Brothers Respond to Cure for Dying Chapters

I WANTED to thank the SHIELD & DIAMOND for featuring the article "What Is The Cure For A Dying Chapter?" in its June, 1985 issue.

I have long felt that there should be a study of why chapters fail so that other chapters in trouble can see the danger signals and treat them before the problems become so bad that a chapter becomes silent. I feel that the article is a fine examination of reasons that chapters fail and how some chapters have come back to life to become active chapters of the Fraternity again. I only wished that such an article had been written and that there was such a program as the Alumni Receivership Board twelve years ago. That was when the chapter I belonged to went silent.

Hopefully, this is a program that will become another tradition in the Fraternity. If so, let's hope no more chapters will ever go silent.

Fraternally,

Tom Josephi
Eta Lambda '71

"WHAT IS The Cure For A Dying Chapter?" in the June issue has prompted me to write. I agree wholeheartedly with the article and I believe it cannot be stressed enough that alumni must be willing to offer help and advice to the undergraduates. Meanwhile, the undergraduates must realize the valuable resource they have in their alumni brothers.

As a refounding member of the Delta Eta chapter at the University of Delaware, I can attest to the devotion of the alumni in the area to seeing our chapter regain its position of dominance on campus. The Alumni Association and House Corporation worked with us in contacting new rushees, and in keeping a roof over our heads. They were always available, and when it was needed they were willing to dip into their wallets to help build a new house. And, as the article said, these were not only Delta Eta alumni. The architect for the house was from Beta Sigma, and one of our first chapter advisors was from Beta Theta.

The Delta Eta chapter now has over eighty brothers. They are recognized leaders in campus government and community service. They are all hard-working, studious, and yet have time for a plethora of extra-curricular activities. I have had the privilege of serving as the chapter advisor at Delaware for the past three years, and I can swear that nothing else in the Fraternity matches the rewarding experiences I have received in that position. We have a strong Alumni Association, House Corporation and Chapter Advisory Board and can therefore offer any interested alumni a spot which will require only as much work or time as they feel they can contribute. I would encourage any alumnus to contact the nearest chapter, and try to get reinvolved with Pi Kappa Alpha.

However, I would like to end on a word of warning. As much as we all feel the bonds of phi phi kappa alpha, as alumni we can only advise. After all, the whole point of the Fraternity is to offer each brother the chance to grow and learn to the best of his abilities, and he cannot do that without doing things for himself. With the proper guidance, each brother and each chapter will grow quickly to their best potential. That guidance is the best gift any alumnus can offer as a PI KAPPA ALPHA brother.

Fraternally,

Robert P. Tkachick
Delta Eta '75

I WOULD like to congratulate the SHIELD & DIAMOND for the excellent article "What Is The Cure For A Dying Chapter?" (June '85). One prime example was left out, however.

Undergraduates, Alumni, the Chapter Advisor and the National Office are all reasons that Gamma Chi (Oklahoma State University) is not only a "living" chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha today, but an emerging powerhouse.

After a fire destroyed the Pike house years ago, the situation was bad at Gamma Chi. But now, after endurance by J.L. Sanderson (National Chapter Advisor of the Year in 1982) and the financial support of many alumni, the Pikes at OSU now have a three-story house complete with new library. The national office never gave up either and supported three Resident Counselors at Gamma Chi throughout the years.

The result? Gamma Chi is approaching 100 active members, and its scholarship rank on campus has moved up from seventeen of twenty-one to three of twenty-one. For the 1984-85 year, Pikes were awarded the "Most Improved Fraternity" and "Best Fraternity" awards at OSU.

I believe that there is no finer example of teamwork and brotherhood than has been expressed here. Congratulations to all involved.

Fraternally,

Pat McCulloch
Theta Theta '79

S&D Sparks Memories

IN SO far as Pi Kappa Alpha was such a meaningful part of my collegiate and post graduate life I always read the SHIELD & DIAMOND with great interest. In my opinion this June 1985 issue was not only well prepared but also quite timely. It reminded me of how much I would like to return the favors and benefits which the Fraternity extended to me in a more meaningful way than a contribution each year-end.

With congratulations to the staff of SHIELD & DIAMOND for an excellent June, 1985 issue, and with best wishes to other members of the management team, I am

Fraternally,

Moreau P. Estes V
Alpha Xi '63

Dr. Reel Explains

I AM not swayed by Dr. Reel's concept of history and the location of the Mason-Dixon Line in his fine article covering Alpha Xi Chapter. I believe my esteemed brother Bauer is correct in his letter to the editor (June, 1985 - Congratulations From One "Yankee" To Another.)

I would like to shed light on the Mason-Dixon Line in question.

The original Line, surveyed in 1767, was the boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland. However, an article from the Jefferson City, Missouri NEWS AND TRIBUNE (6/2/85), explains the history and location of the final termination of the Mason-Dixon Line at the junction of Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

It would seem the leaders of Pi Kappa Alpha in 1905 were either unaware of the exact location of the Mason-Dixon Line or overlooked the fine print in our Constitution, which limited the Fraternity to colleges south of the Mason-Dixon Line. Perhaps the wisdom of our forefathers was such that they recognized quality and were not confused by lines.

AK is first in my heart and many other significant areas. It also appears that it was the first chapter north of the Mason-Dixon Line.

Fraternally yours,

J. Richard Hunt
Alpha Kappa '45

Editor's Note: First, I would like to thank the Missourians who wrote concerning which chapter of our Fraternity was the first across the

Mason-Dixon Line. Every writer is pleased to know what he writes is being read — so many thanks. Now, I'll try to answer their concerns as best I can.

There are at least four perceptions of what the "Mason-Dixon line" means so far as Pi Kappa Alpha is concerned. First, the surveyors Messrs. Mason and Dixon had one view. Second, Americans during the Civil War had a slightly different view. Third, Pi Kappa Alphas during the 1890's and the first decade of the Twentieth Century had a view. Finally, the alumni who have kindly written have yet a different view. Let's look briefly at each.

The view of the surveyors Mason and Dixon was that they were establishing the boundary between Maryland and Pennsylvania, nothing more. If we were to adopt that view the first chapter north of the line would be in Pennsylvania.

Americans, from the years of the Missouri Compromise up to the Civil War, most often used the term to separate states that permitted slavery from states that did not. The Missouri Compromise allowed Missouri the choice as to whether it would be "slave or free" while all Louisiana Purchase territory north of 36°, 30' would be prohibited. When Missouri entered the Union (August 10, 1821), it entered as a slave state. Thus Southerners extended the Mason-Dixon line east to include Delaware and west along the Ohio to the Mississippi and thence north to Missouri's northern border and then westward. The last view was, of course, modified in the Compromise of 1850 and the Kansas-Nebraska Act. By the time of the Civil War the "Mason-Dixon line" indicated fifteen states, the

Confederate eleven, Kentucky and Missouri (both of which had strong secessionist sentiment), and Maryland and Delaware.

Because Pi Kappa Alpha in the years 1889 to 1909 was heavily influenced by the "Southern view" as expressed above, the term was used to mean the fifteen states. Consequently the charterings of Alpha Kappa (Rolla) and Alpha Mu (Missouri) were conceived of as chapters in "Southern" states just as the chartering of Kappa (Kentucky A&M — now at Transylvania) and Omega (University of Kentucky) was considered. The debates in the Pi Kappa Alpha conventions from the 1890's on to 1909 certainly confirm that such was their understanding, the first chapter across that imaginary line was Alpha Xi.

*The last view, held in different ways by my Missouri and Rolla brothers, is that the Mason-Dixon line reached the Missouri river and was extended south along its southern border. This is certainly different from the concept expressed in the Senatorial debates during the decades 1820-1860, and different from the concept held by Pi Kappa Alpha leadership during the decades 1889-1909, and different from standard references such as Encyclopaedia Britannica (1962, article Mason-Dixon).*

I hope that this, at best, explains my position, and again, I thank my brothers for their interest.

Fraternally yours,

Jerome V. Reel, Jr.
National Historian

Alumni Spotlight

Parker &amp; Smith of the Old Guard

Old Guard Going Strong

DELTA LAMBDA Chapter is honored to have among her alumni the current national presidents of both of Florida State University's most powerful alumni organizations.

Bill Parker ('49), president of Crest Chemical Corporation in Clearwater, is the incoming national president of Seminole Boosters, Inc., the university's athletic fundraising arm. Bill lettered in football, basketball and baseball in college. His five daughters all followed him to Florida State where they became Tri-Delts; "A house," Bill says, "where I used to spend a little time myself."

Jacksonville businessman John Smith ('63) is finishing his second term as national president of the Florida State University Alumni Association, Inc. His oldest son is headed for Tallahassee in a year.

Both men are loyal IKA alumni, and both are members of THE OLD GUARD, Delta Lambda's alumni fundraising organization.

St. Louis Alumni Association Elects New Officers

THE PI KAPPA ALPHA Alumni Association of St. Louis recently elected new officers and announced some new projects.

The new officers are Alan Darnell (Gamma Omicron '67) president-elect; Kevin Enger (Zeta Phi '73) president; Mike Nelsen (Beta Eta '80) secretary; and Chris Coyle (Zeta Phi '75) treasurer.

Currently, the association is compiling a new membership directory which will be ready for distribution this fall. The group is also planning a Founders' Day banquet for Thursday, March 6, 1986.

Alumni in the St. Louis area who are interested in joining the alumni association are encouraged to call Alan Darnell at 314/523-4388.

Notice of Foundation Meeting

AS IS required by the by-laws of the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation, notice is hereby given of the Annual Meeting of the members of the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation. The meeting will be held at the Memorial Headquarters in Memphis, Tennessee on Thursday, October 3.

Raymond L. Orians

Pi Kappa Alpha Welcomes Theta Omega

The University of California at Davis is the home of IKA's newest chapter.

ON MAY 2 - 3, 1985, eighty-five men of the University of California-Davis colony were officially installed as Theta Omega chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha.

National President William LaForge presided over the initiation of all the charter members and the installation of the chapter on May 3, 1985.

The colony was established last October with fifty-one members and has grown to over eighty members in less than one year, and has become one of the largest among twenty fraternities at Cal-Davis.

The black tie chartering banquet was held in nearby San Francisco on Friday, May 3 at one of the city's most prestigious hotels, the San Francisco Hyatt Regency. Golden West Regional President Charlie Dow, Executive Director Allen Groves, Director of Expansion Scott Bell and Chapter Consultant Greg Jones were on hand to assist in the installation.

Alumni who supported the colony in meeting its requirements were Colony

Advisor Don Currier (Theta Tau '81), Faculty Advisor William Sims (Alpha Zeta '47) and Housing Corporation Officer Steve Young (Gamma Pi '66). The colony was closely guided by Resident Counselor Randy Fischer (Theta Tau '82). Installing teams that helped advise the colony were California-Berkeley (Alpha Sigma) and Cal State-Sacramento (Theta Tau).

Colony History

The history of Theta Omega chapter dates back to 1978 when interest in establishing a chapter at the U.C. Davis campus began. Since that time the campus had been visited by many members of the Memorial Headquarters' professional staff. However, strict interfraternity council guidelines prohibited Pi Kappa Alpha from colonizing.

Finally, in 1984 the IFC invited Pi Kappa Alpha to make an official presentation, and on March 22 of that year they accepted the Fraternity's bid to colonize in the fall of the next school year.

In the fall of 1984, then Director of Expansion Scott Bell and Chapter Consultant Greg Jones worked on the campus for almost three weeks, recruiting members for the new Pi Kappa Alpha colony. After interviewing over two hundred men, fifty men were invited to join the new colony.

On October 5, 1984 the official colonization ceremony took place at the Memorial Union building on the Davis Campus. Representatives from Theta Tau chapter (Sacramento State University) and Alpha Sigma chapter (U.C. Berkeley), resident counselor Randy Fischer (Theta Tau '82), rush advisor Jim Eishen (Theta Lambda) and national staff members Bell and Jones.

The colony members spent the remainder of that semester working on the requirements for installation. Among this group's many successes was its first pledge class of twenty-six men.

The colony members spent the remainder of that semester working on the requirements for installation. On that day national officers Bell and Jones, Regional President Charlie Dow, and representatives from Theta Tau and Alpha Sigma chapters reviewed the colony's accomplishments and internal organizational structure. After reviewing all of the information, the inspecting team voted unanimously that the colony was ready to petition Pi Kappa Alpha for installation.

History of the University of California at Davis

The University of California was founded in 1868 when Governor Henry H. Haight signed the California Organic Act, which provided that a complete University be created for the state of California. Classes began in 1869 on what is now the Berkeley campus and in June of that year, degrees were conferred upon the University's first twelve graduates.

Today, the University of California has a current enrollment of more than 141,300 students at its nine campuses — Berkeley, Davis, Irvine, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Diego, San Francisco, Santa Barbara and Santa Cruz. Today the University of California ranks as the world's top public education system and as a highly respected research institution.

The University of California at Davis originated from a bill passed by the California State Legislature in 1905 which authorized the establishment of a University Farm. In 1906, 786 acres of the Jerome C. Davis farm were purchased which formed the center of the 3,634 acre University of California at Davis campus. Classes began in 1909 with the enrollment of fifteen students. The demand for greater educational opportunities in the state increased rapidly, and in 1922, in conjunction with the U.C. College of Agriculture in Berkeley, the B.S. degree in agriculture was initiated at Davis.

In 1948 the campus expanded with the establishment of the School of Veterinary Medicine. One of the twenty-four veterinary schools in the United States and the only one in the state of California, this school has been ranked in the top three veterinary schools nationally since its inception.

The campus' most rapid expansion began in 1951 when the College of Letters and Science was founded and more varied degree programs became available. In 1959 the Regents declared Davis a "general campus" of the University. Graduate and Professional work followed with the establishment of the Graduate division in 1961. The College of Engineering came into existence the following year, owing much to the foundation already provided by the curriculum in Agricultural Engineering. The School of Law held its first classes in the fall of 1966, and the School of Medicine admitted its first students in the fall of 1968. The Graduate School of Administration began holiday classes in the fall of 1981.

Today the University of California at Davis has a student enrollment of 19,542 students of which 5,139 are graduate students. The Davis campus employs 3,711 academic professors and 9,800 support staff employees. The University of California at Davis is the largest U.C. campus in size and the third largest in population.

Following in the agricultural tradition of the University Farm, Davis is proud of its title as the "California Aggies". Agricultural research on the Davis campus has led to the development of many new strains of food crops which today are increasing the agricultural production of many third world nations. Innovations such as the mechanical tomato harvester, salt water resistant grains, the "square tomato" invented by William Sims (Alpha Zeta '47), and spruce saving pigmy fruit trees are all products of this research.

The department of Food Science and Technology is world renowned as the creator of such varied products as fruit cocktail, freeze-dried coffee and frozen fruit juice concentrate.

Beyond this, Davis competes in over twenty-four intercollegiate sports. The Davis football team maintains an excellent record as the NCAC conference champions for the past fourteen years. This record ties the previous mark held by the Oklahoma Sooners for consecutive conference championships. Coach Jim Sochor holds the outstanding record as the winningest active coach in the NCAA. All of this is accomplished by a University that gives no athletic scholarships. For the past ten years U.C. Davis has consistently taken the national title in both men's and women's equestrian polo.

To conclude, no history of the University of California at Davis would be complete without the mentioning of the symbol of the Davis campus — the bicycle. Davis has the distinction of having more bikes per capita than any other city in the world. The town of Davis maintains the most bicycle paths per capita of any city in the world and over one-fourth of all transportation conducted within the city is done by bicycle. The Davis campus, complete with its bicycle police who give tickets for everything from failure to hand signal to bicycle drunk driving, boasts the feat of having more than 14,000 bikes moving within one square mile area every ten minutes.

Paying Attention To People: *A Recipe For Success

Jack Reich has never forgotten the virtues of human decency and hard work.

by Ed Pease

IT OCCUPIES the entire city block in downtown Indianapolis known as One American Square, and from this broad base it rises smartly above the city, completely dominating the Indianapolis skyline, the tallest building in Indiana. Sheathed in white Indiana limestone, its beautiful lobby climbs three floors into the building, dressed in deep green, salmon and black marble, inlaid in patterns broken by glass and brass and rich foliage. It is quiet despite its immensity, and the people come and go in a near-constant stream, dressed in the best that Brooks Brothers has to offer.

It is the American United Life building, headquarters of one of America's largest and most successful insurance companies. It is a massive corporation (1984 sales of $5.7 billion), but one that got that way because it never stopped doing the things that made it successful in the first place. It pays attention to people; it provides personal service for their wants; and it has never forgotten the virtues of human decency and hard work.

This corporation, then, and the building in which it is housed, are reflections of their Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Jack E. Reich (Beta Phi '29, Purdue University).

Jack Reich is one of Indiana's most successful businessmen, one with a resume too long to copy in our limited space, and yet, as they say in Indiana, "he's as common as an old shoe," the kind of man with whom one immediately feels comfortable.

He is a gentle man, whose ready grin and sparkling eyes are simultaneously engaging and deceptive. He is a major financial success, but he is so because of his very humanity. American United Life is, as he says, "a good corporate citizen." It is, in that sense, a reflection of Reich himself.

When the company decided to expand its former headquarters on the near north side of Indianapolis, Reich determined that AUL could assist Indianapolis' efforts to revitalize its downtown by building a new structure there. He picked a site occupied by, among other things, adult bookstores, pawnshops, and a hotel where rooms were rented by the hour. He organized meetings with tenants in the area to explain the company's interest in the site and to determine whether the move would be considered disruptive by the citizens of Indianapolis.

Then, he sold the old building to the State of Indiana for less than cost, on the condition that it be used to house the Indiana Vocational Technical College, a junior college that provides job training and retraining for many Hoosiers who might not otherwise find decent employment.

Because the state needed the old building a bit sooner than AUL thought they could have their new one completed under traditional construction techniques, the company utilized a construction manager. As the footings were sunk, they discovered that their site sat atop a huge underground lake. But, in typical Jack Reich fashion, the company turned this potential disaster into a bonanza. The architects and engineers designed a heating and cooling system that pumps seven and one-half million gallons of water a day from the lake (environmental studies showed they could take up to fifty million gallons of water a day without disrupting the water table) and circulate its constant fifty-five degrees throughout the building. In effect, the entire forty-plus story building is itself a giant heat pump. To the more than eight hundred AUL employees, it is a comfortable home where they are treated well in exchange for an old-fashioned honest

Reich says that the company deliberately kept its number of employees low for a very simple reason. They have not had and never want an employee layoff. Benefits abound. College tuition costs are provided; on-site professional improvement programs are offered; contributions to higher education are matched by the company; a type of profit-sharing plan is in effect. More than seventy percent of AUL employees have been with the company more than three years.

Reich himself knows what it is like to have to scrape for a living, and he is committed to the idea that his employees be well provided for. He expects them to work, but he rewards their labors. When he was in high school, he went to school from 8:15 to 3:15 and then left for the mills of the Inland Steel Company, where he worked from four to midnight. Every day. His mother died when he was quite young, so he was on his own from an early age, the oldest of three sons. His wages, even in those pre-Depression days, were 44¢ per hour.

Born in 1910, Brother Reich was working in the mills of northern Indiana by age fifteen, and entered Purdue University in the fall of 1928 to study Civil Engineering. His plan was to obtain the engineering degree and then enter law school, hoping then to become a railroad attorney. It never happened. Though he was admitted to DePaul to study law, the mills were his only source of employment and, when the Depression intervened, he was laid off. There was no money for further studies.

Instead, he became active in Democrat Party politics, organizing and later chairing the Lake County Young Democrats, then the First District Young Democrats, and working diligently in the successful Democrat races of 1932. He had been promised employment if his party was successful, so he hitchhiked to Indianapolis following the election to obtain a job. Two weeks as the Senate Doorkeeper was all the party could guarantee, though, since so many were in need of jobs. That was later cut to one week, but he managed to find employment in a job not actually funded in the budget — Assistant Senate Postmaster.

After a week on the job, with no one realizing that there was no such post, he drew a paycheck — and stayed on for the rest of the session. Later, when the House of Representatives realized what had happened, they created, and appointed him Assistant Postmaster.

Subsequent government jobs took him through employment in the State Gross Income Tax Division and the State Employment Security Division, where he also served as legislative liaison. That job led to his employment by the State Chamber of Commerce as its director of Membership and Legislation.

In 1952, he was named executive vice president (the chief staff position) of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce. He left that position in 1962 to become chairman and president of the Indianapolis Water Company, a post he left to become chairman of the board and chief executive officer of American United Life Insurance Company in December of 1967. On July 1, 1968, he was named President of the Company, a position he has since relinquished to one of his sons-in-law.

Brother Reich's civic involvement is almost endless. Among his favorites is the Boy Scouts of America. Both of his sons-in-law are Eagle Scouts and in his office is a walnut plaque with eight brass plates. On six of them are the names of grandsons who are Eagle Scouts (the other two grandsons aren't yet old enough).

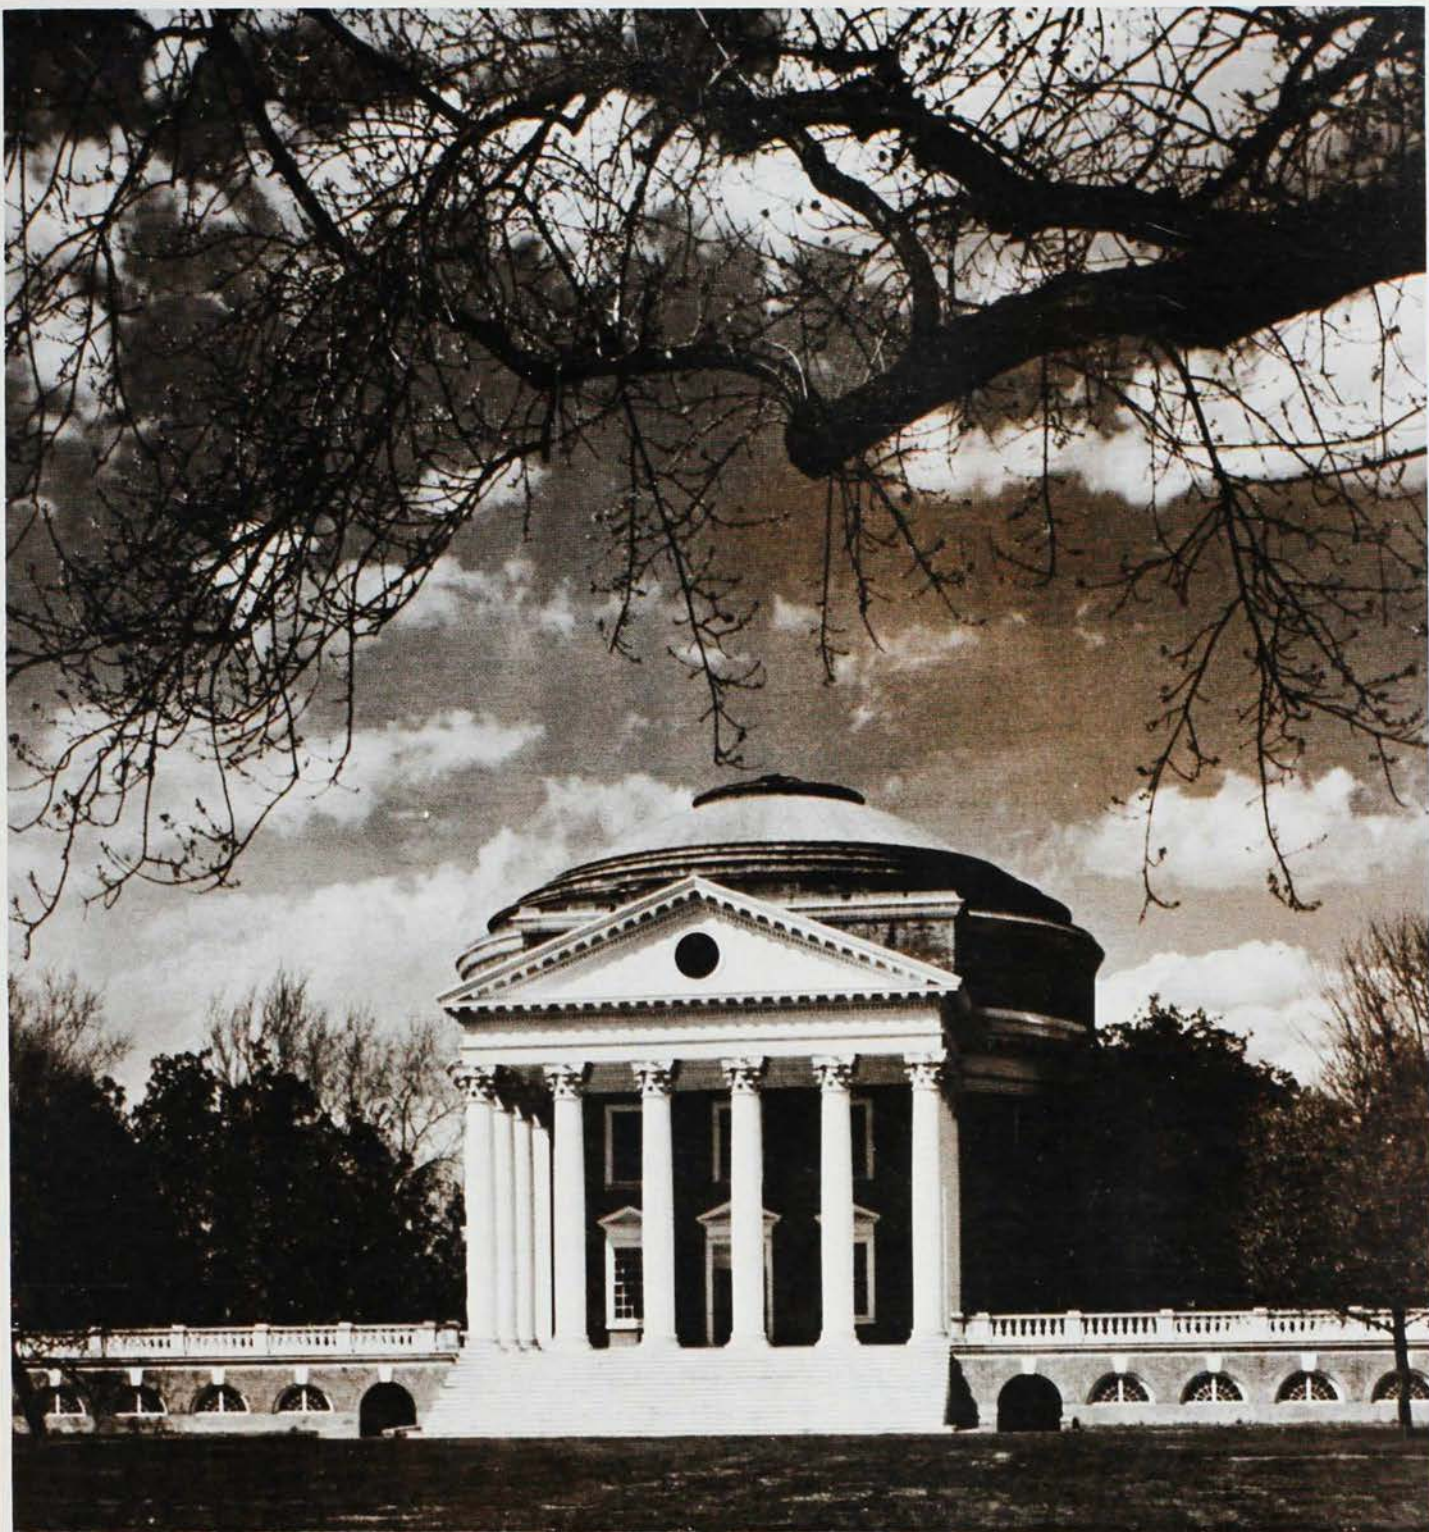

Earlier this year, when the local Boy Scout Council asked him to allow them to honor his service to Scouting with a recognition dinner, he declined. Instead, he chaired a Scouting dinner for area businessmen and raised more than $40,000 for the Boy Scout programs in Indianapolis. Classic Jack Reich.

His fraternity days provide happy memories of good times built on adversity. The fact that he had to deliver papers and work in the fraternity kitchen in order to afford his fraternity membership didn't bother Brother Reich. It was something he wanted and he was willing to work for it.

His support of PiKA has now spanned more than fifty years and isn't limited only to his chapter at Purdue. When Delta Xi chapter at Indiana University needed financing to acquire new housing in the late 1960's, for instance, no banks or other conventional lenders would touch a loan to a fraternity. American United Life took the chance, provided the loan, and secured housing for the Pikes at IU, Purdue's oldest rival.

That sort of attitude, of a "good citizen" concerned for his fellow man, of a brother who cares for brothers, is Jack Reich, a man who truly lives our ideal of congeniality based upon character.

Pi Kappa Alpha's Unfinished Journey: The Annual Report

record

NINETEEN EIGHTY-FIVE was another record breaking and precedent setting year for Pi Kappa Alpha. Two new chapters were installed, carrying the Fraternity through the “Theta Series” which will make Pi Kappa Alpha’s next new chapter Iota Alpha. Membership statistics have broken records for the fourth consecutive year. New programs utilizing alumni have been implemented to enhance our expansion and chapter development programs. And a renewed commitment has been established by all of the Fraternity’s governing arms.

As the 1984-85 academic school year came to a close in June, the Fraternity listed 174 active chapters and three colonies on its roll call. Unfortunately, during this time the Fraternity did see three chapters surrender their charters. Two chapters, Eta Eta (Morehead State College) and Eta Xi (Alabama-Birmingham) closed due to low membership. Meanwhile, Gamma Pi (University of Oregon) was closed because of serious financial problems.

On a more positive note, Pi Kappa Alpha was able to prevent three chapters from failing with the new alumni receivership program. Today, Alpha Mu (Georgia), Alpha Gamma (LSU) and Delta Beta (Bowling Green State University) have been able to retain their charters while alumni assist these chapters in getting back on their feet.

This year also saw pledge and initiation statistics continue to increase for the fourth straight year. Our chapters pledged 5,591 men and initiated 4,203 of them into the Fraternity. This increased the total undergraduate membership size by two and a half percent over last year. This year we ended the academic year with 12,226 undergraduates, the largest number ever!

The average number of members per chapter has also increased to seventy men per chapter from sixty-eight last year. Meanwhile, the average pledge class size increased by four men over last year to thirty-two, and initiations per chapter increased as well to twenty-four from twenty-three last year.

Pi Kappa Alpha chapters are definitely excelling, both in their internal organizations and on their respective campuses. Evidence of this can be found in records at the Memorial Headquarters. In those records it is noted that in 1980, the national staff had ranked thirty-eight chapters excellent according to their chapter evaluation procedure. At the end of this academic year the staff had ranked sixty-one chapters excellent using that same procedure.

Due to this incredible statistic the Fraternity will give out more national awards this year than it has ever done before. A list of those chapters receiving national recognition can be found in this issue.

While boasting about breaking records, attendance at this year's fifteen regional conferences cannot be overlooked. Again this year Pi Kappa Alpha's regional presidents orchestrated an informative and educational schedule of conferences with 169 of our 174 chapters participating in the programs. Through these conferences 2,850 undergraduates were able to participate in seminars dealing with rush, pledge education, scholarship, drug and alcohol abuse, and many other chapter management programs.

Another conference which was a success in the 1984-85 academic year was the SMC conference in January. This was the twelfth annual SMC conference and it drew eighty-one chapter presidents to Memphis for a weekend program of sessions dealing with the role and responsibilities of the SMC. To date, Pi Kappa Alpha is still the only national fraternity that has a program solely for the chapter president.

In the area of communications, Pi Kappa Alpha's GARNET & GOLD Pledge Manual came out in its twenty-second printing this year. This new edition also represents the fourth major revision of the manual since it was introduced to our chapters in 1956. Demand for the new GARNET & GOLD was so overwhelming that it will undergo another printing this fall.

Meanwhile, the SHIELD & DIAMOND continues to gain national recognition amongst other fraternity and sorority magazines.

At the time of this printing the national staff is preparing for the 1985 Officers' Leadership Academy. This is another program that we are happy to report will attract more undergraduate members than it did when it was revived in 1983. Already thirty-eight percent more Pikes are registered for this four day academy than our last one.

Of course this annual report wouldn't be complete if it didn't include the Fraternity's past national convention which was held in Dallas last summer. According to many long-time participants of our national conventions, Dallas will be remembered as one of our best ever. With this in mind, plans have begun for another extravaganza in Boston in 1986!

From this overview of the 1984-85 year it's obvious that the journey which began on March 1, 1868 is unfinished. Pi Kappa Alpha is prepared to continue setting new records in all areas. The ground work has already been laid for our next year.

In the area of expansion and chapter development several projects have already been slated. Two new colonies will be established this fall. At the beginning of September Pi Kappa Alpha will colonize at the University of California at Fresno, and when a group has been organized there the Fraternity's professional staff will then travel to the University of Wyoming to colonize a group there. Meanwhile, other staff resources will be working to establish alumni receiverships at Gamma Delta (Arizona) and Alpha Zeta (Arkansas).

Other potential colony sites for which the Fraternity will be bidding include: the University of Connecticut, Birmingham-Southern, Nevada-Reno, California at Santa Barbara, James Madison and California-Irvine.

The Fraternity will also be holding its first Regional President's Workshop in September. This weekend workshop will attract all of our fifteen regional presidents. During this time we will look at ways to improve our regional conferences so that they continue to provide a rewarding fraternity education.

Many other programs will be going through overhauls to bring them up to date so that the national office can continue to provide programming ideas for our chapter's use when confronting the current trends and needs. A new minimum chapter standards policy which was approved by the Supreme Council this spring will be implemented this year.

The SHIELD & DIAMOND is another service that will not go without some change. In the future the magazine will continue to report on the state of the Fraternity's chapters. However, the magazine will take on the responsibility of reporting more on our alumni through alumni notes and alumni spotlights. It will recognize alumni involved with the Fraternity's expansion and chapter development programs, while also assisting alumni associations to communicate with brothers in their areas.

The months ahead are going to be exciting ones for the Fraternity and all of its members. Many great things are going to be happening. We hope that all of Pi Kappa Alpha's alumni and undergraduates will take part in assisting our national officers carry out this next part of the Fraternity's journey. A journey which will lead us to Boston for the 1986 national convention.

Dr. Thomas K. McCraw

Pike Proj

Tom McCraw

by Norm Hulcher

APRIL 24, 1983 started out as just another day for Dr. Thomas K. McCraw.

The forty-four year old Gamma Iota (Mississippi) alumnus was in the middle of teaching a seminar at the Harvard Business School, where he is a professor of business history. His secretary slipped into the classroom and handed him a note. Tom McCraw's life hasn't been the same since.

The message: he had won a Pulitzer Prize for his latest book, Prophets of Regulation, a study of, according to one review, "the special inferno and purgatory American history has made of the relation between business and government."

News of such an honor would tend to distract a person, but brother McCraw handled it with aplomb. "I couldn't do very much," he told the Boston Globe. "I couldn't just interrupt (the seminar); I was running it."

Nonchalance aside, however, winning a Pulitzer Prize is no small feat. When colleagues and students presented him with a cake bearing the phrase "A Pulitzer Prize is nice — but compared to what?" he replied, "Compared to just about anything."

The honor marked the high point in a distinguished career that stems from McCraw's undergraduate days at the University of Mississippi. A IKA triple legacy (his father and uncle were members of Alpha Eta chapter at the University of Florida, his brother at Zeta chapter at the University of Tennessee), he pledged at Gamma Iota in the fall of 1958. He was a contemporary of Brad Dye and Thad Cochran, who went on to political fame as, respectively, Mississippi's lieutenant governor and U.S. senator.

Cochran was three years ahead of McCraw. "I remember he rushed me," McCraw recalls. "We were good friends and still are."

After earning his bachelor's degree in English from Ole Miss in 1962, McCraw served four years as a U.S. Navy supply officer before entering graduate school at the University of Wisconsin. Specializing in history, law and economics, he completed his MA degree in 1968 and his PhD in 1970. Among his numerous honors while at Wisconsin was the Williams P. Lyons prize, a national award for the best master's thesis in the field of history.

McCraw joined the faculty at the University of Texas, where as an associate professor he directed the masters and doctoral programs in history. But in 1978, the Harvard Business School beckoned.

"The reason I was recruited here was not precisely because I was a historian, but because my field was business-government relations. In the 1970's, when that became important in business, the Harvard Business School and many others recruited people like me to try to augment their resources and expertise on business and government."

Free to cavort in that specialized field, McCraw focused on government regulation of American business, a subject which, as a source of excitement for most laymen ranks slightly above watching fruit ripen. But McCraw saw government regulation as a means of accentuating the differences between the private sector in the U.S. versus that of other countries.

McCraw notes that, in contrast to the United States, "other countries either have public ownership of a lot of industries which are regulated here, or they allow the private sector a good deal more discretion than is allowed here. Conversely, it's always been the case that governments abroad have a strong voice in big investment decisions or plant locations."

"American government, as a bureaucracy, is a very young creation; it dates from the New Deal, whereas Japanese bureaucracy, the German or even the British date back several hundred years."

Pondering the contrasts aroused McCraw's curiosity. What's different, he wondered, about the United States, and what is it in regulation that shows up those differences?

"When I started on this, regulation was not a particularly important topic," McCraw recalls. "It became a national obsession in the late 1970's and business people began to pay attention to it."

The challenge of this subject was not limited to a mere analysis, though, according to McCraw. He also had to devise a way "to take a dry, controversial, multifaceted, multidisciplinary topic like this and make it intelligible." The answer was a matter of style displayed in Prophets of Regulation.

McCraw converted part of his study into a series of biographies of four Americans who helped shape an era of regulation, and who embodied the characteristics of that era: Charles Francis Adams, Louis D. Brandeis, James M. Landis and Alfred E. Kahn. "It became apparent that the only way I could bring the reader along was through the eyes of these people."

Regulation is not McCraw's only area of expertise, however. He is a member of the historical advisory board of life hasn't been the same since.

NASA and directs a required Harvard MBA course, Business, Government and the International Economy. He also has spent several weeks during each of the past three summers in Tokyo, teaching at the Nomura Research Institute's School of Advanced Management. This experience endows McCraw with a learned perspective on the roles of major countries in the world's economy.

Mention of "world economy" conjures images of high-level dealings among the Exxons and Mitsubishis, but McCraw warns that international business strikes close to home.

"The world economy is interdependent. Even a small proprietor is affected by such things as differential exchange rates and competition from the Japanese and now other Asian countries. Once the 'oil shocks' of the 1970's came, it became obvious that the United States was just as integrated in the world economy as any other country."

Japan's emergence during the 1970's as a major competitor of the U.S. has caused many informed observers to wonder how Japan came so far so fast. McCraw believes it was not by accident.

"They started out by closing their own borders, so they had a captive market... and did not allow American manufacturers to sell there. They developed a command of the home market, used that market to develop expertise that would be useful in export markets, and that built capacity beyond their own domestic requirements in such industries as steel and, later, automobiles and semiconductors.

"Meanwhile, they kept control of the domestic market and used that control to service the huge fixed costs necessary in capital-intensive industries, permitting them to sell at more attractive costs abroad. That, of course, requires a very close coordination of government and business policies, and the government provided a setting in which that sort of thing is possible."

"Now, one of the most interesting aspects of this story is that it confounds traditional economic theory, which says that if you protect the home market... and permit cartels or business combinations of a horizontal nature, inefficiency will result. Well, the Japanese have done both of those things and somehow or other have managed to remain extremely efficient."

Knowledge of the cultural disciplines which have allowed the Japanese to "confound traditional economic theory" is a prime justification for bringing historians like Tom McCraw into the world of business education.

"I think the basic thing (which gives Japan an edge) is the nation-wide sense of weakness and vulnerability that kind of galvanizes everybody involved into thinking that they've got to do this to survive," McCraw contends. "That would be impossible in an American context."

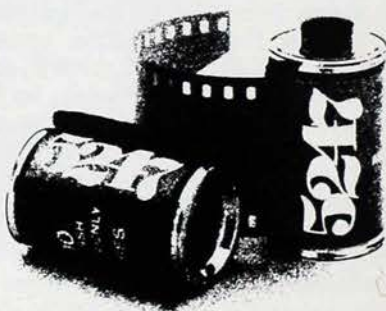

Despite certain Japanese successes, McCraw suggests that Americans should not consider themselves second-class citizens in the world economy.

"If you think about it, the things they're beating us in are not a very long list. It's not as if they can choose anything and wipe out the world competition. They're not good at a lot of things; they're not particularly good entrepreneurs, they're not good at agriculture, and their energy industries are not terribly well managed."

Such a high degree of expertise in, and exposure to, the international business scene tempts many educators to abandon the campus in favor of positions in government or in the private sector. Would Tom McCraw consider leaving the academic world?

"I don't think I would," says IKA's soft-spoken Pulitzer Prize winner. Then, with a chuckle, he adds, "I think I'm cut out to be a scholar."

The Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation

Contributions as of June 30, 1985.

Dear Brothers:

The 1984-85 academic year is now part of Pi Kappa Alpha's history and on behalf of the Memorial Foundation, I want to thank all of our alumni who participated in last year's annual campaign.

I wish that I could personally thank each one of you for your gift and tell you how your gift benefited the Fraternity and our over twelve thousand undergraduate brothers. However, since that's impossible I hope that you take the time to read through this and future issues of the SHIELD & DIAMOND to watch how the Memorial Foundation has utilized your recent gifts.

Pi Kappa Alpha has proven itself as a leader amongst other national fraternities over the past fifteen years and the current support from our alumni is giving us the momentum for an even stronger future.

Since Pi Kappa Alpha was founded, alumni have been the motivating force behind the Fraternity, and 117 years later that tradition has not changed. Like so many already, I hope that more alumni will make the commitment to take an active role in this period of Pi Kappa Alpha's history.

Fraternally,

George W. Denton
Memorial Foundation President

Memphis Musician, IKA Alumnus Memorialized

ON MARCH thirteenth, 1985, nearly four hundred people flocked to the Skyway of the Peabody Hotel in Memphis for a Big Band tribute to the late Berl Olswanger (Delta Zeta, Memphis State '41). Roscoe's Surprise Orchestra showcased Olswanger's original compositions written during the 1940's and 1950's, when the popular pianist performed on Memphis radio and television. Now his thirty-six original jazz and blues compositions, including "Down in Memphis Town" with lyrics by retired Commercial Appeal columnist Lydel Sims, have been published in a book by Anna Olswanger, the musician's daughter. The Memphis Music of Berl Olswanger is a Limited Edition of six hundred copies, and in addition to the previously unpublished music, contains highlights of Olswanger's fifty-year career as composer, arranger and conductor. Grouped chronologically, the newsclippings and photographs which tell Olswanger's life story are essentially the story of popular music in Memphis.
