An Investment In Our Future!

"The Mississippi Delta begins in the lobby of the Peabody Hotel and ends on Catfish Row in Vicksburg.

The Peabody is the Paris Ritz, the Cairo Shepheard's, the London Savoy of this section.

If you stand near its fountain,
where ducks waddle

in the Delta...

Since 1973, the Chapter Presidents Conference has educated the presidents of Pi Kappa Alpha's chapters on how to improve chapter performance by teaching them how to become effective leaders, while giving them the personal skills to be successful in life.

 "The organization and effectiveness of the Conference make me proud to say I am a Pike."

A three-day leadership conference held every January for chapter presidents, this conference is by far the most intensive leadership program Pi Kappa Alpha offers. Workshop highlights include managing the rush program, risk management, membership development and leadership training.

 "Excellent Conference! I'm excited to share my new-found knowledge with the rest of the chapter."

For an SMC attending the 1994 Chapter Presidents Conference, there is a $10 registration fee. Presidents are only responsible for travel and lodging. Chapters, house corporations and alumni associations are encouraged to help offset these costs to allow their chapter presidents to attend.

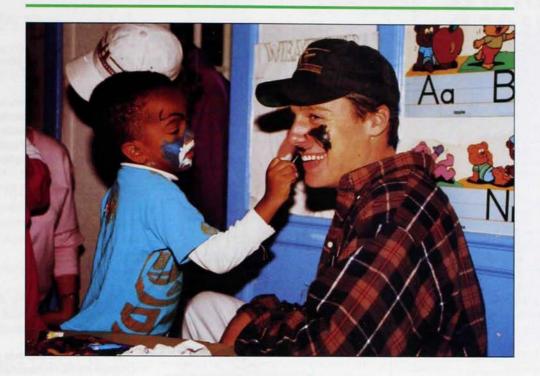

"It was a great learning experience for me and it will benefit my chapter immensely."

Enjoy the magic of Memphis and the historic surroundings of the Peabody Hotel at Pi Kappa Alpha's 1994 Chapter Presidents Conference. For more information, call the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Headquarters at (901) 748-1868.

Rush 2000 Chapter Objective:

To pledge and initiate five additional men this year over last year's rush figures.

Fall 1993 has been a busy time for all Pi Kappa Alpha chapters' rush programs. As of October 28, each chapter had pledged five more men than the previous year. The month of October proved to be one of the Fraternity's best months for rush in several years. This success is attributed to the aggressive, creative efforts of chapters. Such initiative will guarantee our chapters a competitive edge as they vie to be the top fraternity in their Greek systems.

The Fraternity's efforts now turn to the open rush period and membership education. Open rush will further distance us from our competitors. Also, a 100 percent retention rate is the goal of every pledge program. Remember — the second half of the Rush 2000 objective is to initiate at least five more men this year over last year's rush figures.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

A guy has to die. Or give money.

Those are apparently the only ways to get our Fraternity to acknowledge that there ever was such a thing as Beta Lambda Chapter, Washington University, St. Louis.

Take another look through September's Shield & Diamond, for instance:

Directory of Chapters, no mention. Alumni Notes, no. Annual Report, no. But..

Chapter Eternal, yes — a few deaths. Donor Roll, yes - a few more gifts.

How come the missing pages have been ripped out of the Fraternity's autobiography? Is it something we did?

Is it perhaps because fifty years ago (!) we committed the apparently unforgiveable, apparently unforgettable sin of pledging an American of Japanese descent?

Yours for unity in diversity,

Donald E. Fawcett (Washington, Beta Lambda '43) Los Angeles

Dear Brother Fawcett,

Thank you for your interest in the Shield & Diamond's coverage of Beta Lambda Chapter. I want to take this opportunity to let you know that the magazine is devoted to coverage of all active and silent chapters.

You discussed the lack of Beta Lambda coverage in the Directory of Chapters, Alumni Notes and the Annual Report. The reason that Beta Lambda was not in the directory was because it contained only active chapters for 1992-93. There was no Beta Lambda coverage in Alumni Notes because no updates were sent to the magazine.

The magazine prints alumni updates from active and silent chapters. Beta Lambda was not featured in the Annual Report because it dealt with the active operations of the Fraternity in 1992-93.

Men from Beta Lambda were honored in Chapter Eternal because all deceased Pikes are deserving of this respect regardless of the status of their chapter. As for the members of Beta Lambda listed in the Donor Roll, these Pikes were featured with the rest of the men on the Donor Roll because they made gifts to the Educational Foundation in 1992-93.

The last part of your letter conveys the sentiment that your chapter has received unfair treatment for pledging an Asian-American 50 years ago. This is simply not the case. The Fraternity does not record the ethnic backgrounds of its members and Beta Lambda was an active chapter until 1960 when it went inactive because of overall weakness.

You can rest assured that Beta Lambda has not been forgotten by the National Fraternity. Director of Expansion Steve Vincent has aggressively pursued a possible Beta Lambda return to Washington University. The Fraternity has exhibited its commitment to recolonizing silent chapters with the recent chartering of Beta Tau Chapter at the University of Michigan and Gamma Eta Chapter at the University of Southern California. At this point, expansion at Washington University is out of the Fraternity's hands because the university is not seeking to expand its Greek Thanks again for your interest in the Shield & Diamond and in Beta Lambda Chapter. I encourage you to send an alumnus update to the magazine along with news regarding other Beta Lambda alumni. This may prompt other members of Beta Lambda to send information to the magazine.

— Ed.

Pi Kappa Alpha Educational Foundation recognizes outstanding commitment!

The Educational Foundation is able to accomplish its mission only because Pi Kappa Alpha's alumni and friends are so generous in their support.

To recognize those loyal alumni, whose support makes such a difference in so many young men's lives, the Foundation maintains the following recognition clubs and societies.

Annual Giving Clubs:

Century Club — $100.00 to $249.00 Loyalty Club — $250.00 to $499.00 President's Club — $500.00+

Chapter Notes

Wide Range of Activities Filled Chapters' Fall Calendars

SIGMA CHAPTER Vanderbilt University

Sigma celebrated its 100th anniversary (see page 12) during Vanderbilt's Homecoming weekend, October 15-17. The chapter used the anniversary festivities as a means to intensify its alumni relations program.

Aside from the Centennial celebration, the men of Sigma were busy taking part in daily campus activities. Dan Glasser was elected student association president of Peabody College. Geoffrey Hardin is battalion commander of Vanderbilt's Naval ROTC. Sigma's Pat Broome and Mike Dewars were starters on the soccer team. Craig Peckam served as managing editor of The Hustler, Vanderbilt's award winning newspaper.

Sigma has also spent the academic year participating in various philanthropic activities, such as Adopt-A-Highway, Second Harvest Food Bank, testing the sight of poverty stricken children of Nashville, and coaching soccer for underprivileged boys.

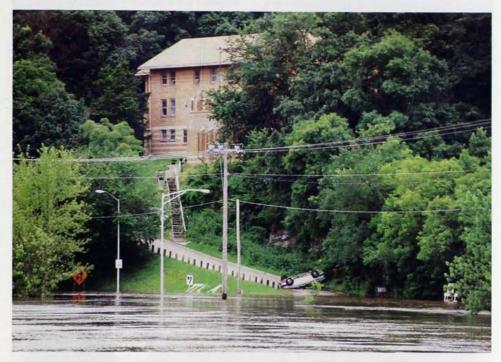

The chapter house has undergone numerous renovations. The house received a brand new deck in the rear of the house, a new study room, new floors, new furniture, a new pool table, and various repairs.

AZ ALPHA ZETA CHAPTER University of Arkansas

The men of Alpha Zeta conducted their third annual "Halloween Safe Treating." The chapter house was opened up to area children as they went trick-or-treating from room to room. While visiting the chapter house, parents of trick-or-treaters could have their children finger-printed by the Fayetteville Police Department. The Chi Omega Sorority assisted the Pikes with the event, which was held in conjunction with the chapter's annual Riverboat Homecoming Weekend.

On campus, Pikes were visible in a number of campus activities. John Gimenez was chairman of Celebrity Showcase. Linc Darrow was Celebrity Showcase stage director and Steve Zimmerman was Celebrity Showcase security director. During Greek Week, Alpha Zeta won the softball tournament.

Renovations were completed at the chapter house. Central air-conditioning, new windows, new wiring, new plumbing, new blinds, and new carpet were all results of the renovation.

AH ALPHA ETA CHAPTER University of Florida

The Florida Pikes made a strong showing in the academic arena. Matt Hurbanis, a pre-med student, maintained a 4.0 GPA and was named to the All-SEC Academic football team. Hurbanis was also active in Omicron Delta Kappa and Phi Eta Sigma. Cameron Dezfulian interned this past summer at the International Labor Convention in Geneva, Switzerland. He was selected from several thousand applicants. Dezfulian also received a grant from the National Institute of Health to conduct research at Florida's Biochemical and Molecular Biology Research Center.

Alumni relations continued to be a major part of chapter life at Alpha Eta. Over 200 Pike alumni attended each home football game and more than 300 returned for Homecoming. Alumni are kept informed through the chapter newsletter, the Alpha Eta Gator. The chapter has developed an elite alumni club where each alumnus contributes $200 annually. This membership provides privileged status at all Pike functions, including first priority seating at dinners and barbecues, special socials, and written invitations to every game. Membership currently stands at 85 alumni.

Community service was also a priority to the Alpha Eta Pikes throughout the fall semester. In just a little over a month, community service hours were accumulated through activities such as Adopt-A-Highway, Adopt-A-Neighborhood, Habit for Humanity and "Bowling for Kid's Sake". The Pikes also sponsored the Gainesville YMCA baseball team, put on a mass-CPR course for the American Heart Association, and volunteered for the Wildlife Retirement Center.

AK ALPHA KAPPA CHAPTER University of Missouri-Rolla

The men of Alpha Kappa would like to thank all alumni that attended 1993's Homecoming celebration. The first annual alumni golf tournament was also a success. The chapter placed in the top three of Homecoming activities as well as the top three of Greek Week competitions.

In the area of campus involvement, Alpha Kappa has placed members in prominent leadership positions. John Grater is president of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers and Rob Bockhorst is treasurer. Tom Holt is president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and Brian Beyer is treasurer. Denis Mink is president of the American Foundrymen's Society and Terry Chevalier is president of Phi Eta Sigma. The chapter brotherhood also included seven varsity athletes. In rush, the chapter pledged 18 men in Fall 1993. Athletics were also a source of success for the chapter as they placed first in the overall intramural competition. Alpha Kappa had second place finishes in racquetball and softball as well as a first place finish in golf.

AE ALPHA XI CHAPTER University of Cincinnati

On October 2, the men of Alpha Xi participated in the annual "Walktoberfest" in Cincinnati. The event benefited the fight against diabetes. Pikes passed out food and drinks to participants as they passed the chapter house. Alpha Xi rushed 33 men for their fall pledge class. This was a great tribute to the chapter's rush efforts as they succeeded in a Greek system where other Greek organizations' numbers have been in decline.

AO ALPHA OMICRON CHAPTER Southwestern University The brothers of Alpha Omicron continued their commitment to academic excellence by winning Southwestern University's scholarship trophy for the 47th time out of the last 51 semesters. Taking an active part in their local community, Alpha Omicron has been a driving force in the fundraising efforts and plans of Creative Playscape in Georgetown, Texas. Creative Playscape is a playground designed by children in the community to be built by volunteers. The Pikes also hosted their annual "Kick for Those that Can't" kickball tournament. This coed tournament raised $500.00 for the Central Texas United Cerebral Palsy Association.

AQ ALPHA OMEGA CHAPTER Kansas State University

Alpha Omega started off the year with 33 new pledges and was already formulating a plan for spring rush. Alumni relations have improved and were aided by a solid show of support after the Kansas-Kansas State football game. Due to the floods that took place in the Midwest, the chapter was forced to cancel their annual "Beach Bash" philanthropy and sponsor a Halloween event. Alpha Omega constructed a haunted house at the chapter house along with safe trick-ortreating for area children. The event was sponsored by eight of the twelve sororities on campus and the Riley County Police Department.

For the third straight year, the Pikes were all fraternity intramural wrestling champions.

BB BETA BETA CHAPTER University of Washington

Once a month, the men of Beta Beta hold formal alumni dinners. These dinners were started last spring and have served as an excellent means of communicating with alumni.

The ninth annual Pi Kappa Alpha Sorority Football Tourney was the chapter's major philanthropy for the fall quarter. The proceeds from the event were donated to the University District Foodbank, where Pikes offered assistance by bagging and distributing food. Any Pike chapters interested in how to establish a similar tournament may contact John MacClelland at (206) 526-8191.

President William J. Clinton congratulates White House Intern Todd Allen Finger (Emory, Beta Kappa '91) on his work with the Presidential Office of Scheduling and Advance.

Emory University Pike Serves White House Internship in Washington, D.C.

Todd Allen Finger (Beta Kappa '91) was awarded one of our nation's most respected internships during Summer 1993. Finger was chosen from an applicant pool of 10,000 students to become one of only 100 selected to work in the White House Internship Program. This program affords students the opportunity to experience firsthand the inner workings of the executive branch of the United States government.

Finger was further honored to be one of only two interns selected to travel the country arranging events for the President. Among his responsibilities with working in the Presidential Office of Scheduling and Advance were assisting in the scheduling of domestic and international events and appearances by the President and First Lady, and coordinating the travel and event logistics in the days and weeks preceding any trips made by the first family. While traveling as part of the advance team, Finger was responsible for crowd advance. His work included a rally held in West Virginia to celebrate the passing of President Clinton's budget, attended by fifteen thousand people. For his efforts, he was personally congratulated by the President.

On the Emory University campus, Finger has been a successful student, brother and campus leader. He has been a perennial member of the dean's list and is currently preparing for his LSAT exam. He has been elected president of the Emory University Business School and is a member of the school's honor council. He was one of a small group of students chosen, because of their roles as campus leaders, to have dinner with President Jimmy Carter.

Finger's high profile on campus has been a plus to Beta Kappa Chapter during rush. Recently elected "Brother of the Week", he serves the chapter as chairman of the Ritual Committee and pledge educator.

BH BETA ETA CHAPTER University of Illinois

On September 9, Beta Eta sponsored a benefit concert for Midwest flood victims. Brothers are also coaching grade school children in soccer, football and basketball with the cooperation of the Champaign YMCA.

The Illinois Pikes are represented in a wide range of campus activities. Pikes are actively involved in areas such as IFC, in which David Frankel is the vice president of public relations.

Alumni relations are a focal point of the chapter's programs. A newsletter was sent out in the fall and alumni attendance has increased at Beta Eta's pre-game activities during the football season.

A new determination in the rush program resulted in Beta Eta recruiting several campus leaders in the last two pledge classes. Goncalo Macedo was a member of the 1992 Portuguese Olympic team and placed sixth in the European Gymnastics Championships. Richard Keene was the 1992-93 Big Ten basketball freshman of the year. Josh Klimek and Brian McClure both passed up professional baseball contracts to attend U of I. The chapter's first pledge class of the fall stood at 25 men and a new pledge class was formed after Thanksgiving break.

In athletics, the Pikes took second in a campus wide Olympic tournament. They also fielded two football teams.

BK BETA KAPPA CHAPTER Emory University

The men of Beta Kappa want to thank all alumni who attended the chapter's alumni event on September 14. Over 50 alumni were present, including over 20 members of the class of 1988.

In the spring, the chapter will be hosting an alumni event in honor of Velma Hill, who cooked for the Pikes for 33 years. Alumni will be informed of the details of the event as soon as they are available.

BO BETA OMICRON CHAPTER University of Oklahoma

Beta Omicron teamed up with Delta Gamma Sorority during Oklahoma's Homecoming celebration and took top honors during the festivities. Parade float, location decoration, and banner were among the competitions in which the duo took first prize. Beta Omicron's Trey Bregnard and Delta Gamma's Dannelle Vance were Homecoming coordinators.

The chapter's risk management coordinator, Joseph Price, was selected Outstanding Senior in the College of Engineering. This honor was based upon academic performance, service to the College, and outstanding performance in his area of study.

The Gamma Xi chapter house at Washington State University received a facelift this summer.

BΣ BETA SIGMA CHAPTER Carnegie-Mellon University

Beta Sigma has been working diligently to eliminate many problems. Through the help of the chapter advisor, dedicated brothers and alumni, Beta Sigma was able to erase nearly $20,000 worth of debt and increase the chapter's membership by 30 percent.

The chapter pledged 19 men in the fall thanks to the outstanding work of Rush Chairman Jeff Smith. Smith pledged the fall pledge class, plus ten men last spring. This was an outstanding accomplishment for a chapter that had only 29 active members going into last spring's rush.

The Pikes were involved with Chatham College, a local all-women's college, in sponsoring a Halloween haunted house. Proceeds went to a local rape awareness shelter. On the Carnegie-Mellon campus, Nathan Cormier was elected to the position of IFC social chairman. Two Pikes were members of the Greek Council.

Under the direction of Ben Bell, Beta Sigma produced an alumni newsletter and received tremendous results. Donations from dedicated alumni more than covered the cost of the newsletter.

BY BETA UPSILON CHAPTER University of Colorado

Garrett Ford, a starting tight-end for the Colorado football team, was nominated for student-athlete of the week. He maintains a 3.2 GPA in business and real estate and is the only member of the football team to win this award twice.

During Parent's Weekend in October, Beta Upsilon teamed up with Pi Beta Phi Sorority to put on the weekend's activities. The weekend started with a meeting of the Beta Upsilon parents, followed by a brunch. A casino party was held later that night through the efforts of Social Chairman Chris Clark.

In rush, the Pikes pledged 21 of the 200 men that came through rush.

TH GAMMA ETA CHAPTER University of Southern California

For the first time in decades, USC and IFC did not facilitate nor assist fraternities at USC in fall rush. In prior years, all freshman males interested in the Greek system were put on a university "rush list." Now free to rush on their own, the men of Gamma Eta pledged 28 men, including a varsity football player, a varsity basketball player and a varsity baseball player. After only two years on campus, the Gamma Eta Pikes are one of the five largest fraternities at USC.

TE GAMMA XI CHAPTER Washington State University

Gamma Xi made a strong showing during the fall with a new addition to the chapter house and a pledge class of 23. The $50,000 renovation marks the completion of the remodeling process which began in 1991.

Other activities during the fall included Gamma Xi's annual haunted house, first annual sorority flag football tournament, Adopt-A-Block program, and various community service events. The chapter also won the softball league, placed second in volleyball, and made the semi-finals of indoor co-ed soccer.

The brothers of Delta Iota Chapter at Marshall University pitched in to help the United Way.

TO GAMMA OMICRON CHAPTER University of Ohio

The Gamma Omicron Pikes earned the university's Chapter Academic Excellence Award, given to the Fraternity with the highest GPA. The chapter maintains just below a 3.0 GPA.

Over 50 alumni returned to Athens for the annual alumni association meeting. Alumni and actives enjoyed a football game in the afternoon and a buffet-style banquet in the evening. At the meeting, the housing corporation announced plans to build townhouse apartments for the chapter in the near future.

Gamma Omicron is hard at work to hold on to the university's Outstanding Community Service Award. The Pikes have tallied community service hours with Adopt-A-Highway and visits to a local nursing home.

In the fall, the chapter pledged the most men since its rechartering in 1987. Gamma Omicron initiated its 1,000th member this fall, and has initiated approximately 300 men since the chapter's rechartering.

TT GAMMA TAU CHAPTER Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Alumnus John McFarland chartered the Gamma Tau Alumni Association at this year's Homecoming weekend. The association fosters improved alumni relations by assuming responsibility for alumni mailings, plus plans for Homecoming and Founders Day.

Michael Fishkin and Karl Umstadter serve as committee chairmen on the student senate. Marc Crudele and Jamie Williams serve on the executive board. SMC John Cococcia and IMC Arthur Auchenbach are both active members of the Gamma Tau Alumni Association.

On the playing field, Gamma Tau won the intramural football championship by placing its two teams in first and second in the league. Derek Samuelson is captain of the varsity soccer team and Andrew Wishart is on the varsity lacrosse team.

TY GAMMA UPSILON CHAPTER University of Tulsa

Gamma Upsilon is seeking the assistance of its alumni in the development of a history and memorabilia room in the chapter house. The Pikes currently have chapter yearbooks, pictures, and artifacts of the chapter, but more memorabilia is needed to complete the room. Anything alumni wish to donate, pictures, party favors, or other chapter souvenirs would be a welcome addition. Items may be dropped by the chapter house or mailed to Stephen Stabler, public relations chairman, Box 1153, Tulsa, OK 74101. Please include some type of description with your contribution. Donors will be recognized on a plaque, and next to the contributed item on display.

A A DELTA DELTA CHAPTER Florida Southern College

On the Florida Southern campus, Michael Carter holds the position of IFC treasurer. Brandon Stritch is the sports editor for The Southern. Ron Difava is the head of club volleyball. Brian Rutledge heads co-ed swimming and Lauren Williams is the head of crew.

The Pikes of Florida Southern pledged 25 percent of the campus rush class — the most of any fraternity on campus. In athletics, the chapter took first place in volleyball.

AI DELTA IOTA CHAPTER Marshall University

During the fall term, Delta Iota continued to make a name for itself throughout the community and on the Marshall campus. The chapter participated in five community service events the first four weeks of the fall semester, and was also active in rush. Delta Iota's fall pledge class of 27 men led the Marshall fraternities.

Delta Iota began the academic year with new officers. Chad Vandigrift is president, Bob Wallace is first vice president and Fred Hammack is second vice president. Scott Bumgardner serves as treasurer, Randall Zeh is secretary, and Steve Field is sergeant-at-arms.

AN DELTA NU CHAPTER Wayne State University

Chapter Vice President Michael Roberts was elected to Wayne State's student council and will also serve as chairman of the Horace Mann Society. On October 8, Delta Nu participated in a program called "Into the Streets." Pikes devoted their day to lending a helping hand to residents of the Detroit area, by cleaning abandoned lots within the city. Delta Nu was also proud to have a member selected to serve the Fraternity on the national level. Mark Dziatczak was named an undergraduate vice president on the Supreme Council.

Delta Nu's other fall activities included the pledging of 22 men and a 47-0 victory over Theta Tau Fraternity in the first intramural football game of the year. The Pikes softball team led the standings in the fall intramural league.

ΔΞ DELTA XI CHAPTER Indiana University

Paul Sweeney and Chris Hallock were inducted into the Kappa Omicron Chapter of the Order of Omega. Delta Xi's rush efforts brought 20 men into the Delta Xi pledge program.

EA EPSILON LAMBDA CHAPTER Murray State University

The Fall 1993 semester began with the Pikes of Epsilon Lambda proving to be a strong presence both on and off campus. The chapter participated in the local bluegrass festival and logged 42 community service hours; the highway clean-up program resulted in 50 hours; the Kiddie Carnival totaled 60 hours; and the Tootsie Roll Drive accumulated 60 hours. The chapter's top community service efforts were assisting a little league baseball program and summer flood relief. The two programs produced 342 and 415 hours respectively.

Epsilon Lambda was also a prominent part of Murray State athletics. Randy Privette, Jeremy Nelson, Daryl Porter, and Nick Winsett were varsity cheerleaders. Jonathan Bell, Jason Miller, John Edwards, and Chris Powless were new junior varsity cheerleaders.

In student government, Brians Van Horn was elected SGA president and Randy Renfrow served on the SGA judicial board. Fall rush totaled ten new pledges for the fall semester.

EX EPSILON SIGMA CHAPTER University of Tennessee-Martin

In the fall, 204 men went through formal rush. 54 men accepted the bid of Epsilon Sigma.

During Greekfest at UTM there were four areas of competition involving fraternities and sororities. Pi Kappa Alpha placed first in every division and won the spirit award at the football game. The Pikes won the overall Greekfest trophy, becoming the first fraternity to win the trophy at UTM.

ZT ZETA GAMMA CHAPTER Eastern Illinois University

April 12, 1994, marks Pi Kappa Alpha's 30th year at Eastern Illinois University. Events for alumni and actives are scheduled for April 15-17. For more information, please call (217) 345-3295.

Zeta Gamma pledged 40 men in the fall and the excitement of rush carried over into other events of the semester. Pikes were a force in athletics with no lower than second place in any intramural activity. Victories in trap shooting, pickleball, table tennis doubles, along with playoff appearances by both of the Pikes' football teams, led to an overall first place standing for the Pikes in intramurals.

ZK ZETA KAPPA CHAPTER Ferris State University

The Pikes of Ferris State recognized the need for academic excellence within the chapter. The chapter raised the minimum grade point average requirement of the chapter from a 2.25 GPA to 2.50 GPA.

On campus, Pi Kappa Alpha was represented in student government by two members of Zeta Kappa. In fall rush, the Pikes pledged 18 of the 40 men who participated in rush.

Housing renovations were underway during the fall. Landscaping was also being done around the structure and the Pikes are dedicating a tree to brother Dick Stuart who passed away last year.

ZP ZETA RHO CHAPTER University of North Dakota

The 25th Anniversary Homecoming of Zeta Rho was held on October 2. Many alumni returned for the celebration and saw the active chapter excel in the various Homecoming competitions.

Community service was also a prominent part of the Pikes' fall calendar as they continued their work with the Adopt-A-Highway program and Big Brothers of America. Chapter members also volunteered at the local Parkwood Place Retirement Home.

Thanks to the effort of its housing corporation, Zeta Rho's chapter house is receiving a new heating system.

Z ZETA SIGMA CHAPTER Florida Institute of Technology

The tradition of a successful Greek Week continued for Zeta Sigma as they won the event for the fifteenth straight year.

Through the financial assistance of the Alumni House Restoration Fund, the chapter was able to replace the deck on the back of the chapter house. In order to cut expenses, Zeta Kappa's house manager, Thomas Miller, and several other Pikes completed the project themselves.

As for community service, one weekend each semester, Pikes solicit donations for the Jeremy Weiss Foundation. This foundation provides a prevention center to offer care and assistance to youths suffering from substance abuse.

HE Angelo State University

On September 6, Eta Epsilon volunteered for the Muscular Dystrophy Association Telethon. Pikes assisted the telethon by answering phone calls and taking bids. They also completed correspondence sent to donors. Following the telethon, the chapter aided the Region 5 American Heart Association with their fall fundraising activities. The first event was "Christmas for the Heart" where artists displayed and sold light sculptures of Christmas figures. The second event was "Cardiac Arrest." All employees were asked to have their bosses "arrested" and to then raise money for bail. "Cardiac Arrest" raised a total of $47,000 for the Heart Association. The Pikes also assisted the American Heart Association's "Heart Walk."

"I have found the members of Pi Kappa Alpha to be very kind and generous with their time and efforts. They gladly assisted me wherever I needed. They will definitely be asked back," said Patsy Lynch, director, Region 5 of the American Heart Association.

HN ETA NU CHAPTER Northern Illinois University

Eta Nu suffered one of its biggest setbacks in its history when the chapter house was lost in a fire. The fire occurred during an alumni reunion when a controlled fire in the fireplace spontaneously ignited the wooden support beams on the second floor due to a hole in the fire wall. The fire left the chapter with over $100,000 in damages and 40 brothers homeless. Fortunately, no one was hurt in the blaze.

At a time when the chapter could have easily given up, the men of Eta Nu Chapter rallied together and won the floor hockey championship the day after the fire. Then later in the same month, the Pikes won the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity Tug-of-War. This was the Pikes' 21st victory in 23 attempts at the competition. As the chapter continued on with their daily activities, they actively sought contributions through phone calls and a letter campaign to aid reconstruction of the chapter house.

Lane Clark (Eta Epsilon '90) participated in the Mr. Angelo State Contest and won the "Mr. Congeniality" award.

In the classroom, Eta Nu ranked fourth amongst fraternities in scholarship. The Pikes also had strong representation at university leadership seminars. Phil Dalton was on the varsity debate team.

Aside from their campus activities, members of Eta Nu took an active role in the community. Michael Ryan used his carpentry expertise to help build "Barb Land," a state of the art playlot designed with the assistance of children who will be using the play area. A philanthropy with the local American Red Cross was also successful as brothers cleaned and painted the Red Cross' new facility. Pat Barriantos was coordinator for Unity in Diversity, a committee that promotes cultural awareness on the NIU campus. Several Pikes were also involved in student government and campus committees.

ΘΑ THETA ALPHA CHAPTER University of North Alabama

Theta Alpha spent the fall busy with many community minded activities. They adopted a stretch of road near the campus to aid the Florence Beautification Project. A sand pit volleyball tournament was held for Big Brothers and Big Sisters and raised over $1,000. The Pikes were named "Hero of the Week" by a local television station for their philanthropic efforts. Theta Alpha also donated UNA football tickets to the Muscle Shoals Association for Retarded Citizens and raised money for the Safeplace Shelter for battered women.

Also pictured in Scott Steinhardt (Indiana State, Theta Omicron '92) at far right. All three are members of their respective cross country teams.

The UNA campus is well aware of the Pikes' solid reputation. UNA's student government president and vice president, IFC vice president, political science club president, accounting club president, and a residence hall assistant are all members of Theta Alpha. Pikes are also visible in the LaGrange Society, the UNA ambassador program, the student orientation program, and the student senate.

Theta Alpha took an aggressive stance with rush and pledged 20 percent more men than any other fraternity on campus. The chapter did not limit themselves to formal rush as they used the summer to recruit many new members.

Georgia College

Theta Gamma sent an initiation team to Georgia Southern University to assist in the chartering of Iota Upsilon Chapter at GSU. Theta Gamma extends its congratulations to PiKA's newest chapter and thanks them for allowing the chapter to participate in the ceremonies.

ΘΔ THETA DELTA CHAPTER Francis Marion College

The Pikes of Theta Delta started the fall with a new house and a new rushing technique. The chapter obtained a billboard near the university to raise community awareness of the Pikes and to serve as a rush tool. 17 men were pledged by Theta Delta. To further show the chapter's sincere commitment to the community, the Pikes cleaned a neighborhood park located down the street from the chapter house.

M THETA MU CHAPTER University of Massachusetts

The Massachusetts Pikes have made a resurgence in the past few years, partly as a result of academic success. Theta Mu has the highest GPA amongst fraternities on campus.

A number of Pikes were involved in fall internships. Craig Fink, a senior sports management major, was hired at the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield. Christopher Davidson, a senior accounting major was working for IBM in Connecticut. Peter Dunn, senior political science major, was studying in Ireland.

THETA PI CHAPTER University of Alabama-Huntsville

Last spring, the annual Miss Greek Pageant was sponsored by the Pikes and all sororities on campus were represented. It was the largest chapter fundraiser of the year. The chapter also held "Pike Shipwreck" which had over 600 people in attendance.

On campus, Pikes were represented in the presidency, vice presidency, and other SGA positions.

ΘΩ THETA OMEGA CHAPTER University of California-Davis

The UC-Davis Pikes have taken major steps in improving alumni relations with the formation of the Theta Omega Alumni Association. The president is Rick Thall, the secretary is Brian Oard, and the treasurer is Mark Moller. The alumni association also developed an alumni advisory board for the chapter.

Chapter advisor Frank Knaflec (Colorado State, Epsilon Theta '59) has been a solid resource in guiding the chapter on financial matters. This year's executive council is composed of SMC Mile Kuhl, IMCs Bill Roach and Rob Rugani, ThC Rob Winship, and SC Glen Piper.

Theta Omega's last pledge class of 20 men was the largest in eight years.

As for Pikes and athletics, Theta Omega fields a team in every intramural activity and Cameron Smyth is starting wide receiver for the Division II ranked football team.

I A IOTA DELTA CHAPTER Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology

The Pikes continue to hold the highest GPA on the Rose Hulman campus. If Iota Delta wins the GPA competition amongst fraternities this quarter, they will set a campus record for consecutive wins in scholastics.

A number of alumni returned to the chapter for Homecoming to take part in a momentous occasion. A ribbon cutting ceremony was held to celebrate the purchase of the chapter house that Iota Delta had previously been renting.

Four members of the Rose Hulman cross country team are Pikes.

IH IOTA ETA CHAPTER University of Nevada-Reno

At the beginning of the 1993-94 academic year, Iota Eta moved from its 16 man house into a house with occupancy for 30 men. The chapter plans to purchase the house after one year of leasing. The men who made the move possible were housing corporation members Mike Hickey, Mike Espino and Mike Herschbach (Southeast Missouri State, Epsilon Iota '88).

In academics, the chapter ranks second on campus with a 2.92 GPA. Chapter members were also in the process of defending their sports trophy won the previous semester.

Since its founding, community service has played a part in the lives of Iota Eta members. This year the chapter was involved with The Great Pumpkin Carnival for children, Adopt-A-Highway, neighborhood clean ups, and the Ronald McDonald House.

II IOTA IOTA CHAPTER Michigan State University

Thanks to the hard work of Rush Chairman Ross Parr and his rush committee, 22 men pledged Pi Kappa Alpha on the MSU campus.

A joint football tailgate was held with the University of Michigan's Beta Tau Chapter prior to the Michigan-Michigan State game. Many alumni returned on another football Saturday to visit the chapter and watch MSU take on the University of Iowa.

Sigma Chapter Celebrates Her Centennial

"We are here! That is the Sigma of PiKA is at Vanderbilt University in full blast."

Sigma Chapter Correspondent,
 Shield & Diamond Chapter Letters,
 November 1893

A Tribute to Sigma

On Friday evening, October 15, 1993, 307 guests, brothers, and pledges of Sigma Chapter convened at the University Faculty Club on the campus of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee. This group came from across the country and around the world to take part in the Centennial Celebration of Pi Kappa Alpha's Sigma Chapter.

Friday evening's black tie dinner banquet kicked off a weekend of festivities, offering Vanderbilt Pikes the chance to renew old friendships and pay tribute to Sigma's 100 years on the Vanderbilt campus. The chapter was originally chartered on September 23, 1893.

Chapter President Robert P. Lockwood (Sigma '92) welcomed those in attendance to the historic occasion. Chapter Vice President Samuel J. Furrow (Sigma '92) and Alumni Chairman Travis M. Dillon (Sigma '93) greeted each person and passed out printed programs to each table.

James Emison (Sigma '60) emceed the evening's festivities and challenged each person to realize the value of the lifetime friendships that were formed within the walls of Sigma Chapter. Emison's son, Theo (Sigma '92), is currently an active member of the chapter.

National President Thomas J. Turner (Texas Tech, Epsilon Gamma '67) piloted his plane from Lubbock, Texas, with his wife, Lou Pat, to take part in Friday's banquet. Turner delivered an inspirational keynote address in which he stressed the values of Pi Kappa Alpha and the current status of the National Fraternity. He also took the opportunity to pay tribute to a century of Sigma brothers who have left the undergraduate ranks of PiKA for outstanding careers. These alumni include leaders of corporations, representatives of the State Department, and a Nobel Prize winner in physics. Turner closed his remarks by recognizing Paul Freeman, Jr. (Sigma '36) for his years of service to the chapter.

The weekend's events also included Sigma's payoff of its 30 year mortgage on the chapter house located at 2408 Kensington Place. The house, located in the center of the Greek block on campus, has been home to the Pikes since 1963. While it has been well maintained despite the continuous presence of 100-man chapters for three decades, a loan was received from Vanderbilt to refurbish the facility in time for the Centennial Celebration. Several decks were built at the side and at the rear of the house and more than 30 composites were hung in the chapter house for viewing during the course of the weekend. The chapter also designated a room for the display of chapter memorabilia and awards.

At least three pairs of fathers and sons from Sigma were in attendance on Friday evening. Along with the Emisons, James T. Tedder (Sigma '61) and Steven T. Tedder (Sigma '92), and Thomas H. Whalen (Sigma '65) and Estes S. Whalen (Sigma '90), represented Sigma bloodlines.

Vanderbilt's Homecoming activities served as the center of Saturday's celebrations. A brunch was held at the chapter house prior to the football game between the University of Georgia and Vanderbilt, followed by a party that evening. On Sunday, a scramble golf tournament took place at The Hermitage Golf Club for Sigma members.

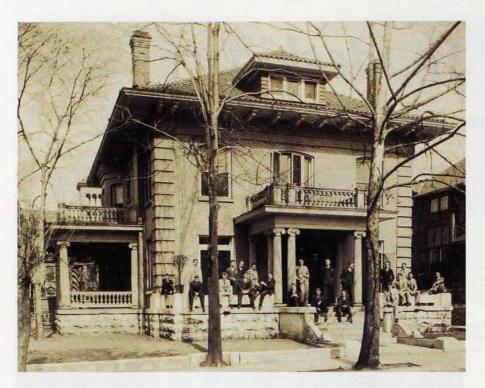

The success of Sigma's Centennial Celebration was the result of six months of planning. Recognizing Sigma Chapter's 100 year history was obviously the focus of the chapter members' work, yet the weekend also served as a valuable rush tool. Rushees were invited to Friday's banquet and witnessed an impressive gathering of brothers and guests.

Sigma's Early Days

A number of attempts were made during the late 19th century to secure a chapter at Vanderbilt University.

On September 23, 1893, four men, Max M. Jones, George W. Williamson, Thomas H. Peebles and James M. Bryson, were initiated as the founding members of Sigma Chapter. They were inducted into the Fraternity by E.E. Stone (Tennessee, Zeta 1892) and Junior Founder Howard Bell Arbuckle (Hampden-Sydney, Iota 1886). However, the young chapter was forced to close its doors in 1895 when a number of men graduated and no other members returned for classes in the fall.

On Saturday, April 3, 1897, Sigma returned to the Vanderbilt campus. The chapter consisted of George W. Sypert (Southwestern, Theta 1889), Henry P. Ijams (Tennessee, Zeta 1895), J.H. Brown (Sigma 1893), George E. McLaurine (Sigma 1893), and Peebles. According to chapter correspondence, this new Sigma group was brought together through much effort by alumnus Robert Hill (Southwestern, Theta 1890), who was Grand Secretary of the Fraternity at that time. The rechartered chapter was highly successful for several years. Then, in 1906, only one Sigma man returned to campus and the charter was voluntarily surrendered.

The national appeal of Vanderbilt and its academic programs brought many Pi Kappa Alpha transfers to campus during the silent days of Sigma. Yet there were never enough men to rejuvenate the chapter.

The loss of Sigma had been especially difficult for Fraternity members attending other universities in Tennessee. Many Tennessee Pikes saw quality men from their home towns leave for Vanderbilt and join another fraternity due to the lack of a Pi Kappa Alpha chapter at Vanderbilt. This situation motivated other Tennessee chapters to remedy Sigma's absence.

In the days leading up to World War I, Zeta Chapter at the University of Tennessee sought to bring Sigma Right: Commodore band leaders and Pike brothers David E. Hinkle, Jr. (Sigma '34), drum major, and Samuel H. Moorer (Sigma '32), director. back to Vanderbilt. Walter J. Wadlington (Tennessee, Zeta '18) was an active part of this attempt, but it was to no avail: the War interrupted activities on college campuses across the country.

In the spring following the War, a group of Pikes from Theta Chapter at Southwestern traveled to Nashville to meet with Pike transfers attending Vanderbilt. They found that all of the students, except one, were enrolled in Vanderbilt's medical school. Because the medical school was separated from the main campus, it was not possible for this group to renew the chapter.

In Spring 1921, Zeta Chapter once again sought to awaken Sigma. Milton Davenport (Tennessee, Zeta '19) contacted other chapters and the Supreme Council about his plans for the rebirth of Sigma. Davenport presented his plan at the District Convention and received the support of all the chapters in the district. During the summer, Robert Adger Smythe (The Citadel, Lambda 1889) assisted with the project. They learned that three Pikes would attend Vanderbilt's medical school in the fall. Several other Pikes were also contemplating attending Vanderbilt. These men, several of whom made plans to study in Vanderbilt's academic and law departments, were persuaded to aid in the refounding of Sigma.

With the realization that interested Pikes would be on campus in Fall 1921, Davenport worked with a group of men to organize the alumni in Nashville. Davenport was assisted by Louis Leftwich (Sigma 1896), Porter G. Cantrell (Tennessee, Zeta '13), and Arthur L. Rawlings (Tennessee, Zeta '15). With the work of these men and other alumni, a chapter house was secured.

Once the school year was in progress, the following men stepped forward to take their place in the revival of Sigma: Davenport, Frank Davenport (Tennessee, Zeta '19), James G. Comfort (Tennessee, Zeta '20), Eugene M. Regen (Southwestern, Theta '19), John A. Martin (Transylvania, Kappa '18), Henry F. Martin (Transylvania, Kappa '18), and W.G. Scanlon (Sigma '14).

These men met at the chapter house, immediately elected officers, and began to function as a club. They produced a petition to the Supervisory Committee of the faculty and asked permission to exist on the Vanderbilt campus as Sigma Chapter.

A week later, District Princeps John P. Powers (Virginia, Alpha 1895) inspected the prospective Sigma group and made a positive report to the Supreme Council. A charter was granted and Sigma Chapter was officially back in business. A week later, on October 15, 1921, Powers installed the chapter in a simple ceremony. The installation was not elaborate because the members believed their energy and resources would be best spent by immediately rushing men entering Vanderbilt. Eight men were soon pledged and a Pike transfer affiliated with Sigma. A chapter member wrote of Sigma's rechartering in the January 1922 issue of the Shield & Diamond:

"Since our entrance here we have been admitted to the panhellenic and have been accorded a cordial welcome by the other chapters, many of whom have assisted us in any way they could and we feel perfectly at home now."

A Continual Presence

Since its rebirth in 1921, the doors of Sigma have remained open. Like many chapters, Sigma faced difficult times during World War II. At one point, the chapter's membership was so depleted by the War effort that only Thomas F. Parrish (Sigma '42) remained on campus. He secured Sigma's ritual and regalia, along with memorabilia, until the end of the War. Sigma also lost the house it leased and had less than $500 in the bank.

Following World War II, the chapter contained less than six active members. The group realized that the small number of members was dangerous to the future of the chapter, and rush became the focus of attention. By Summer 1946, the chapter had 15 men. Through the efforts of concerned alumni, a new house was obtained at a cost of $12,000. The active chapter paid $150 each month during the school year. After about two years, the alumni supervising the chapter's finances stepped aside. The chapter was then responsible for paying all bills from its general fund. By 1951, however, the chapter was delinquent with its mortgage payments and other accounts.

Dedicated Pi Kappa Alpha alumni, including Dr. Carl T. Kirchmaier (Cincinnati, Alpha Xi '23), stepped in and assessed the chapter's financial picture. Edward L. Kirkpatrick (Sigma '36) served as alumni treasurer and took over the payment of the mortgage, insurance and repairs. By Spring 1955 the chapter was debt-free, the house was in good condition, and the house corporation had $500 in its account.

Once again on solid ground, the men of Sigma Chapter continued their ascent on the Vanderbilt campus. On March 2, 1963, another significant moment occurred in Sigma's history when a new chapter house was dedicated. This house, which cost $95,000, serves as Sigma's present home.

The chapter house was dedicated to the memory of Robert A. Smythe, who died in December 1962. The chapter and activities room was dedicated to John E. Crain (Sigma '28) who passed away the week after dedication ceremonies. Executive Director Earl Watkins (Mississippi, Gamma Iota '49) was in attendance along with numerous guests from the University. The keynote speaker for the occasion was Judge Clifton B. Briley (Sigma '51) who had recently been elected mayor of the metropolitan government of Nashville and Davidson County. Chancellor Alexander Heard also gave a brief address at the dedication, speaking of the relationship between the Greek system and universities, and the importance of fraternities within "the intellectual and social framework of college."

The 307 individuals who returned on October 15-17 for the Centennial Celebration and Vanderbilt's Homecoming serve as a thriving example to other chapters and universities that such a relationship can indeed exist.

Vanderbilt's History

Vanderbilt University was founded in Spring 1873 as a result of a gift from Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. At the age of 16, Commodore Vanderbilt borrowed $100 to purchase a two-masted boat that he could sail himself as a ferry between Staten Island and Manhattan in New York. He soon had a small fleet, then steamboat lines from New York, and eventually a trans-Atlantic steamship service. He then turned his interest to the railroad and created the New York Central system as he amassed the largest fortune in the United States.

Commodore Vanderbilt's $1 million gift to build and endow the university was his only major philanthropy. In the post-Civil War years, when relations between the North and South were tense, Commodore Vanderbilt, a Northerner, founded his university in Nashville, Tennessee. This new university was seen as gesture of goodwill to the people of the South and served to further the healing and reconciliation process.

Today, Vanderbilt is a private research university composed of ten schools, a public policy institute, and a distinguished medical center. Undergraduate degrees are offered in liberal arts and sciences, education and human development, engineering, and music. Numerous graduate and professional degrees are also offered by the university. Vanderbilt's enrollment is approximately 5,000 undergraduates and 4,000 graduate students.

DECEMBER 1993

enneth T. Jackson sits behind a large, cluttered desk, surrounded by the tools of his trade: A computer, a phone and books. Lots and lots of books. So many books, in fact, that a ladder, just high enough to reach the top shelf, is a required piece of furniture in Jackson's office.

Jackson is the Jacques Barzun Professor of History and Social Sciences and, as vice chair, is at the center of one of the world's premiere academic departments, the department of history at Columbia University. Today, he sits in his office near the corner of 117th and Amsterdam in New York City and considers the road that led him there. Pi Kappa Alpha played a role in that trip which has taken him a long way from his Memphis, Tennessee roots.

Born in July 1939, Jackson left his birthplace of Memphis with the onset of World War II. The son of a lieutenant colonel in the field artillery, he spent his earliest years at military posts in South Carolina and Oklahoma. He and his family returned to Memphis in 1945. After a brief stint of living with the in-laws, Jackson's family moved into a VA-financed, suburban home in Memphis. This environment and the forces that influenced it would receive a great deal of attention from Jackson during his professional years. At the time, he was the second of four children and the only son in a family living in the post-World War II South. Jackson remembers the 1940s and 1950s as a period in his life that was "free of a lot of the trauma that so many youngsters go through today."

Jackson graduated from high school in the spring of 1957, having given college little thought. At the end of the summer, Jackson just "signed up" for classes at Memphis State University. Luckily, this inauspicious beginning understated the impact college would have on him and the impact he would have on academia.

Ken Jackson began college as a "relatively shy, relatively immature, young person." Pi Kappa Alpha would soon have an influence on that shy, immature freshman. Jackson pledged Pi Kappa Alpha at Delta Zeta Chapter in the fall of his freshman year. "Pike was terrifically important to me," Jackson recalls. "The Fraternity, more than anything else, brought me out of the shadow and gave me confidence." Jackson's experience in Pi Kappa Alpha was very much the same as a good fraternity experience is today. "Not only did we have parties and things like that. It also gave me leadership experience." Jackson finetuned his leadership skills while serving as secretary and scholarship chairman for Delta Zeta Chapter.

A L U M N U S

It was also through Pi Kappa Alpha that Jackson met people whose companionship, friendship and support would accompany him throughout life. "A number of the fraternity brothers I had then are still close friends indeed."

Jackson recalls these men as "the kind of people that you would want to join a fraternity. They were solid, they were responsible, they were loyal, they were interested, they were enthusiastic about life and looking forward to the possibilities. They wanted to live a good and decent life."

The most important person he met in college, with the help of Pi Kappa Alpha, was Barbara Ann Bruce, whom he married on August 25, 1962. "Pi Kappa Alpha made my college years very fine and memorable, and she might not have met me if it hadn't been for that," Jackson remembers, "We met, in a way, because of the fraternity and sorority system."

Jackson enrolled at Memphis State University during tumultuous times in the South. A couple of hundred miles away from the Memphis State campus, a group of students were battling to integrate Little Rock's Central High. Jackson had grown up in the segregated South. Raised in a more tolerant family environment, Jackson arrived on campus without feelings of racial hatred. Yet he was by no means an activist. As was often the case, segregation was viewed as a part of life in the South.

For Jackson, this tolerance of segregation and racism began to change during his college years.

Pi Kappa Alpha offered Jackson an opportunity to stand by his growing convictions in 1960. As an undergraduate delegate to the historic National Convention in Miami, Jackson was among those who voted to remove the exclusionary white clause from the Fraternity's Constitution. Jackson recalls, "I remember that that was a pressure-packed convention for exactly that reason and I remember that Delta Zeta, albeit a Southern institution, voted in favor of removing the white clause."

Jackson remembers being "under pressure from some of our brothers to not vote that way." Jackson did, however, vote with the majority and Pi Kappa Alpha took a major step forward in 1960.

Under the influence of an outstanding history faculty, Jackson began to view the culture in which he was raised a bit more critically. He began to question the segregated society that surrounded him. This concern for social justice and equality would grow through Jackson's undergraduate years and continue to influence his thought and work throughout his career. Although some professors who pushed students to question the systems surrounding them were forced out or fired, Memphis State University was integrated without incident in 1959.

Jackson's academic interests were also forming at this time. Early during his undergraduate years, Jackson was a history and pre-med major. History was the subject that most captured his attention. After a difficult bout with vertebrate anatomy, Jackson decided to focus his energies on history. He found the Civil War or the French Renaissance more interesting and compelling than "memorizing the bones of a cat."

Jackson graduated from Memphis State magna cum laude in 1961. He graduated third in his class, right behind Barbara Ann Bruce, his future wife.

In 1961, Jackson became the first Memphis State University student to be awarded a prestigious Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. In the fall of 1961, Jackson arrived on the campus of the University of Chicago prepared to embark on a career in European or American history. His interests, again influenced by outstanding teachers, began to develop in a different direction. In the fall of 1963, Jackson took a course that changed his life. The course on urban history was taught by Richard Wade, a man Jackson describes as "a pied piper." He was, in Jackson's words, charismatic and gregarious, terms that students would use to describe Jackson himself in later years.

Jackson's dissertation, The Ku Klux Klan in the City, integrated his background with his interests in urban history and race relations and marked one of his first major publications. The work, which was published as part of the Oxford History of Urban Life, discussed the Ku Klux Klan in particular urban contexts.

In 1965 he took a commission in the Air Force to satisfy his R.O.T.C. obligation. Commissioned at a time when U.S. involvement in Vietnam was escalating, Jackson was assigned to the post of assistant professor of logistics management and stationed at the Air Force Institute of Technology at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. During the next three years, Jackson also served in the military in academic posts in Texas and Alabama.

Although Jackson requested separation from the Air Force in 1964 and would have preferred to take a teaching offer from Ohio State University in 1965, his years in the Air Force were beneficial. It was during his service that Jackson was able to complete his Ph.D., which the University of Chicago awarded in 1966.

By the time his obligation was completed, Jackson had received his Ph.D. and his book on the Klan had been published. Also, during his years in Dayton he was able to gain experience through part-time teaching jobs at Antioch College, Wittenberg University and Wright State University.

In 1968, Jackson was offered a position as assistant professor of history at Columbia University. As was the case in his undergraduate years, Jackson arrived in this new academic setting during tumultuous times. This time, the central issue was the Vietnam War and the setting was Columbia University in New York City—very different from Memphis and Memphis State to say the least.

Jackson's memories of this time at Columbia are a mixture of anger over the methods used by student protestors and appreciation for the welcome he received from faculty members.

Jackson disagreed with American involvement in the Vietnam War. He even traveled to Washington to join protests in the late 1960s and early 1970s. He parted with his fellow protestors though when it came to some of their techniques.

Jackson disagreed most with those students who took over campus buildings in protest. When students occupied the building that housed his office, Jackson refused to leave.

He recalls, "Along with a few other professors, I spent the night in the building. It was my office and I wanted it to be under my control. I was angered by their arrogance, and I was prepared to fight and to hurt anyone who tried to throw me out of Fayerweather."

His memories of Columbia in the late 60s and early 70s also have a softer side. Although he was hired at the rank of assistant professor, he recalls there being no class distinctions in the history department. Even in the wake of the protests and demonstrations of 1968, faculty members in the history department of Columbia University remained, for the most part, a very cohesive and cooperative group. He recalls the interest and gracious welcomes of faculty members with a great deal of affection.

Since assuming his post at Columbia in 1968, Jackson's career has been distinguished. In 1971 he was promoted to associate professor. In 1976, eight years after his arrival, he was named a full professor. He was promoted to the Andrew W. Mellon Professorship in the Social Sciences in 1987. Most recently, he assumed the Jacques Barzun Professorship in History and the Social Sciences.

Jackson assumed this post, which honors one of America's most distinguished men of letters, in 1990.

During his twenty-five years as a Columbia history professor, Jackson's talents have allowed him access to many opportunities. He has been a Fulbright Lecturer in Germany and Australia, a visiting professor at Dartmouth, Princeton and UCLA. He also held a professorship at George Washington University. Always a leader in his field, Jackson is currently vice president of the Society of American Historians and president-elect of the Urban History Association. He has lectured at hundreds of colleges, universities, civic groups and historical societies around the world. In addition to the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship that funded his graduate education, Jackson has received fellowships from the American Council of Learned Societies, the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation and the Twentieth Century Fund.

Jackson has received national exposure as a featured guest on such programs as NBC's Today Show, ABC's Nightline, CBS's Sunrise Semester and CNN. Not surprisingly, he received a Distinguished Alumnus Award from Memphis State in 1989.

In addition, Jackson is a trustee or board member of the South Street Seaport Museum, the Society of American Historians, the New Castle Historical Society, the National Council for History Education, the Columbia Center for American Culture Studies, the Columbia Oral History Research Office and the Columbia University Seminars. He chaired the Bradley Commission on History in Schools from 1987 to 1990.

He chaired the National Council for History Education from 1990 to 1992. He has directed seven National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminars for either high school or college instructors. He was also, along with Arthur Schlesinger, a dissenting member of the controversial and much-publicized New York State Social Studies Syllabus Review Committee.

A member of a number of editorial boards, Jackson is the general editor of the thirty-volume Columbia History of Urban Life, editor-in-chief of the Dictionary of American Biography and author or co-author of such published works as Silent Cities: The Evolution of the American Cemetery, Atlas of American History, Cities in American History (with Stanley K. Schultz) and American Vistas (with Leonard Dinnerstein).

1985 saw the publication of Jackson's best known work, Crabgrass Frontier: The Suburbanization of the United States. Crabgrass Frontier was a selection of the History Book Club and the subject of special sessions at the American Historical Convention and the Southern Historical Convention.

The book won both the Francis Parkman and the Bancroft Prizes as the outstanding work in American history in 1985. The New York Times named it one of the notable books of the year in 1985.

As many professional accolades as Jackson may have received, perhaps the most revealing are those awarded by his students.

Jackson has become the kind of teacher he most appreciated as an undergraduate. Enthusiastic. Informative. Interesting. His contagious interest and energy prompted students at Columbia to name him the college's teacher of the year in 1989 and gave him their 28th annual Mark Van Doren Award for "humanity, devotion to truth, and inspiring leadership."

Jackson's popularity hit the big-time in the spring of 1993 when a Playboy magazine survey ranked him among the best professors in the United States.

Jackson's popularity among students is a result of his interest in them, the energy he brings to his subject and the fact that this professor reveals his subjects in settings beyond the lecture hall and library. Twice the chairman of the University Seminar on the City, Jackson leads students on all-night bicycle rides, all-day bus trips and three-hour walking tours of New York City. These legendary events have been part of Columbia's draw since the 1970s. In addition to leading his students into the City, Jackson teaches courses on urban, social and military history.

Jackson's desire to teach about New York City grew partly out of his interest in urban studies and partly out of his love for "THE" big city, New York City.

"When I was recruited by other institutions to move there and thought about leaving, I realized it would be hard to leave New York. There is a kind of atmosphere in New York, a sense that you're at the center of things. There's an energy that, unless you have lived here, you don't know."

Jackson's love for New York City is not blind love. "It's dirtier, it's more crowded, it's more polyglot. On the other hand, there is something that is just incredibly exciting and alive about it. It reminds me of Samuel Johnson's phrase; he said when a man is tired of London, he's tired of life. There is a little bit of that about New York."

Always the historian, Jackson is doing his best to contribute to the City and the body of work that documents life in that City. Although he acknowledges that he has always felt like an "outsider" in New York, he is project director and editor-in-chief of the Encyclopedia of New York City, the first major reference tool for the City in almost a century. This project will be published by Yale University Press in a single, 1240-page volume in 1995.

The irony of his position does not escape him. "In some ways I'm central to the history of New York City and if you want to know about New York, you almost have to come through here. But here (I am), a Southerner. It's always striking to people that this man who has become so associated with urban history generally, and New York history in particular, has a Southern accent."

As distant as Pi Kappa Alpha may seem from the hustle and bustle of Columbia and New York City, the Fraternity has remained important to Jackson. And Jackson has been an astute observer of the Fraternity and Greek organizations in general over the years.

How is Pi Kappa Alpha doing from Jackson's perspective? "PiKA in recent years has done a terrific job, it seems, of reestablishing itself on some of America's most elite campuses, which I think has been noticed, as well as maintaining its strength in other places."

As positive an image as Pi Kappa Alpha and Greek organizations have in Jackson's eyes, he is aware of their weaknesses and of the arguments of their critics.

"They are under attack in a lot of places because they are thought to be sexist and racist and classist and every other thing." Jackson acknowledges that "there is still a strong sentiment around, especially at very competitive institutions, that somehow fraternities are not compatible with the ideals they are trying to live. I think that is not true. But I think the fraternities have to work on that."

How does he suggest fraternities address these criticisms? "I think that fraternities need to suggest that they bring out the best in people without running anybody else down."

These concepts are not abstract theories for Jackson. He is speaking from experience: "I think it is important that PiKA and other fraternities, if they are going to survive, they've got to maintain what was good about the fraternities and was so wonderful for me. I mean the training for leadership, the ability to have competition, whether it was all-sing, or football or whatever. The ability to bring people out socially and give them confidence, but not in a negative way."

On this particular morning, Jackson is preparing to take his students on a tour of Rykers Island, the New York City prison set in the middle of the East River. Not your typical tourist attraction. Of course, Kenneth Jackson is not your typical college professor. Warm, interested, enthusiastic. These are words that Jackson has used to describe teachers under whom he has studied in the past. These are words that anyone who has spent time with Professor Jackson would no doubt use to describe him.

Some quotes were excerpted from "A Conversation with Kenneth T. Jackson" by Bruce M. Stave, published in the Journal of Urban History, Volume 13, Number 3 / May 1987.

Iota Iota also spent time working on various philanthropies this fall. Chapter members worked on the "Into the Streets" project and for breast cancer awareness. The Pikes also set up tents for the homeless and worked with the elderly.

Raymond C. Kley (Miami-Ohio, Delta Gamma '51) is Iota Iota's new chapter advisor.

I = IOTA XI CHAPTER University of Chicago

Nearly 10 percent of the University of Chicago's 1993 Phi Beta Kappa class were members of Pi Kappa Alpha. The three Phi Beta Kappa Pikes were Jonas Peters, Jason Burlingame, and Alex Potente. Peters previously was awarded a Marshall Scholarship. Potente deferred entering the University of Chicago Law School to spend a year working for Literacy Volunteers of America.

Kirk Chottanapund received the unusual distinction of being assured admission to the Pritzker Medical School of the University of Chicago while only a sophomore.

IO IOTA OMICRON CHAPTER Santa Clara University

Bob Eichenberg was elected president in the restructured Inner-Greek Council. This governing body sets the standards for the entire Greek community. Rich De Blasio is head of the Greek Intervention Framework which educates all Greek organizations on topical issues. Matthew Poppe is president of both the Order of Omega and Habitat for Humanity.

The chapter's annual three-on-three basketball tournament to raise money for Child Quest International was a success once again and has become well-established over the years. Iota Omicron also won Greek Week for the first time in its three year existence.

Santa Clara's Pikes were involved in a historic happening in the local community. By entering a float in the "Parade of Champions," an event held to honor the highlights of the city of Santa Clara, Iota Omicron became the first university organization to participate in this event.

ITT IOTA PI CHAPTER University of California Los Angeles

Iota Pi looked to follow-up their Smythe winning year in impressive form during the fall. The chapter spent its time involved in events such as Homecoming, Alumni Day, and Dad's Day.

Dr. Richard P. Ditteon (Rose-Hulman, Iota Delta '88), president of the Iota Delta House Corporation, cuts the ribbon at the opening ceremonies for the chapter's new house.

I IOTA SIGMA CHAPTER James Madison University

Scholarship Chairman Neil Goradia has implemented several programs to insure the chapter's continued academic success. He has developed a tutoring program and a writing clinic to assist chapter members in their grammar and construction when preparing written assignments. Goradia also conducted a survey in which Pikes evaluated their class instructors.

Although it is still a young chapter, Iota Sigma has 25 alumni. 15 returned for the fall alumni weekend in October. Alumni Chairman Jonathan Rhudy created an alumni mailing that asked for alumni personal information and news. 20 alumni responded and this information will be used for future newsletters. The chapter mailed out its first newsletter of the year in the fall.

United Way was adopted as the chapter philanthropy. JMU Pikes installed tents and displays during a fall event. The chapter also took part in the Adopt-A-Highway program and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

On campus, Chris Black was selected as ROTC Battalion Commander for the entire JMU ROTC program. J.J. Hannam, Rob Hinosoja, Will Garber, and Black, are part of the ROTC Rangers. Brian Field is one of two hosts on the television show "Hey U," which is broadcast every Wednesday on JMU video cable.

During fall rush, Iota Sigma had the strongest rush amongst JMU fraternities and obtained 14 pledges.

IY IOTA UPSILON CHAPTER Georgia Southern University

Pi Kappa Alpha's newest chapter has quickly made a name for itself on the GSU campus. The Pikes' 25-man pledge class was the second largest on campus. The chapter also sponsored a campus wide football tournament to benefit Special Olympics. The Pikes of GSU have formed a close bond with Special Olympics and received a certificate of recognition from the organization for their efforts. The chapter has also formed an environmental committee to focus on environmental concerns in the surrounding area.

Every chapter member is required to join at least one campus organization. Dillon Roseberry, Jason Harrison, and Chris McGuire were elected SGA senators. Robert Butcher and Pat Mitchell are captains of the varsity swimming and soccer teams respectively.

TI GAMMA PI COLONY University of Oregon

Gamma Pi Colony has its leadership in place for 1993-94. Joel Bruner is president, Tony Van-Breemen and T.J. Curry are vice presidents, R.J. Emmett is treasurer, and Andrew Frezza (Southern California, Gamma Eta '93) is secretary.

The colony pledged 16 men in the fall and is using sorority recommendations to further its rush program.

AA DELTA LAMBDA COLONY Florida State University

On October 8, Delta Lambda Colony at Florida State University solidified its return to the FSU campus. 53 of the university's top men were recruited in addition to five Pi Kappa Alpha transfers. One of the colony's first activities was an alumni reception held during the weekend of the Miami-Florida State football game. At this point, alumni are investigating the cost of renovating the old Delta Lambda Chapter house.

Pi Kappa Alpha Educational Foundation

Alumni supporting scholastic achievement, leadership training and personal development since 1948.

Attention Veterans!

Uniforms from many branches of military service are on display in the Gold Star Memorial Hall at the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Headquarters. The Pi Kappa Alpha Educational Foundation is interested in purchasing flags representing each of the branches of the U.S. military for display in the Gold Star Memorial Hall in the Fraternity's Memorial Headquarters. The Memorial Headquarters is dedicated to all members of Pi Kappa Alpha who have been killed in the country's various wars as stated on the building's entrance plaque.

"In memory of our brothers who gave their lives for freedom and continue to challenge us to carry forth the flame of Pi Kappa Alpha" The cost of each flag (Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, Coast Guard and MIA-POW) is approximately $100. If you are interested in purchasing one or more flags for the Memorial Headquarters, please send your check, made payable to the Pi Kappa Alpha Educational Foundation, to Executive Director Jeff Abraham, 8347 West Range Cove, Memphis, TN 38125. Please specify which flag(s) you wish to purchase.

Community Service

Staying Involved

PiKA chapters continue to play a vital role in communities

In recent years, it has become a tradition of the December issue of the Shield & Diamond to feature the community service activities of Pi Kappa Alpha chapters. During this time of year, the need to support worthy causes and organizations is highly publicized. Pi Kappa Alpha's chapters and colonies are among the many groups that respond to those in need during the holiday season. However, the brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha realize that community service does not begin and end with the holidays. For Pikes, community service is an active part of their Fraternity experience — no matter what the season.

ALPHA OMEGA CHAPTER (Kansas State University)

The Midwest floods during Summer 1993 left devastation throughout the region. One of the areas affected by the flood was the Tuttle Creek Reservoir in Manhattan, Kansas. Manhattan is home to Kansas State University and Alpha Omega Chapter. The flooding of the reservoir meant the cancellation of the chapter's annual Beach Bash philanthropy. A 1993 honorable mention recipient in community service, Alpha Omega refused to let this hinder their philanthropic agenda. In October, the Pikes held their second annual Halloween Hunt for area grade school children. The chapter was assisted by the Riley County Police Department and eight of the universities twelve sororities. During the holidays the chapter hosted a Christmas party for Big Brothers/Big Sisters. Despite losing one of its major philanthropies, Alpha Omega Community Service Chairman Eric Pack (Alpha Omega '92) said the chapter had accumulated over 2,500 hours of community service by early November.

BETA TAU CHAPTER (University of Michigan)

Since their return to the University of Michigan campus in 1992, the men of Beta Tau Chapter have made community service a prominent characteristic of the chapter. During the past fall, Beta Tau was involved with Habitat for Humanity and with a local children's hospital. The Michigan Pikes also adopted a family for the holidays and hosted a Christmas party for the Big Brothers organization. According to Beta Tau Community Service Chairman Jeffrey S. Montgomery (Beta Tau '92), many chapter members look for their own individual volunteer efforts as well as activities with the chapter.

GAMMA OMICRON CHAPTER (Ohio University)

Gamma Omicron Chapter at Ohio University was yet another Pike chapter to receive an honorable mention award for community service from the National Fraternity for 1992-93. In Fall 1993, Gamma Omicron continued to build on the success of the previous year with a calendar full of community service activities.

One of the chapter's major philanthropies was their annual "Cow Plop." The event was held for Big Brothers/Big Sisters and raised $1,100. For the "Cow Plop" to be successful, planning and the commitment of the chapter members were a must. Selling tickets and publicizing the event was a four week process. As a result, the chapter tallied over 1,000 man hours. The Pikes of Gamma Omicron also accumulated over 300 man hours by assisting the Pi Kappa Alpha Educational Foundation with its phone-a-thon. The importance of community service was not lost on the chapter's newest members. Gamma Omicron's pledge class assisted in raising drug abuse awareness by assisting with the university's Drug Free Week.

The entire chapter volunteered its time to the Athens Tree Festival. The festival raised money for the Special Education Parent Advocacy Network which helps children living in impoverished areas.

DELTA THETA CHAPTER

(Arkansas State University)

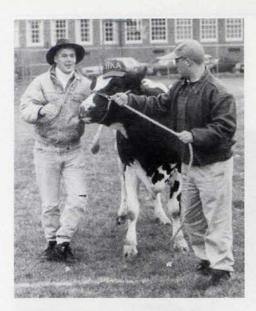

Another 1993 honorable mention recipient in community service was Delta Theta Chapter at Arkansas State University. Delta Theta's community service program in Fall 1993 indicated there was not a let down in the chapter's commitment to community service.

Delta Theta accumulated over 1,000 community service hours through the Pike Little Olympics. The event raised over $1,200 for the Arkansas State University Scholarship Fund.

The Delta Theta Pikes also participated in the Adopt-A-Highway program and accumulated 300 community service hours in the process. The chapter assisted a shelter for battered women and participated in the United Way Tailgate Olympics. Pikes also volunteered their time for Special Olympics. Delta Theta participated in the community service programs of other Greek organizations such as Mr. ASU, sponsored by Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority and the Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority "Rock-A-Thon."

The list of activities extends beyond the above activities for the Pikes of ASU. According to Delta Theta Community Service Chairman Steven C. Puryear (Delta Theta '93), the chapter members "want to make an impact" and "let people know we are here."

DELTA IOTA CHAPTER (Marshall University)

Seven. This is how many years in a row the men of Delta Iota Chapter at Marshall University have won Pi Kappa Alpha's national Community Service Award. Delta Iota Community Service Chairman Marc W. Canterbury (Delta Iota '90) says the motivations for a strong community program in 1993-94 is founded in this seven year winning streak.

"We've won the award for the last seven years and we don't want to stop now," Canturbury said.

During the fall semester, Delta Iota donated their time to the Ronald McDonald House by working in the organization's booth during a philanthropy known as "chilifest." The event raised $3,500 for the Ronald McDonald House. The chapter also participated in the Juvenile Diabetes "Walk-A-Thon." The "walk" raised $15,000 for Juvenile Diabetes and the Pikes received the award for most support in recognition of their 50 man representation at the event. The Pikes spent every Wednesday and Saturday night working at St. Joseph Elementary School's bingo night. United Way also benefited from the community-minded men of Pi Kappa Alpha as the Pikes stuffed envelopes for the organization.

DELTA NU CHAPTER (Wayne State University)

Delta Nu Chapter at Wayne State University was also recognized for their 1992-93 community service program. An honorable mention recipient in community service, Delta Nu spent the past fall building a strong program for 1993-94.

The chapter donated 58 pints of blood in a blood drive and made their annual visit to Children's Hospital to donate Halloween pumpkins. The Pikes also participated in "Into the Streets," a program designed to revive destitute neighborhoods in the Ravendale community of Detroit. Delta Nu also worked the rest area for the Multiple Sclerosis "Bike-A-Thon" and hosted a party at a local nursing home.

Delta Nu's excellence in community service has brought them university recognition as well. The Pikes serve on the Student Leadership Activity Board of Wayne State, which designs community service projects for the university.

EPSILON THETA CHAPTER (Colorado State University)

Needy residents of Fort Collins, Colorado, were the beneficiaries of Epsilon Theta Chapter's involvement with Colorado State University's annual "Cans Around the Oval."

Canned foods are collected and placed around the CSU administration building. The Pikes contributed 4,000 pounds of food to the cause and led all campus groups in contributions for the second year in a row. Aside from repeating their success in the collection of canned foods, the CSU Pikes stuffed envelopes for the United Way and assisted the university with its health fair.

ZETA XI CHAPTER (Western Carolina University)

On October 23, Zeta Xi Chapter at Western Carolina University supported a local road race benefitting the Jackson County Animal Shelter. In conjunction with the race, the chapter also conducted a rabies vaccination clinic for animals. The road race allowed Zeta Xi to accumulate over 300 hours of community service in under two months.

ETA OMICRON CHAPTER (Northeast Louisiana University)

Eta Omicron Chapter at Northeast Louisiana University began the 1993-94 school year by lending a hand to the NLU department of enrollment services. The Pikes helped campus counselors load and unload enrollment materials. October was a busy time for Eta Omicron's community service program. The Pikes sold tickets for the Harmony House — a home for mentally challenged children. They also held a car wash and co-sponsored a dance for the Harmony House. Eta Omicron also organized their second annual PIKEJAM, a band concert held for the benefit of AIDS research.

In November, the NLU Pikes met with children from a local junior high school to discuss the importance of staying in school and obtaining a college degree. Throughout the fall, the Pikes visited G.B. Cooley Hospital every two weeks to visit with mentally challenged youth and participate with them in various activities.

ETA PHI CHAPTER (University of Central Florida)

Eta Phi Chapter at the University of Central Florida was the final recipient of the 1993-94 honorable mention awards for community service. The Eta Phi Pikes devoted much of their fall community service schedule working with the Orlando Jaycees. The Pikes dressed up in costumes on Halloween and worked at the Jaycees haunted house. The chapter was also involved with the Easter Seals, Boy Scouts of America and the Leukemia Society.

THETA MU CHAPTER (University of Massachusetts)

At the University of Massachusetts, the Pikes of Theta Mu Chapter raised $10,207 by working for the Newman Center's fall phone-a-thon. The Newman Center is a Catholic cultural center on the Massachusetts campus. The Pikes also worked with the Amherst Police Department to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. Theta Mu was also recognized by the Amherst Council on Aging for raking leaves for the elderly and the disabled.

THETA XI CHAPTER (East Texas State University)

The Pikes of Theta Xi Chapter at East Texas State University devoted part of their summer answering the call to aid the cause of a fellow ETSU student. Kimberly Wyatt was injured in a car-train collision in July. She required extensive surgery and 165 pints of blood. Pi Kappa Alpha rose to the occasion and hosted a blood drive for Wyatt. 43 pints of blood were collected during the blood drive.

IOTA ALPHA CHAPTER (University of Wyoming)

The Pikes of Iota Alpha Chapter at the University of Wyoming have a banner near the press box at Wyoming's football stadium as a result of volunteering their manpower to the university. The Pikes participated in the university's Ambush program which was designed to gather fan support for the school. Pikes ran into stores in the Laramie community and began doing cheers for the Wyoming Cowboys. The university showed its gratitude to the Pikes by prominently displaying the Pike banner.

Iota Alpha also chopped and donated wood to a retirement community and combined with Chi Omega Sorority to put on a Christmas party for the Association for Retired Citizens. The Pikes were also active with the Adopt-A-Highway program and sponsored a blood drive.

According to Iota Alpha Community Service Chairman Matthew A. Williams (Iota Alpha '92), the chapter requires each chapter member to do 15 hours of community service a semester. Members are fined for failing to complete their hours and they are rewarded for fulfilling the community service requirement.

IOTA DELTA CHAPTER (Rose-Hulman Institute)

At Iota Delta Chapter at Rose Hulman Institute of Technology, the Pikes sponsored the Moench Criterium, a bike race held for the benefit of United Cerebral Palsy. Pikes also volunteered their time to a local children's museum by giving tours to grade school children every Wednesday. The chapter worked with the Adopt-A-Highway program and the Red Cross. Individual members of the chapter worked with organizations such as Big Brothers/Big Sister and the Salvation Army.

A Day In The Life

OF PI KAPPA ALPHA

n October 8, 1993, Pi Kappa Alpha members across the country were asked to record life in their chapters by photographing daily events. The following pages show activities that are typical of, and central to, chapter life everywhere. Whether it takes place in Pennsylvania, Kansas, or California, life as a Pike means life as a part of a larger entity. Life as a Pike means you have thousands of brothers, sharing the same hopes, goals and victories.

Kansas Alum Harold D. Herndon Exemplifies Distinguished Service to Education and Community

Harold D. Herndon (Kansas, Beta Gamma '22) is something of a legend at Texas Christian University. He did not attend the university, nor was he the parent of a TCU student. Yet he is an emeritus trustee who served actively on the board from 1957 to 1974; a holder of an honorary doctor of laws degree; and winner of the 1990 Honorary Alumnus Award.

Herndon was asked to serve on the board of trustees to represent the Disciples of Christ denomination. He accepted, and stayed on as a working board member for nearly 20 years. In addition, he was appointed by Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe to be a member of the Texas Colleges and Universities System Coordinating Board from 1973-79. For some time he simultaneously served on the board of trustees at both TCU and Trinity University, where he was chairman of the board from 1978 to 1984. Trinity has named one of their residence halls Herndon Hall in his honor.

The Imogene and Harold Herndon professorships in music and geology were established by the Herndons in 1979, recognizing some of TCU's most distinguished scholars. Similar professorships and scholarships have been established by the Herndons at Trinity.

During his career, Herndon has held the positions of director of National Bank Fort Sam Houston, chairman of the board of directors of the San Antonio branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, director of the Government Personnel Mutual Life Insurance, and trustee of the San Antonio Transit System. He has also been an independent oil operator and geologist.

Herndon has given much back to his community. The San Antonio Exchange Club bestowed its Good Deed award upon him, and as an executive council member of the Boy Scouts of America, he has been recognized with the Silver Antelope and Silver Beaver awards.

At Pi Kappa Alpha's Lone Star Regional Leadership Conference, held October 23, Herndon was presented with the Pi Kappa Alpha Educational Foundation's Order of West Range.

NEWS OF Bygone Days

25 YEARS AGO ... Past National President Roy D. Hickman (New Mexico, Beta Delta '22) stressed the need to sustain the increased alumni involvement generated by the 1968 PiKA Centennial. "We must not let that new alumni interest die. In fact, it is the continued interest of our alumni that breathes new life into the Fraternity each year, by help in pledging, by aid in rushing, by endeavors to guide chapters toward those standards of leadership, morals, scholarship and character that have been our objectives since the founding of Pi Kappa Alpha."

50 YEARS AGO ... As the Fraternity neared its Diamond Jubilee celebration, it established a new record for its membership numbers. The chapters pledged more men during Fall 1943 than in any other year of the Fraternity's history. The average was 21 pledges for each of PiKA's 80 chapters. Gamma Sigma Chapter at the University of Pittsburgh and the Gamma Alpha Chapter at the University of Alabama led with 46 and 44 pledges respectively.

75 YEARS AGO ... Mark L. Terry (Missouri-Rolla, Alpha Kappa '18) corresponded with his chapter about life overseas as a soldier in World War I. "Have been intending to write you for some time, but business has been rushing over here. Before we came up here someone told us that we were going to a quiet sector. All I have to say is that if this is a quiet sector, an active one must be 'some action.' Am getting somewhat accustomed to shell fire, that is, I don't shy like a young colt the first time he is in harness every time I hear one coming. You soon learn to tell by the hum whether the shell is going to be short, over, or in your own immediate neighborhood."

100 YEARS . . . The 6th Annual Convention of Pi Kappa Alpha was held at Murphy's Hotel in Richmond, Virginia, December 26-29, 1893. Councilor Princeps Howard Bell Arbuckle (Hampden-Sydney, Iota 1886) began his report to the convention with the following: "Since last we met in convention many and varied have been the incidents of PiKA's history. No year can surpass 1893 in its startling changes, waning hopes and bitter disappointments, yet renewed determination and earnest zeal. Begun in despair, yet closing in the first fair radiance of sure success."

Voices from Alabama: A Twentieth Century Mosaic Chronicles Life in Southern State

J. Mack Lofton, Jr. (Mississippi State, Gamma Theta '49) has woven a patchwork quilt of oral reminiscences in his book, Voices of Alabama: A Twentieth Century Mosaic. The Mississippi State alum traveled the length and breadth of Alabama, listening as homemakers, sharecroppers, miners, mill workers, bank executives, businessmen and college presidents told about their lives in the Twenties, the Great Depression, and World War II.

At home in Mountain Brook, Alabama, Lofton retired from a long career with Sears about nine years ago, after heart surgery. He then turned his talents to writing. He has authored magazine articles and four unpublished books (two fiction, two non-fiction), and now has seen a fifth manuscript published.

Lofton took his idea for a book about "interesting Alabamians" to the University of Alabama, where the concept developed into a look at life in the state as it was remembered by people of widely varying walks of life. Lofton wrote to 120 libraries throughout Alabama, and then to chambers of commerce, seeking their recommendations on storytellers. Out of 150 names, the list was narrowed down to 60 individuals who would recount their histories.

With recorder in hand, Lofton set out to listen. "My interview technique is pretty primitive...because I'd say, 'Tell me a story." They told stories of one-room schools, stories of travel in mule-drawn wagons and on trains, and stories of steam locomotives."

These glimpses into the past reveal a world far removed from our own, and fascinate in their revelations of unvarnished human life. In Voices from Alabama, Lofton has captured a unique glimpse of the state's history.

Chapter Endowments Growing

During the 1991-1992 academic year the Educational Foundation established endowments for each of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity's active and silent(*) chapters. Alumni, friends and students may designate their gifts to the Foundation to the specific chapter endowment of their choice and 100% of their gift will be added to that endowment. Upon reaching the minimum endowment level of $10,000, each endowment will provide scholarships and grants from the prior year's earnings to student members of that chapter. Listed below is the status of each chapter endowment as of June 30, 1993.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS STATE

Gordon D. Merritt '81 lives in Austin, Texas, where he is working with the inside sales group in the Educational Market for Apple Computer USA.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Robert W. Burt '64 has assumed the position of associate director of corporate & foundation relations at the University of California-Berkeley.

Yale Gieszl '64 is executive vice president of Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A. He received the USC School of Accounting's Distinguished Alumnus Award at the school's annual dinner on April 21, 1993

Hubert W. Holbret '58 lives in Nottingham, England. He has written a book, The Real Estate Investor's Question and Answer Book, with Ron Tepper (Gamma Eta '60).

SYRACUSE

Edward Cettina '84 has been promoted to vice president of Tishman Construction Corporation of New York and of Tishman Research Corporation, which specializes in building science and construction technology. He has been involved with New York City's City-

Spire, The St. Regis Hotel, La Guardia Community College, the Japan Society Building, and the Jewish Museum. He is overseeing the mechanical/electrical engineering work for several buildings, including part of the Bankers Trust and two trading floors for Lehman Brothers.

King Buttermore Named Georgia State Director of Intellectual Property Development

King Buttermore (Vanderbilt, Sigma '63) has been named director of intellectual property development and compliance in the office of the vice president for research and information technology at Georgia State University. He will coordinate the development and protection of GSU intellectual property rights and will review research and grant proposals for compliance with federal and state law as well as with Board of Regents' policies.

This new assignment coincides with Buttermore's admission to the practice of law. Prior to his appointment, he served as dean of student life programs. Buttermore serves as chairman of Pi Kappa Alpha's Educational Advisory Committee.
