Upsilon (Colo.) is presented to Sam Jeffers (l.) by Don Harlan (center) as SMC John Brown presides.

San Jose State Pledges Nineteen

By Al Tisch

◆ Delta-Pi Chapter, San Jose State College, recently completed its fall rushing with the pledging of nineteen fine men. Rush Captain Mark Niemela concluded the rush period functions with a steak barbecue. More than fifty rush-ees and the active chapter enjoyed the expert cooking of Lou Gambello, former army cook. After-dinner entertainment was provided by Chuck Carle and his banjo, Paul Thomsen with his guitar, and Hal Spaulding who did a humorous pantomime of a surgical operation.

Review of Delta-Pi's achievements for the 1954-55 college year include such laurels as second place in interfraternity scholarship. Another second was for the interfraternity "Spring Sing," in which each fraternity presented two choral selections. The Pikes were led by Brother Paul Thomsen in the singing of the well known Civil War tune, "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and a spiritual entitled, "Were You There."

The year will also be remembered for the beginning of a new traditional event, the Firemen's Ball. With more than sixty couples in attendance, the first annual Firemen's Ball was held at the Ben Lomond Country Club, located in the beautiful Santa Cruz mountains, forty miles southwest of San Jose.

In the field of sports, the Pikes won first place in the interfraternity softball league, defeating the Theta Chi team in the playoffs by a score of five to two. On the individual side, Bill Rahming was voted the chapter's outstanding athlete. Bill had the highest batting average for the college baseball team, compiling a record .354 average for the season.

Colorado Mines Continues Upward

By Larry Lepley

◆ With the help of a $1,050 chattel loan, Delta-Phi Chapter has spent over $1,700 on refurbishing its house. The living room has been completely refurnished with new chairs, sofas, tables, lamps, and wall to wall carpeting. The carpeting also covers the front hall. The party room atmosphere has been completely changed. We now have a cafe type mode, enhanced by subdued indirect lighting. We hope to have the living room, dining room, and hall repainted by homecoming.

Our membership now consists of 19 actives and 11 pledges, not including some pledges deferred to the second semester. One of our pledges is first string on the freshman football team.

Social life has been on the upswing. On October 9, we challenged Gamma-Gamma Chapter of Denver University to a football game, and were on the losing end. We have been having house parties every week end. Alumnus Counselor Dave Woodbridge has been giving us hints in dancing techniques a la Arthur Murray at some of our parties. Our rushing activities—picnics, watermelon orgies, stag parties and date affairs—brought us a fine pledge class.

Chapter Eternal

CHARLES W. THOMAS, JR.

Charles W. Thomas, Jr., AH (Florida), died August 30, 1955 in Gainesville, Florida after an illness of seven months. He was practicing pharmacy in Williston, Florida at the time of his death.

Brother Thomas graduated from the University of Florida in June, 1954. While an active member of Alpha-Eta Chapter, he participated in many activities, and his high spirit and leadership were an inspiration to everyone. He held several offices in the fraternity and was especially effective in rushing and athletics.

Dr. U. S. Gordon, National Chaplain, assisted in the funeral service in Gainesville.

LEON CLARENCE LEIMKUEHLER

Leon Clarence Leimkuehler, BA (Washington U.), Mechanical Engineer, Class of 1922, died April 24, 1955. During the second World War Brother Leimkuehler was the tool designer for Amer-torp Corporation engaged in the manufacture of torpedoes. Since 1946 he had been associated with the Cupples Products Company as engineer for the production of aluminum windows.

Brother Leimkuehler is survived by his wife, Verna, and his brother, F. Ray Leimkuehler, BA.

ROBERT A. STRONG

Dr. Robert A. Strong, H (Tulane), Pass Christian, Mississippi resident and professor emeritus of pediatrics at Tulane University, died August 7, 1955 at the Veterans Administration Hospital. He was 70.

Dr. Strong, a native of New Orleans, was graduated from the Tulane University School of Medicine in 1907 and joined the University's medical staff in 1911. In World War I, he was one of the three medical officers who pioneered in the field of aviation medicine at Kelly Field in San Antonio, Texas where he was chief of medical services.

He returned to active duty in World War II and served in several assignments before his retirement in 1944 with the rank of Colonel. Brother Strong served as professor and chairman of the Department of pediatrics at Tulane from 1929 to 1944. He had served as editor of the International Medical Digest, a monthly publication, since 1924.

ROBERT E. WYSOR, III

A tragic automobile accident fatally injured Robert E. Wysor, III, M (Presbyterian), prominent business, civic, and church leader of Clinton, South Carolina on June 9, 1955.

Brother Wysor, the son of Colonel Robert E. Wysor, Jr., also a member of Mu Chapter, graduated from Presbyterian College in 1941. He was owner and manager of the Robert E. Wysor III Real Estate and Insurance Agency in Clinton. He was a former president of the Clinton Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Clinton Community Hotel, Inc., and a member of the Lions Club. He served as an elder in the First Presbyterian Church.

Brother Wysor was a veteran of World War II with the rank of lieutenant and of the Korean War with the rank of captain. At the time of his death, he was in the active reserve unit in Greenwood.

CHARLES HART LITAKER

Charles Hart Litaker, AA (Duke), Charlotte, N. C. insurance executive, died at his home in August, 1955, after four years declining health. Born in Hendersonville, N. C., he was the son of a prominent Methodist minister. In 1928 he graduated from Duke University with an A.B. degree in business administration.

In 1933, Brother Litaker entered the mutual insurance business in Charlotte and built up the firm of Charles H. Litaker, Inc. of which he was president. He was a member of the Executives Club, Charlotte Exchange Club, Chamber of Commerce, and served on the board of directors of the Salvation Army and of the Methodist Home for the Aged.

He was chairman of the official board of the Myers Park Methodist Church when he became ill.

MYRON GROSECLOSE

Myron Groseclose, BO (Oklahoma), well known Oklahoma City contractor, died October 14, 1955. A native of Oklahoma, Brother Groseclose was a charter member of Beta-Omicron Chapter. His asphalt contracting firm had handled some of the larger asphalt paving jobs in the State of Oklahoma.

He was a member of the Waurika Methodist Church and Professional Engineers.

LAURENCE F. KENT, SR.

Laurence F. Kent, Sr., AΔ (Georgia Tech), president and principal owner of Moncrief Furnace Company, died October 10, 1955 in Atlanta, Georgia. A native of Atlanta, Brother Kent had served as the firm's president since 1933. He began his career as an engineer for this company in 1921 following graduation from Georgia Tech with a mechanical engineering degree.

He was a member of the board of Westminster Schools, and was a deacon in the North Avenue Presbyterian Church. He served as Secretary of the Downtown Kiwanis Club in Atlanta.

FRANK CHILTON BROWN

The Southern Presbyterian Church lost one of its outstanding leaders upon the death July 2, 1955 of Dr. Frank C. Brown. Brother Brown was a student leader at Hampden-Sydney College where he was initiated by Iota Chapter. Upon graduation from Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia, he held several pastorates in that area. He soon was called to pastorates of great responsibility in Virginia, West Virginia, and Texas.

In 1940 he was elected moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church. This is the highest office in that denomination.

At the time of his death, he was serving as Professor of Bible and Practical Theology at Columbia Theological Seminary, Decatur, Ga.

Death Takes Phi Delta Theta Executive Secretary

◆ Paul C. Beam, Executive Secretary of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity for eighteen years, succumbed to a heart attack in his doctor's office in Oxford, Ohio, July 6. He had gone there for a check-up in hopes of receiving permission for a trip to Atlantic City where he was to preside over the College Fraternity Secretaries Association of which he was president.

Despite heart trouble he kept busy with his work which he regarded as a calling to which he had dedicated his life. He attended the University of Indiana and the University of Illinois.

Paul Beam set a high standard for himself and all fraternity men through his leadership and life not only in Phi Delta Theta but in interfraternity circles. The fraternity system has suffered a great loss. Pi Kappa Alpha extends its condolences to Phi Delta Theta.

The Exchange Club held its National Convention in San Juan, Puerto Rico in September, 1955 with National President Grant Macfarlane, AT (Utah), presiding. There were 1,040 registered for this convention as compared with 800 in Louisville, Kentucky last year. Under the leadership of President Macfarlane, our own Pi Kappa Alpha National Alumni Secretary from Salt Lake City, the Exchange Clubs voted to erect a $300,000 Headquarters Building in Toledo, Ohio.

Former National President Joins Chapter Eternal

◆ John R. Perez joined the Chapter Eternal at 5:45 p. m., Saturday, August 20, 1955 after a brief illness in Rockland, Maine. Brother Perez was National President of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity from 1917-1930. He was a lifelong resident of New Orleans, Louisiana, and a practicing attorney there for more than forty years. Death came while he and Mrs. Perez were on a vacation in New England.

Brother Perez attended Louisiana State University where he became a member of Pi Kappa Alpha. He held various chapter offices and upon graduation continued his work for the fraternity serving as an officer in the New Orleans Alumni Association, as District President, and National President.

He was outstanding in civic, legal, and carnival organizations in New Orleans. He is survived by his widow, the former Katie Lee Myatt, and three children.

Upon learning of his death, telegrams and letters of condolence were received from throughout the country. The Supreme Council was represented at the funeral by former District President A. Brown Moore, a member of the City Council of New Orleans.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, Johnston Reni Perez, Sr. was initiated into Alpha-Gamma Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha October 1, 1908, and immediately became an interested and active leader in the bonds of our Fraternity; and

WHEREAS, upon graduation from Louisiana State University he continued his love of and work for Pi Kappa Alpha; and

WHEREAS, his leadership was recognized by his election as National President in 1917 and his repeated re-election to that office by its members until he served a total of thirteen years, the longest period ever served by any president of the Fraternity; and

WHEREAS, he demonstrated his continued interest, work, and love through the years by the accumulation of fraternity memorabilia and attendance at national conventions;

NOW, THEREFORE THE SUPREME COUNCIL does hereby declare the deep loss suffered by our Fraternity by the passing from our chapter visible to the Chapter Eternal of Brother Johnston Reni Perez, Sr., and extends to his family this expression of our sorrow and condolence.

Adopted by the Supreme Council, September 6, 1955
Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Bradley Purchases Chapter Car

By Bruce Harrison

◆ Delta-Sigma Chapter at Bradley began the 1955-56 school year with a new car, 14 top pledges, 17 actives and a lot of high hopes.

The brilliant yellow, 1931 model 'A' Ford convertible purchased for $40 has provided a lot of fun for the brothers this fall. It can be frequently seen carrying our boys to battle in interfraternity football competition. The car was also used recently to kick-off the Bradley Student Union campaign.

Pikes in campus affairs include charter member and service returnee Bruce Druckenmiller, copy editor of the Bradley newspaper. SMC Russ Hoffman is president of the junior class. Pledge Charles Engstrom is a Bradley newspaper reporter, a member of the Bradley Theatre Guild, and has a major part in their first production.

The Delta-Sigma football record stands at three wins and three losses, and a second place looks probable for us. The addition of four new pledges to the line-up has made the difference in the standings.

Rush for second semester is already under way, for we are determined to insure the return of 30 top-ranking men at the start of the 56-57 school year. Thirty men are necessary to start construction on our planned modernistic fraternity house.

Homecoming has kept the brothers and pledges in an almost perpetual round of work on the stunt show and float since school started but we are determined to duplicate last year's sweep of first place trophies.

Chattanooga Has Good Pledge Program

By Joel Blackford, Jr.

◆ An entirely new rushing program was put into effect this fall by the University of Chattanooga and the Interfraternity Council which ruled that no girls except the dream girls could attend rush parties. In view of the coming rush season with its new rules, Delta-Epsilon started rushing in the summer with plenty of girls present. When school started the rushing was carried out according to the new rules. Our very active alumni filled the gap by supporting us with their presence. In reward for our efforts we pledged eighty per cent of the students to whom we extended bids.

This year an entirely new pledge training program, which was set up by a Zeta transfer, is proving its value. The entire spirit of the chapter has hit a new high and Delta-Epsilon should retain its campus leadership.

Scholarship is the main goal for both actives and pledges this fall. The pledge requirements have been raised above the school's requirements. The life and strength of our chapter depends on the ambition and quality of each pledge. The new pledge system provides a chance for each new member to express his ability. By assigning the responsibilities of the work sessions to different pledges, each individual pledge is given an opportunity to lead his fellow pledges, and each pledge is encouraged to participate in pledge and brother discussions about any subject. The latter has brought forth many latent traits of character. The new system for making the brothers work as hard as the pledges is in effect this year. If a brother receives two or more deficiencies, his house privileges are taken away from him until his grades are made better. If he does not see fit to do so, he is then dropped from the active list. It is hoped that we can set a new record in chapter scholarship and leadership.

Delta-Epsilon wishes to thank Eugene Collins, Alex Mecham, and Vicent Saratorre for their aid in our successful rush season. Mrs. Ralph Marshall, our house mother, charmed the new students again this year with the aid of our radiant Dream Girl, Tommie Armstrong.

National Officers Visit Drake

By William Tate

◆ Visits by National President John F. E. Hippel and Executive Secretary Robert D. Lynn highlighted the first month of Delta-Omicron's 1955-1956 activities. The national officers were in Des Moines to award Iowa Governor Leo Hoegh the IKA Distinguished Achievement Award. Regretfully, the award banquet was scheduled the same night as the preferential pledge party at Drake, and for that reason only SMC Bernie Einhaus was able to attend. However, President Hippel came to the chapter house and met the prospective pledges and the brothers of Delta-Omicron. While he was in the house, all the men watched the televised film of the Pi Kappa Alpha presentation over a local station.

This visit by the national officers climaxed a very successful rush season in which Delta-Omicron's ranks swelled by 17 men; 16 by pledging and one by transfer from Delta Chapter at Birmingham-Southern College.

With this auspicious beginning, Delta-Omicron launched its sixth year of activity which promises to be one of great progress. Already it has taken the first trophy for which the fraternities on the Drake campus compete. In campus activities, Delta-Omicron is leading the way, having an undefeated intramural football team.

Memphis Newspaper Features Southwestern Ventriloquist

Editor's Note: This article appeared in the June 22, 1955 Memphis Press-Scimitar.

By Edwin Howard

◆ There's a sophomore at Southwestern who has been told by experts that he could be the Edgar Bergen of tomorrow.

Instead, he has decided to throw his voice into the work of the Lord.

But, although Bill Vassey is going into the Presbyterian ministry rather than become a professional ventriloquist, he doesn't expect to part with Dexter Decal, his constant companion of the past five years. They'll remain avocational pals, at least.

Dexter is Billy's dummy, but don't call him one. I did and Dexter nearly jumped down my throat.

"Whaddaya mean dummy!" he exploded. "I ain't no dummy! I'm a ventriloquist figure."

Bill, whose family lives in Covington, Tenn., took up ventriloquism about six years ago. After a year of practice, his folks thought he was good enough to buy a real professional dummy—excuse me, I mean ventriloquist figure. He bought Dexter from Ravello Petee, an elderly craftsman in Oroville, Calif., who made figures for some famous old vaudeville ventriloquists.

When he thought he had worked up a pretty good act with Dexter, Bill took him to Ventriloquists' Haven in Covington, Ky., a museum run by W. S. Berger, president of the International Brotherhood of Ventriloquists. (Ventriloquists' Haven is where ventriloquist figures go when their masters die; they have plenty of company and get the best of care.) Berger was so impressed by Bill's talent that he wrote to Harry Lester, famous ventriloquism teacher in Los Angeles, on his behalf. Lester ordinarily only enrolls professionals in his classes, but Berger talked him into taking Bill on. He went through the three courses Lester offers in three months, one-third the usual time they take. While he was out there, he asked Glen Cargyle, who makes ventriloquist—aw, the heck with it—who makes dummies, to teach him how to make them, too. One thing led to another, and Bill wound up as assistant technical advisor for the Danny Kaye comedy, "Knock on Wood." Cargyle made the dummies for the movie. Technical advice consisted simply of showing Kaye how to hold and manipulate them. The sound department did the "ventriloquizing," Bill said.

When he completed his courses with Lester, the teacher offered to get Bill a regular program on the ABC-TV outlet in Los Angeles and assured him that he could one day become a star.

Bill declined, with thanks, to enter Southwestern and begin studying for the ministry.

I asked Bill how he feels about Dexter; if he ever thinks of him as a real person.

Theta Pledgemaster Bill Vassey is working hard to shape up Pledge Dexter Decal so he will qualify for initiation.

"Well, I never refer to him as it," he said. "You have to think of a figure as a real person in order to give him a real personality. If you mean do I feel some kind of psychological identification with him, I don't think so. But there was one time when it seemed to me that Dexter had a mind of his own.

"I was doing a show I hadn't had time to prepare a script for. I was ad libbing along, doing all right, when suddenly a gag fell flat. Nobody laughed. I went blank for a second. But I had to break the pause—say something—or I'd never get the audience going again. So I said, 'Dexter, the way you talk I don't think our friendship means anything to you any more.' Then Dexter said something and it brought the house down. When the show was over, I couldn't remember what it was Dexter had said, so I asked some of my friends who had been in the audience. They remembered the big laugh but they couldn't remember what caused it either. So I have to credit Dexter with getting me out of that hole. To this day I don't know what I made him say."

Like most young folks these days, Dexter is a Davy Crockett fan. Wears his coonskin cap constantly. When Fess (Davy) Parker was in town recently, Dexter got to meet him at the national headquarters of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Fess is a PiKA and Dexter is a Pike pledge. Wears his pledge pin and tie right along with his Crockett cap.

Does Bill plan to use Dexter in the pulpit?

"Dexter has already taught a Sunday School class," he said. "That was back in Concord, N. C., when I lived there. We entertain at churches' family suppers, too. We'll entertain at the Men of the Church supper next Tuesday night at Lamar Heights Presbyterian Church, in fact.

"But Dexter helping me preach a sermon? I don't know about that. I'll have to think about that."

Epsilon-Beta Chapter at Valparaiso University are "Victors" in the homecoming float contest.

Valparaiso Takes Homecoming Prizes

By Al Scheich

◆ Valparaiso University's traditional Homecoming festivities on October 14 and 15 gave the brothers of Epsilon-Beta Chapter just cause for celebration. Our many hours of labor were rewarded when our float captured first place and our house decoration was judged second in the interfraternity competition.

The theme around which our winning float centered was a familiar quotation by Andrew Jackson, "To the victors go the spoils." With the Valparaiso Crusaders pitted against the DePauw Tigers, it was relatively easy to illustrate this slogan. Two knights, each kneeling in homage with one arm outstretched, solemnly presented a tiger skin to an enthroned king. The monarch, symbolizing the University, was portrayed accepting this prize of war from the two Crusaders. George Badiac was cast in the role of the king, while Tom Siess and Rollie Preuss, whose arms soon felt like countless tons of lead, were dressed like medieval knights in coats-of-mail.

Our house decoration also involved a tiger and a Crusader. The tiger ambled through the simulated jungle erected on our lawn until his foreleg became ensnared in a huge trap. At this point the slogan, "DePauw in De Trap," was lit up one letter at a time. Emerging from behind one of the artificial trees was the figure of a Crusader, who, with sword in hand, surveyed the scene. The conscientious and zealous efforts of Walt Posingies and Marty Wiese, who headed the float and house decorations committees, respectively, for this year's Homecoming, really paid off.

The many alumni present for the week end were welcomed with a party on Friday night. Other special events for the week end included a smorgasbord dinner for alumni, parents, and members Saturday afternoon and an alumni meeting Saturday evening. The newly-elected officers of the alumni association for the coming year are Harold Baumann, president; Bob Muir, vice president; and Raymond Daniels, secretary-treasurer. The Homecoming activities were climaxed Saturday night by a dance at the Legion Hall.

The most unique incident of the strenuous Homecoming week end occurred on Sunday morning when SMC Hank Jud awoke and complained of unusual pains in his thigh and head. When asking what he had done the previous night that would cause such sensations he was told that he had fallen out of the top berth of a seven-foot-high triple tier bunk and had climbed back to bed again without ever waking up.

Epsilon-Beta Chapter was honored by having five of its brothers chosen as members of the student committee in charge of all phases of Homecoming. Last spring Dick Harms was chosen by the President of the Student Council as over-all Chairman of the Homecoming Committee. Jack Ohlfest, our IMC, in addition to acting as assistant chairman, was in charge of the Homecoming parade. Under his direction Valparaiso witnessed the largest parade in its history, consisting of nearly 100 units. Chuck Bretzke, Ray Seefeldt, and John Struve served respectively as chairman of the President's evening committee, the queen's election committee, and the queen's float committee.

Bowling Green Plans For Big Year

◆ With plans for the future which include the annual Christmas Formal, the choosing of the "Dream Girl of Pi Kappa Alpha," freshman pledging, and the all-campus Pi(e) Week, the Brothers of Delta-Beta Chapter, Bowling Green State University, are looking forward to another great "Pike" year on this campus.

Final arrangements are being made for the annual Christmas Formal to be held December 16 in Toledo. This year the dance will be sponsored jointly by Delta-Beta and Epsilon-Epsilon (Toledo University) Chapters. A buffet supper will be served prior to the dancing in the beautiful ballroom of the Hotel Secor. Identical favors will be presented to the dates of the brothers by both chapters. Serving as Delta-Beta's chairman for the affair is Hal Bickham.

Soon after the start of the second semester a series of teas and dinners for 80 freshman girls will begin. The girls will be eliminated until only one remains, and she will be crowned as the "Dream Girl of I I K A." To be eligible as a candidate, a girl must be a freshman, must have a 2.2 average for the first semester, and, naturally, must have the personality and "looks" to match. The brothers take this choice seriously as they have a tradition to uphold in that this chapter's first Dream Girl was Eva Marie Saint (1942), recent Academy Award winner.

Deferred rushing is the rule at Bowling Green, so that the rush period will start immediately after the opening of the second semester. Two rounds of smokers, nightly meals for rushees, and week-end open houses will compose the rushing schedule.

Pi(e) Week will be "the thing" in the early spring as Delta-Beta sponsors a complete week of activities, including an all-campus serenade, big all-campus pie-eating contest, a sorority presidents' dinner, and the entire week will be climaxed by an all-campus dance during which the Dream Girl will be announced and crowned.

Looking back on the 1955 activities, the brothers of Delta-Beta will remember the exchange parties and dinners with "our sorority friends," Bee Gee's successful football team which included four Pikes (Brothers Ed Janeway, Gary Schlenk, Chuck McBee, and Gene Lamb), the fall intramural sports program in which IKA placed high, and the well attended, highly successful Homecoming celebration. Playing a major role in Homecoming planning was Brother Dick Prechtel, alumni secretary.

dance, and one of the "best dressed" dances held last year at WSC. And again last spring, Brother Rasmussen, with the same sureness and detail, spelled out the blueprints and directed work on "Brigadoon," the Dream Girl Formal. This was termed by many as the most tastefully decorated dance seen for several years on the campus.

And it has been no accident that he won the Christmas Card Contest and paints posters on salary for the Student Union Building. Tom is a junior in

Arizona Wins Scholarship Award

By Arthur C. Filiatrault

◆ Gamma-Delta of Pi Kappa Alpha led all other Greek organizations on the University of Arizona campus in scholarship improvement for the second semester of the 1954-55 school term. The Pikes jumped from twenty-second to eighth place among fraternities due to a dedicated effort by all members and pledges.

The effort not only looked good on the Registrar's scholarship rolls, but also enabled the chapter to increase its active membership fourfold over last year. The deserving pledge class was rewarded with a special summer initiation and celebration.

The Pike house also took on a new lustre during the summer of 1955, as Alumnus Counselor Rollin D. Burr organized and led Gamma-Delta's increased manpower into a constructive program which resulted in a thorough renovation of the sleeping porch, the living room, and study rooms. All furniture was also repaired and varnished while new drapes added color to the "new look."

With membership strengthened and the house looking smart, the IKA's went into formal rush with confidence and brought nine good pledges into the fold. It was the first time in three years that Gamma-Delta had gone through formal rush and much of the organizational work was done by Field Secretary Charles Byrd, to whom the chapter is greatly indebted.

The Pikes at Arizona have been kept busy with informal rush since the termination of the formal rushing program. Other social events of interest included a very well attended and thoroughly enjoyable Mom and Dad's Day luncheon. Attendance at the Homecoming banquet surpassed all expectations, and alumni interest in Gamma-Delta is the greatest in several years.

Washington State Chapter takes first place in Dad's Day sign competition.

Rasmussen Is Wash. State Leader

By Larry Jones

◆ The growing success of Gamma-Xi Chapter at Washington State College has been due in many respects to Brother Tom Rasmussen. The most recent example of this success was the winning of the first place trophy for the Dads' Day sign competition, Saturday, October 1. Under his detailed planning and guidance, a huge sign was constructed depicting Butch, the young Cougar mascot, licking a mug filled with Bruins with the words, "We toast Dads with Bruin brew, while baby Butch licks bears." The climax to the work on this sign came at the halftime of the UCLA-WSC football game. After announcing the runners-up, the name of Pi Kappa Alpha was pronounced before the Dads' Day crowd as the first place winner of the trophy sponsored by the Dads' Association. The pride and unity which follow such an event are incomparable to any pledge lesson or chapter room discussion.

This wasn't the first time that Tom has displayed his special talent. Shortly after being pledged into the fraternity, Tom took command of decorating "Snowflake Symphony," the pledge commercial art. But it is more than just artistry. It is imagination and initiative; he is like the "take-charge guy" on the diamond. The mild mannered, six-foot three-inch demonstrates his energy now as rally chairman and publicity chairman for the Pi Kaps and is starting to work on the Homecoming float, a colorful showboat with Kappa Alpha Thetas adorning it. If there is anything at all that requires decorating, Tom is right there.

Despite being one of the most active men on the "hill," Tom is maintaining a three point cumulative grade point average. He is truly a valuable asset to the chapter.

Beta-Upsilon (Colorado) entered this float in the C.U. Days Parade which featured a toyland theme.

Rev. L. Ross Lynn, Θ (Southwestern), and Mrs. Lynn are being presented a new Pontiac by Rev. F. E. Jordan as a gift from alumni of the Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton, S. C. of which Dr. Lynn served as president for 25 years.

A Flag Waving Campaign

Editor's Note: The following is a reprint of an article by John H. Chandler who is still a practicing lawyer at age 83. W. O. Davis, about whom this article is written, was initiated by Alpha Chapter and assigned Roll No. 94. He was in the chapter at the same time as Pi Kappa Alpha's famous statesman, Oscar W. Underwood. John U. Field recalls that Brother Davis was toastmaster at the 1910 National Convention of the Fraternity in Lexington, Ky.

◆ Fifty-odd years ago a young lawyer, W. O. Davis, hung up his shingle in Versailles, Ky. Warned that he, a young lawyer, would starve to death for the first five years if he did not know how to play poker, he decided to run for County Judge of Woodford County.

His opponent was an old Confederate soldier, whose only qualification was that he had lost a leg in the Civil War.

In those days, rival candidates for office would go after each other "rough and tumble," each trying to discredit his opponent. Success often went, not to the best qualified, but to the one who could out-joke, out-burlesque, and out-vilify his opponent. Sometimes the debate ended in a knock-down fight.

Anyway, joint debates between the young lawyer and the old soldier were held throughout the county. The old Confederate in each speech kept saying:

"This young upstart lawyer has the impudence to run against me—me, who lost a leg in the Civil War, fighting for Lee and Jackson, under the Stars and Bars, for the dear old sunny South!"

This appeal always won the crowd, many of whom were Confederate sympathizers; the young lawyer could hardly get a hearing on his qualifications for judge.

On the Saturday before the election, a great crowd came to hear the old Confederate "spank the young lawyer." The old soldier brought an old Confederate uniform and a tattered Confederate flag, which were hung on the wall. As in all other speeches, he sang the same song: "Yes, my friends, this young snipe of a jack-legged lawyer who has never even smelled powder has the gall to ask the enlightened citizens of this great county to vote for him, against me—me, who lost a leg and fit and almost died fightin' under Lee and Jackson, under the Stars and Bars, for the dear old sunny South!"

This eloquent appeal brought thunderous applause. When he got up to reply, the crowd howled him down. He finally managed to say:

"I thought Kentuckians were good sports enough to allow a man the same right that is given a criminal before he is hanged—the right to say a word in his behalf."

Claude E. Chalfant, BT (Kansas), president of the Kansas State Bar Association and trustee of the University of Kansas Endowment Association.

The old soldier said, "Let the young snipe talk. I've got this race won."

The young lawyer spoke out:

"Gentlemen, it looks like I have lost this race. At the outset of this campaign, I confess I made a big mistake. Well, I am here to apologize for that mistake. I did not know that before a man can be elected judge, he had to have a war record in the Civil War which ended years ago.

"Now, my opponent, in every speech throughout this county, has done nothing but brag about his war record. Not a word about his qualifications to be a judge.

"Now, he has forced me to bring out my war record.

"Well, here's my war record," the young lawyer went on. "On the night when Fort Donelson surrendered, as the clock struck 12, I was born. Immediately, without hesitation, I joined the ranks of the infantry, attacked the breast-works and many a midnight march at that early age did I make in the ranks of the infantry, when this old soldier was sleeping in his tent. Armed with all the weapons of the infantry, including castor oil, vermifuge and ipecac, I met and conquered in honorable battle all the enemies of the infantry, including mumps, measles, chicken-pox, itch and belly-ache.

"My opponent asks all who wore the gray to vote for him. I appeal to a wider constituency. I fought under an emblem which unites all the brotherhood and sisterhood of the human race into one happy family. That emblem antedates the Stars and Bars, the Stars and Stripes, and goes back beyond the flags of England and France, and beyond the time when Caesar carried the banners of Rome across the Rubicon. Here's the white flag under which I fought," he concluded.

And he waved aloft—a diaper.

"Let all who wore the gray vote for him; but I ask every man who ever wore a diaper to vote for me. Here's that white flag under which I fought. Long may it wave over land of the free and home of the brave."

For a moment the crowd was dumfounded, then pandemonium broke loose.

Needless to say, the young barrister was elected County Judge.

Purdue Leaders In Activities

By Don Rain

◆ Beta-Phi Chapter at Purdue is starting the fall semester with flying colors after a productive spring semester. The rush program started immediately after the return of the Pikes. As a result the pledge class was strengthened with the following men: Ace Atkinson, Jim Brinsley, Dick Campbell, Bob Gotsch, John Grisso, Bill Richman, Joe Ruppert, and Jerry Sandifer.

The first big event of the fall semester was Homecoming on October 8. All chapter alumni were invited to return to the house. To greet them was a space man exiting from a flying saucer—the Homecoming display.

To wind up the spring semester, 1955, were three fruitful highlights. First of these was the annual Dream Girl Formal held at the chapter house on April 16. The theme for the dance was "Spring Night" and, in addition to spring flowers and greenery, decorations included subdued lighting effects and silvered stars suspended from the ceiling.

Miss Barbara Galbraith, KKT, was chosen Dream Girl for 1955. Members of her court included Mary Jane Gustin, Karen Hellman, Marilyn Miller, Barbara Turner, and Phyllis Elmore.

The second highlight was Mother's Day week end and University sing. Mothers arrived for their week end and found that the Pikes had reached the finals of the all-campus sing. Therefore, that Saturday night they heard their sons sing in the Purdue Hall of Music. The songs rendered by IKA were: "All Through the Night" and "A Stephen Foster Medley."

The third highlight of last semester

was the nip and tuck final game of interfraternity softball. With the expert hand of Max Lees in the pitcher's box and a well coordinated team the Pikes came up with an 11-9 victory, giving us the softball championship. Members of the winning team were: Wallie Veazie, Bob Rain, George Royer, New Bowles, Jim Richman, Max Lees, Dick Sanders, Fred Vitale, and Rollin Dix.

Beta-Phi was not only activities-minded last year, but we also watched our grades. For the 1954-55 year IKA raised itself to ninth scholastically out of the 39 fraternities on campus.

Louisiana Tech Wins Intramurals

By Mike Cage

◆ Gamma-Psi Chapter at Louisiana Tech won the fraternity division in intramural sports for 1954-55. It was the fourth consecutive year that the Pikes have won the fraternity league. The football team is off to a good start this year with five wins against no setbacks.

Brother Evans Wyly was honored by being elected President of the Student Federation of Louisiana Colleges and Universities. He was also elected President of the Louisiana Tech Student Senate. Other Pikes on the Senate are Sam Edmiston, Senior Class President; Mike Cage, Sophomore Class President; Bobby Festervand, Senate Treasurer; Paul Teague, Senior Class Representative; and Pledge Jerry Pate, President of the Freshman Class. Sam Goodwin and Savery Stuckey are the two highest ranking R.O.T.C. cadets on the campus. Lorenz Walker was elected President of the Council of Business Students, and James Stanford was chosen The Outstanding Freshman Boy on the Tech campus.

This past summer the Pike house at Tech was air conditioned, and this new comfort is being enjoyed by everyone. This year's pledge class of forty-nine boys is one of the largest in Gamma-Psi's history.
